How Warships Bring Their Guns to Bear Upon the Energy.

One of the most important instruments used on a warship is the range finder, for without this instrument it is practicaly impossible to aim the guns accurately without first incurring by trial shots. Range finders all work on much the same principle, images of the ship or other object sighted on being received through the two object glasses, one located near each end and or the side of the tube, being reflected and refractthe observer, who looks through the eyepiece located at the middle of the tube and on the opposite from the ob-only the upper half of the object sight-ed on and the left hand object glass the lower half. When sighting on a ship, for example, the rigging and funnels will appear to be offset horizon tally from the lower part of the ship, so long as the instrument is not set for the correct range. The images are then brought together by a thumb screw that moves one of the pris is, and this sets a scale that shows distance in yards to the ship.-Pearson's Weekly.

HE WAS "A LITTLE QUEER." His Eccentricity In the End Proved His

Own Undoing. Rev. Mr. Hagamore, to whose mem-ory is a slab in the church at Cats-

hoge, Leicestershire, England, was "a little queer." It seems that the reverend gentleman died in January, 1886, it from the first like a butcher with a lit from the first like a butcher with a lit from the first like a butcher with a lit from the first like a butcher with a lit from the first like a butcher with a lit from the first like a butcher with a lit from the first like a butcher with a lit from the first like a butcher with a lit from the first like a butcher with a lit from the first like a butcher with a lit from the first like a butcher with a lit from the first like a butcher with a lit from the first like a butcher with a lit from the first like a butcher with a lit from the first like a butcher with a lit from the first like a butcher with a lit from the first like a butcher with a lit from the first like a butcher with a lit from the first like a butcher with a lit from the first like a butcher with a lit from the first like a butcher with a lit from the first like a butcher with a lit from the first like a butcher with a lit from the first like a butcher with a lit from the first like a butcher with a lit from the first like a butcher with a lit from the first like a butcher with a lit from the first like a butcher with a lit from the first like a butcher with a lit from the first like a butcher with a lit from the first like a butcher with a lit from the first like a butcher with a lit from the first like a butcher with a lit from the first like a butcher with a lit from the first like a butcher with a lit from the first like a butcher with a lit from the first like a butcher with a lit from the first like a butcher with a lit from the first like a butcher with a lit from the first like a butcher with a lit from the first like a butcher with a lit from the first like a butcher with a lit from the first like a butcher with a lit from the first like a butcher with a lit from the first like a butcher with a lit from the first like a butcher with a lit from the first like a butcher with a lit fro teach gentleman died in Sanuary, 1990, leaving all of his property, valued at $3,500, to a railroad porter.

This queer old preacher kept one servant of each sex, whom he locked up every night. His last employment of an evening was to go the rounds of his premises, let loose the dogs and fire off his gun. He lost his life in a curious manner Starting out early one morning to let out his servants, the dogs fawned upon him and threw him into a poud of wa-ter. The servants heard his cries, but, being locked up, could not render as-sistance, so the old man was drowned. When the inventory of his property a more serious view of life. As to the professor, he wasn't a naturalist at all, but a famous fencer, and I believe he was taken, he was found to be the owner of 80 gowns, 100 pairs of trouwas hired by those who wished us well to come there and administer the remowner of 80 gowns, 100 pairs of trousers, 100 pairs of boots, 400 pairs of shoes, 80 wigs (although he had plenty of natural hair), 50 dogs, 96 wagons and carts, 30 wheelbarrows, 249 razors, 80 plows, 50 saddles and 222 pickaxes and shovels. He surely was "a little queer.'—London Standard. edies our systems seemed to require.

A Pertinent Query. She was leaving the city for home. Good Guessing.

The Teacher—So Delilah cut Samson's hair, and all his strength went out of him. Now, when did Samson's strength go out of him? You may answer, Willie.

Willie-I grees it way when he seen and by way of making her departure pleasant for those who had served her, gave a nickel to a chambermaid, say-ing. "Mary, you take a nice long car ride." wer, Willie.

Willie—I guess it wuz when he seen hisself in th' glass.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The maid replied, "Yes, ma'am; thank you, ma'am, but how will I get back?"

Dick.

"That your nose is screwed on crooked."

"Suh, you must answer for this insult!"

"Yours to command."

"A second duel, you see, suh, and with the same weapons. I wasn't there to see, but they told me that he made a bigger monkey of Dick Baswhite ones. Ef ready."—Judge.

It was about 3 o'clock, and the fading light in the art gallery of the Pub-lic library was beginning to bother the painter woman who faced the sunset canvas with lumpy palette impaled on one thumb and paint brush held hesitatingly in the other hand, while she scrutinized again the intricate blending of sunset colors and backed away a few steps farther to squint at the perspective of the old whaler she was copying as it lurched in painted waves. Details of color blending, of light and shade, of form after the fashion of a painter's sensitive appreciation, doubtedly filled her mind.

Then came thumping along the pol-ished floor two other women. They stood for a moment in silence in front of the sunset picture. One of them raised a thick, berlinged hand and rub-bed the canvas with a slow, feeling

"Ajn't it grand. Neille?" she said.
"An' all hand painted too."—New York

An Honeat Trustee But - - Surety Paid $30,000 Loss

Although much experience has been gained by the Companies during the past thirty-six years that corporate suretyship has been in existence in America, it is a serious and perplexing question as to just how long it will take this experience to mature.

In 1888 a surety company furnished the bond of a testamentary trustee who was to collect the rents and profits of the testator's estate during the lifetime of his surviving sisters. The trustee was to pay an annual income to the slaters of the testator and to accumulate the remainder as a find for the foundation of a school upon their death. Early in the administration of the seatate the trustee employed the testator's brether-in-law, who had acted in a similar capacity for the testator, to collect the rents and manage the real scate. Nothing was stolen by the trustee, but on his final accounting, seventeen years—after the date of the bond, it was proved that this employe had been dishonest usfil had stolen rents from the estate. For this dishonesty the trustee was surcharged for an amount exceeding $30,000, which his surety had to pay seventeen years after the bond was given.
