WANTS TIGHTER REINS ON FIRE INSURANCE COS.

Continued From First Page. with the amounts collected in premiums so that a reasonable rate could be established for every city. Companies now report only by States, he said.

He called the "conflagration hazard" a bugaboo which should not alarm anybody. He said that it is the policy of insurance companies to set aside five per cent. to cover this hazard and if half of Harrisburg should burn down to-morrow the insurance companies would have enough surplus if they put aside that amount.

Boys Underwriters' Secrecy

He said a merchant has just as much right to know the premium his neighbor is charged as he has the right to know the amount his neighbor is assessed for municipal taxation. In this connection he said one of the chief faults of the underwriters is the secrecy maintained by boards which, however, is being gradually done away with since a decision in the courts of Allegheny was rendered requiring that the books be opened for inspection.

He said that the Attorney General's Department has been assured that all of the boards operating in Pennsylvania will follow that decision.

While the nucleus of the new party will consist of 10,000 officers and men now in the United States and might say as but fifty in Texas, there will be no violation of the neutrality laws. The new party is composed primarily of ex-federalists, but included many from other parties, in fact an amalgamation of Mexicans from the several parties now are recognized in an unsuccessful attempt to bring about peace."

PICTURE CENSORSHIP BILL IS AMENDED BY MAURER

The Daix motion picture censorship bill was amended on second reading in the House this morning by Mr. Maurer, the Socialist member from Berks. He had stricken from the measure a clause which would have permitted the State censorship to disapprove reels or views which would tend to "prejudice the public mind."

Striking this out of the bill gives the censors only the right to disapprove reels which are "sacrilegious, obscene, indecent, immoral or such as would tend to incite to riot." There was no opposition to the amendment, scarcely a dozen members of the House knowing what was going on. If the bill passes the House with this amendment it will have to return to the Senate for concurrence.

This bill is supported by the State Board of Moving Picture Censors and was introduced by Senator Daix at the instance of J. Louis Breittinger, the present chief censor. The bill has passed the Senate. It wipes out the present censorship board but substitutes another which will have three members instead of two.

RUMANIA SHORT OF ARMS; KEEPS HER OUT OF BIG WAR

London, April 29.—The "Daily Mail's" Bucharest correspondent answers the question "Why is Rumania not yet in the field?" as follows: "Because hitherto she has not had a sufficient supply of ammunition to make her position safe. Rumania always has kept a small supply of ammunition because her plans were based on the hypothesis that she would be fighting on the side of Austria in any war—naturally so, as she had a secret treaty of offensive and defensive alliance with Austria and Germany. This, however, was denounced at the beginning of the present war on the same grounds as Italy denounced hers."

EFFECT OF NATIONALISM ON ADVERTISING METHODS

N. W. Ayer & Son, Through "Printers' Ink," Starts a Series of Educational Articles With Relation to the Tendencies of Modern Times

A campaign of education as to what really constitutes effective national advertising under modern conditions has been started by the N. W. Ayer & Son advertising agency, of Philadelphia, New York, Boston and Chicago, through a series of articles appearing in the periodical, "Printer's Ink." The following is quoted from the issue of April 8:

"The United States is developing the quality of nationalism. We are coming to think of things in terms of our nationality. Business men are interested in what the nation grows, what the nation produces, what the nation consumes, what the nation exports and imports.

"If a calamity befalls one of our States or cities, it is a national calamity. We have established a national point of view and are thinking with a national mind. Manufacturing is being done on a national scale, distribution studied on the same scope, and national advertising has arrived.

"Under these conditions, there is need for the national advertising agency, and such an agency may be located in Philadelphia or Detroit, or New York, or Kansas City or Denver, provided that its activities are national, its experience national and its capacity to serve organized on a national basis.

"This country is geographically so vast, its population so great, its range of industries so wide, that no concern may have a correct national point of view unless this national view is made up of segments of sectional views. In other words, a correct national viewpoint may only be formed by an intimate study of the contributing local facts and conditions of each section.

"Our business, which has for more than a quarter of a century been the largest of its character in the world, has in the past few years undergone a complete reorganization. This reorganization has not been merely a change of men and methods; it has been rather a re-expression to suit modern conditions of the first five principles upon which the business was established forty-six years ago.

"For the past several years our representatives have visited on an average of thirty-seven States per year; we have made an average of six thousand calls per year; we have kept on file, closely scrutinized, checked and registered, whether we had an advertisement in the average of fifty thousand publications from all sections of this country.

Collection of Information

"We have developed to an unusual extent excellent information and statistics concerning many trades and many localities. We have impregnated our own organization with a greatly broadened view of our nationality and business necessities. We have become a national advertising agency.

"There are a great many advertising agencies which designate themselves as 'general' or 'national' which apparently take unto themselves this qualification solely because they place advertisements in publications of general or national circulation. From our point of view, the intelligent use of national publications is difficult until the agency has had a very broad experience in the use of many forms of local advertising media, such as newspapers, bill posting, etc., in every part and section of this big country of ours.

"That an advertiser and his agent may plan to derive the full advantage of an advertising expenditure, there must, in the first place, be a broad basic knowledge of the situation. Actual conditions in each State should be known. This information should be matched up with the status of the advertiser's business in each State. This, in turn, should be considered in connection with an analysis of the publications in each State. Only by this process may advertising be made to do its full part in a sales campaign.

Start of Advertising Campaigns

"Some of the most remarkable national advertising successes have started as local campaigns with a national advertisement in the line of merchandise with the trade is desirable. Retailers should be responsive to the effort of honest advertisers to place goods on their shelves, but in too many cases consumer advertising is used only as a club on the retailer, and the appropriation of not sufficient size of the advertising accomplish much with the ultimate consumer."

SPORTS CLOTHES SMART WOMEN ARE WEARING

Norfolk Coats, Mannish Blouses and Tailored Skirts First Essentials for Freedom and Comfort

New York, May 29.

Caught in the thrall of the season's first heat, which accounts for the smart set's sudden departure, the great city turns its thoughts to the country club, and the stores display trappings for tennis, golf, trapping and riding to tempt those who may tarry in town and the few who motor in to do their shopping.

So exacting is the mode for sports, that the time is long past when a woman can appear on the turf in baggy, ill-fitting clothes. To-day her attire speaks the smart tailor. Separate coats are particularly prominent. Straight in Norfolk style, or flaring at the lower edge, they are made of white chinchilla cloth, white woolen barred in black, covert cloth, checks, tweeds, washable corduroy, awning striped linen and gold cord, the welt a silky rose and the stripe white.

A Trig Costume Seen on the Golf Course, the Norfolk Coat of Chinchilla Cloth and the Hat and Skirt of Blue Linen

A decided liking for the silk Jersey sweaters is also evident, the styles medium in length, ranging from the regulation model finished with a band at the neck to fancy sweaters with broad sashes and sailor collars. Plain colors, stripes and bars are shown in these, rose, blue and purple being favored, barred or striped in white. Even raincoats have gained a few points in style, now appearing in attractive Scotch plaids and checks, rubberized to withstand the water.

Every detail of the costume is selected with care. Conventions are far more strict concerning the blouse midday wears ago than with the dress she dons for an afternoon tea. Plainly-tailored, long-eared waists, buttoned in the front with adjustable collars, are considered correct for country wear. These are made in white, colored or striped linens, rose and green predominating; in some cases the stripe measures an inch in width. Oftentimes, the buttonholes are bound in a color to match the stripes and the closing fastened like a cuff, with buttons of matching color linked together.

On the tennis courts, middie blouses are still seen, their freedom and comfort having won the heart of the sports woman. One shop on the Avenue devotes a side window, tucked in between two marble pillars, to rackets, balls, sports shoes and middies. The blouses, slashed in front and laced, have sailor collars and cuff-like hems; they are made of white linen, crepe de Chine, wash silk and khaki cloth, the fabric of the soldiers' uniforms, an attractive tan in color and with good wearing qualities.

While the whims of fashion are not as a rule rigidly followed in the clothes for sports wear, the added width in skirts is readily accepted. To be sure, skirts for walking, golf and tennis are not extreme, but now measure from two and a half to three yards around the lower edge. Such fabrics as pique, plain flannel and novel stripes and bars, linen crash, khaki, tweed and herringbone mixtures are shown in these skirts, which are short and plain save for a lap closing or patch pockets.

Hats, too, have a swagger style. Panamas appear in every conceivable shape, from slouch to stiff sailor, with knitted silk bands made like the knitted ties the men wear. There are collapsible hemp straws and black felts faced in color, convenient to tuck in the corner of a bag when leaving town for a weekend. Broad-brimmed sailors of printed linen in two-toned effects and in natural linen faced with blue are also smart, while rolling brimmed sailors of glass straw in purple and white, and black and white lend variety to the styles; or you may have a bonny tam-o'-shanter loosely knitted in coarse silk jauntily tilted to one side, like the Scotchman wears on the heath.

Two cousins, Mary E. Guilford, of Lebanon, and Annie M. Coyle, near Carlisle, will receive $100 and $50 respectively.
