Clothes for Father and the Boys

WHILE we give a good deal of attention to young men's requirements in clothes, we haven't overlooked the needs of their elders. We realize that Father, too, has his own ideas about the kind of clothes he wants. He's inclined to be a bit more conservative, perhaps—but he's just as particular about correct style and good quality and fit. He'll find that we've provided for his wants with garments of quiet good taste that express the prevailing mode correctly and conservatively, with a dignity becoming to men of years.
 Suits for Father are shown in a well chosen variety of attractive fabrics in models for every figure—short—stout or long—leans, insuring perfect and comfortable fit.

$15,000,000 FORD MELON

Each of 300,000 Auto Owners Will Get $50 Back as 'Dividend'

New York, April 28.—Announcement that another Ford melon of more than $15,000,000 would be sliced was made last night in the New York office of the Ford Motor Company, 1723 Broadway. This time the Ford purchasers are to be beneficiaries of the distribution of profit.
 Mr. Ford said last year that the company would share its profits with its customers if its sales aggregated 300,000 cars between August 1, 1914, and August 1, 1915. Each customer was to receive $50.
 It was said at the Ford office last night it was assumed that the 300,000 cars would be sold by August 1, next. Mr. Ford's words were quoted as follows:
 "Barring the unforeseen, the distribution of $50 per customer since August 1, last, will take place a year from that date."
 From present indications, it was said last night the number of cars sold by August, next, will be 325,000. This will make the customer dividend $16,250,000.

HEARS DYING MOTHER CALL

Scranton Official, Returning From Kansas, Warned of Death in Dream

Scranton, April 28.—City Clerk Ellsworth Kelly, while on his way east from Kansas, where he had gone with Councilmen to inspect paving, had a dream on the train Saturday night that his mother was calling him.
 Mrs. Kelly had been an invalid for five years, but when her son left here a week ago she was no worse than usual. Mr. Kelly says he spent a restless night on the train, and the first thing he asked on reaching home was, "Is mother dead?" Mrs. Kelly was then unconscious and died an hour later.
 Members of Mr. Kelly's family, who were with his mother Saturday night recall that at about the time the son heard the call his mother had spoken his name and then lapsed into a stupor from which she did not recover.

WHY THE ARTILLERY WAS LATE--AN AUSTRIAN GUN DETACHMENT NEGOTIATING A SHALLOW TRIBUTARY IN WEST GALICIA.

This picture, drawn especially for this newspaper, the New York Herald and the London Sphere, by Christopher Clark, shows the extraordinary extent and depth of the mud encountered in West Galicia. This scene is typical of hundreds of points along the line from East Prussia to the Carpathian foothills. The men and horses are wallowing in the loose mud, which is waist deep. All reports from this scene of battle lay great stress on the seas of mud encountered by the troops.
