Some of the highly praised youths who are demolishing fences down in Florida will look as sad as broken down snow plows next August. Place a few jitneys on this tip, Hector. SEMI-PROFESSIONALS TO SEEK TO BAR FRANK BAKER

Home Run King Called Contract Jumper for Playing With Upland Club of Delaware County League—May Take Fight to Court

Cheltenham, Pa., April 27.—J. Franklin Baker, under contract with the Athletics, will not play with the Upland Club of the Delaware County League if I can prevent it. This statement, by E. M. Hackney, president of the Philadelphia Suburban Baseball League, startled half a dozen baseball men at a conference yesterday afternoon held at his office.

Hackney stated that yesterday morning he entered a formal protest with Assistant District Attorney Joseph P. Rogers, president of the Interstate Association of Baseball Leagues, against the playing of Connie Mack's star with the Upland team.

"Baker, if not released formally by Connie Mack, is a contract jumper, pure and simple," is the way Hackney put it, "and the Interstate Association of Baseball Leagues was organized to do away with just that sort of thing. His playing with the Upland Club of the Delaware County League, a member of the Interstate Association, destroys the spirit in which the association was organized, and also violates the constitution, which reads that no manager of any club in any league in the association can sign a player of another league until he has been released by the club with which he is first listed. Until Baker receives his release from Manager Mack, of the Athletics, the Upland Club is violating the by-laws."

"If the Interstate Association allows Baker, a contract jumper, to play with the Delaware County League, it immediately becomes an 'outlaw' association."

When asked if he was prepared to fight Baker's playing with Upland in court, Hackney said: "Yes, and fight it to the last ditch. Baker knows that he can't jump to the Federals because he is under contract with the Athletics, and he need not think he can jump to a semi-professional league, with its own rules and regulations to govern just such contract jumpers as he, and get away with it."

Hackney also objects to Baker's playing with the Upland team because of it not being fair to the other leagues in the Interstate Association, who will be forced to meet the Delaware County League in a championship series for the semi-professional championship of the East. He claims that Baker could easily be transferred to the winning club of the league and oppose the teams of the other leagues, thereby giving them an unfair advantage.

President Rogers, when reached by telephone at his country home in Frazer, Pa., said: "I will sustain Mr. Hackney in his protest. The whole sense of the organization of the Interstate Baseball Association is destroyed if we allow Baker to play in one of our clubs. If Baker does play, I mean to inflict the penalty on the Upland Club for each and every game hereafter." The penalty is a fine of $20 and the forfeiture of every game in which a protested player takes part.

Three leagues were reached last night, and stated they would be back of Hackney in his fight to keep Baker out of semi-professional ball.
