

Washing Won't Rid Head of Dandruff

The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely.

Do this to-night, and by morning, most if not all of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop at once, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

Dance Frocks Possessed of the Spirit of 1850—Petticoats Are Again Popular

New York, April 26.—Despite rain and blustery weather, spring festivities are in full swing. Never have the theatres been more crowded nor the gowns more beautiful.

Although Dame Fashion, mindful of the subway, perhaps, hesitates to spring the hoop skirt in daytime dresses, she spares no filliness in the dance frock.

Every belle and beau of the metropolis treads the measure of the maxixe, the one-step and fox trot to the accompaniment of orchestra music intermingled with the clink of diners' glasses.

Taffeta and Lace in an Up-to-Date Application of the Crinoline Mode

One girl in particular attracted my attention, as I watched the dancers the other night. But for her Auburn tresses cropped close in the "Castle clip," she might have been an 1850 instead of a 1915 girl.

Though entirely different in cut and texture, an equally charming dress was worn at a fête in the midweek, by one of the season debutantes.

ried out in tiny embroidered wreaths on the guimpe and skirt; below the wreaths on the skirt, scallops of gathered ribbon made a trimming in keeping with the U-shaped neck and full, puffed sleeves.

It seems as if these styles, borrowed from the days when Jenny Lind and Adeline Patti won their fame, give to each girl an individual grace as she sways to the rhythm of the modern music.

Fans are especially pretty, small models, scarcely five inches tall, with ivory sticks and paper or silk uppers, quaintly printed or painted, being favored with the crinoline frocks; etch fans give way this season to graceful models made of eagle quills.

Slippers, too, are featured in satin and kid, white, black or in colors to match the dress with ribbon laces in Grecian style or crossed straps that firmly hold the foot.

So far-reaching is the dance fad, if we may call it that, having lasted two seasons, it is difficult to lose the spirit even in the daytime.

A Dance Frock of Net and Faille Displaying the New Puff Sleeve

In the large auditorium, crowded to its utmost capacity, it is interesting to note the enthusiasm with which the short, full-skirted, tight-bodied frocks are received.

Usually Funny Play Suffers Through An Apparent Absence of Ginger Even in the Cases of the Stars, McIntyre and Heath

Whether it was because the end of the season is drawing nigh, or because the stars were not greeted with an audience that filled every seat, or that the play was beginning, by frequent repetition, to pall on the players—there was certainly something lacking in the performance of the "Ham Tree" by McIntyre and Heath at the Majestic Saturday night.

BOX OFFICE FOR CONCERT WILL BE OPEN TO-MORROW

Famous Quartet From "Rigoletto" Will Be Sung Thursday Afternoon, April 29—Requests for Seats Indicate Increased Public Interest

The box office at the Majestic theatre opened this morning for the honorary members to reserve their seats for the spring music festival of the Choral Society, to be held next Thursday.

Judging from the large demand for tickets, the interest this year is greater than ever before and all indications show that the Choral Society is more popular than ever.

The oldest official and one who has done excellent work for the Choral Society is S. D. Sansom. Mr. Sansom has been treasurer of the society since its organization and has been a most loyal and competent official.

Patrons are urged to be in their seats promptly at 3 o'clock for the afternoon concert and by 8.15 for the evening concert as late comers will not be seated until the first intermission.

BLAMES LEGISLATURES FOR WIDESPREAD FOREST FIRES

Commissioner Conklin Says Daily Patrols Have Been Impossible Because of Failure of Lawmakers to Provide Sufficient Funds

In a statement regarding the spread of forest fires, issued yesterday Forestry Commissioner Conklin is inclined to lay the blame for the State not being at all times ready to combat them, on the Legislatures which have heretofore failed to furnish sufficient money to provide patrols.

"The forest fire law of 1909 provides a method for daily patrol but this provision has been completely nullified since the passage of the law by the refusal of the Legislature to appropriate sufficient money to place men upon daily patrol.

"A comparison of the appropriations which Pennsylvania has made for this purpose with that made by other States is instructive at this time. In Massachusetts and New York an annual appropriation of one per cent per acre for forested land for protective purposes was made.

"The department is asking this year for a forest fire appropriation of $150,000. Of course, what is not needed will not be expended, but we must have a fund with which to patrol danger points for the prevention of fire if we are ever to make any great headway against fire in the woods.

"The connection between forest fires and the trout season is too significant to be ignored the commissioner says. The State has most unwisely refused to take proper cognizance of one of the greatest leaks of all, and one that is rendering large areas of Pennsylvania barren and desolate, the uncontrolled forest fires, the commissioner adds.
