An elaborate series of descriptions of middle western road conditions is con-tained in Charles Cleaver's 'History of Chicago From 1832 to 1892, Illustrat-ing the Difficulties of the Route From New York to Chicago.'' In the village of Chicago in 1833, Cleaver tells us: ''Parties informed us that in the spring we would find it almost impos-sible to get around for the mud, a truth forcibly illustrated when a few months later I got into a wagon to go about one and a half miles morthwost. It was with the greatest difficulty that two good horses could pull the empty wagon through two feet of mud and water across the prairie. * * A year or two later I saw many teams stuck fast in the streets of the village. ''I remember once a stage coach got mired in Clark street opposite the Sher-man House, where it remained several days, with a board driven into the mud bearing this inscription, 'No bottom here.' I once saw a lady stuck in the mud in the middle of Randolph street. She was evidently in need of help, as every time she moved she sank deeper and deeper. An old gentleman from the country offered to help her, which had such an effect upon her modesty that with one desperate effort she drew her feet out minus her shoes.'' At the top on the left is Olga Boudi, daring woman rider; to the right is Bird Millman, "Queen of the Wire," while at the bottom is "A Daughter of the Circus."
