MAJESTIC Saturday, April 24, matinee and evening, McIntyre and Heath in "The Ham Tree." Friday matinee and night, April 30, "Twin Beds." COLONIAL Every afternoon and evening, vaudeville and pictures. VICTORIA Motion Pictures. PHOToplay Motion Pictures. REGENT Motion Pictures. PALACE Moving Pictures. McIntyre and Heath Those who remember "The Ham Tree," which comes to the Majestic Saturday afternoon and evening will tell you it has all the good qualities of musical entertainment, pleasant melodies, rollicking comedy and picturesque settings.

of lively entertainment. That was six years ago. Its revival by John Cort this time should yield its own reward for it brings back a musical play that was enjoyable with the two black blossoms of laughter, McIntyre and Heath, in their original role, one as a "chambermaid" in an Alabama stable, and the other a sure-enough minstrel man. From the time the Georgia Minstrels arrive at Magnolia Springs until they appear in the Nicklebacker mansion on Fifth avenue, New York, McIntyre and Heath as laugh producers are in a class all by themselves. How Alexandra Hambleton from the lively stable, played by McIntyre, was lured away to become a minstrel, and how he became stranded down in Florida, finally to get on his feet with the actor man when they impersonate a Rajahoni and Rajah to deceive the wealthy Mr. Nicklebacker, never fails to convulse the audience. Adv. "Twin Beds" There is a delicious touch of femininity in the retiring scene of "Twin Beds," when dainty and charming Margaret Boland prepares to slumber. In a role de nuit that makes the feminine portion of the audience gasp with envy, and her slender feet shod into red leather Spanish mules, she fearfully explores the dark chasms under each twin bed, and to her intense relief and the unqualified enjoyment of the audience, there is no dreadful man there. It is just such little touches of human nature that brings "Twin Beds" home to all of us whether we have the misfortune to be apartment house dwellers or not. Selwyn & Co., are sending "Twin Beds"

to the Majestic for a return engagement next Friday matinee and night with an exceptionally talented and finely balanced cast, comprising Miss Boland, Rowland Vance Lee, Marion Lori, August Aramini, Beatrice Ingram, Jane Seymour and J. M. Brynes. Adv. Big Show at Colonial Headed by the biggest musical comedy act that ever played the theatre, a new bill of vaudeville opened at the Colonial this afternoon for the remainder of the week. "The Bachelor Dinner," the headliner, is a gigantic piece of stageware, surpassing all previous acts offered at the Colonial. There are fifteen people carried by the act, including a bevy of maidens who make up a very charming chorus. They have lavish costumes and have been drilled in the pretty dances and steps that go with the big musical comedy show. On the same bill are Rozella and Rozella, in an instrumental musical act; Vandioff and Louie, a novelty in oil paintings; Little Miss Jean, clever juvenile entertainer. This is the first time the musical comedy, "The Bachelor Dinner," has ever been presented in a theatre charging prices as low as those asked at the Colonial. Adv. AT THE REGENT Henry W. Savage's tremendously successful mystery farce, "The Million," with Edward Abeles, is to-day's attraction at the Regent theatre in addition to the regular program of first run films. The elaborate picture was shown last night and was witnessed by big audiences. So quick is the action of the farce that its adaption to the screen was inevitable; indeed the plot is a motion picture itself. Edward Abeles is versatile and at all times entertaining. Though he is called upon to portray six distinct characters, he changes his personality with each costume and the effect is surprisingly entertaining. "The Million" is a safe and sure cure for melancholia and it is absolutely fatal to one's dignity. The motion picture has been cleverly constructed and the settings, of which there are many, are uniformly good. For to-morrow Manager Magaro has booked the film production of Bret Harte's book, "M'Lass," which will be shown in five parts. Adv. "The Ordeal" at the Victoria To-day One of the greatest features it has ever been our pleasure to present will be offered to-day, entitled "The Ordeal." It is a wonderful production which every person ought to see. That the Victoria's new $25,000 pipe organ is truly "the talk of the town" is proven by the fact that every day we hear people saying that they "doubt its cost" or that it is not played by a musician but is an automatically arranged instrument. Others say that it is the greatest musical instrument that they have ever heard and we feel certain that only those who have not heard this marvel of musical genius and mechanical skill could criticize adversely. This great $25,000 pipe organ is one of very few in the country and are mostly in the most pretentious motion pictures of the larger cities. To-morrow we present "The Great Diamond Robbery," featuring an all star cast including Miss Gail Kane, Wallace Eddinger and Charles J. Ross. This six part production has been taken from that great melodrama of the same name. "Three Weeks," will be shown next Tuesday and Wednesday. Adv. SCHWAB TO ENTER BANKING Steel Magnate and Associates Buy Site for Building South Bethlehem, Pa., April 22.—Charles M. Schwab, reports here had it yesterday, intends to enter banking. The steel magnate and others have purchased for $40,000 a sixty by 100 feet site at the corner of New and Fourth streets. On this, and possibly additional, property, Schwab, who is working jointly with Pittsburgh capitalists, it is said, will erect a modern five-story bank building. Seriously Hurt By Jitney Bus Reading, April 22.—While on his way to attend church services here yesterday, Peter Matthews, aged 56, was run down by a jitney bus, owned and operated by Walter Ravel, and seriously injured. He suffered a concussion of the brain and may not recover.

mer principal, failed to be reappointed, collapsed yesterday, when thirteen of the boy strikers were fined $2 each by City Judge Beall. Seven of the lads had spent a night of reflection in jail and yesterday promised to go back to school. Mr. Maxson was partly responsible for ending the trouble. He went among the pupils, urging them to go back to their desks. Armless, Acquitted of Beating Wife Hazleton, April 22.—Wife beating, which was charged against Jacob Getski, did not seem a suitable accusation when Mayor James Harvey surveyed the man, who is armless. Getski claimed that when he did not make a good day's wages his wife abused him. The Mayor decided that Getski could not have hammered his spouse very badly with both arms off. Fractures Leg In Fall William Freet, New Buffalo, received a badly fractured right leg yesterday when he fell from a 34-foot high scaffold at the island coal wharf. The injured man was taken to the Harrisburg hospital where the fracture was reduced.

STUDENTS CUT EXPENSES

Penn State Juniors Substitute Smoker for Class Dinner State College, Pa., April 22.—Determined to cut down the cost of their college expenses, the members of the junior class at Penn State Tuesday night voted to substitute a smoker for the annual class dinner. This decision reduces the individual price for the function from $8 to 50 cents. In former years classes traveled to Pittsburgh, Washington or Harrisburg for yearly banquets set at $3 a plate. Transportation expenses and incidentals cost each man $5 more. This year the juniors will stay at home and hold their smoker in the college armory.
