COLOR OF BADGE

STIRS DELECATE

suggested That wouldn't do, I told him, as it is the aristocratic color. You have all heard of blue-blooded aristocrats. Then red was suggested, but I said everybody would think that was Jim Maurer's color; and yellow wouldn't do because the Irishmen might object. Then we centered on the little white badge we wore two years ago when we came over to the Legislature and appealed for a child labor bill. That's why we finally selected the white emblem. The committee, however, will bear the suggestion of the delegate from Philadelphia in mind when it selects the next badge."

Seeks Ald Against Prohibition
Prosvestle said that nine states now have prohibition laws either by legislative enactment or by popular vote, back of which in each instance is the big manufacturer.

"Many men will be thrown out of order lines of labor. They cannot starve."

He said the question of temperance in Pennsylvania is nigh and asked the co-operation of organized labor in fighting prohibition. He told of a proposed organization for Pennsylvania to be known as the Trades Union Laberty League, which, he said, will fight from the trades union 'standpoint only.

In his annual address to the convention President Maurer briefly touched on the activities of the year, discussing his charges against the State Constabulary growing out the Hazleton trolley strike in June. He said later of the State Constabulary:

"In the overwhelming defeat of the bill to increase the State Constabulary:

State Constabulary:

"In the overwhelming defeat of the bill to increase the State Constabulary we get undoubted evidence of its growing unpopularity with the masses and that the time is not far distant when these publicly paid defenders of corporate arrogance will be totally abolished."

He told of the work of the Department of Labor & Industry and commended Commissioner John Price Jackson. He said that Pennsylvania had suffered more than any other state in the Union, outside of New York, because of the industrial conditions of the last year, but showed a net gain of eighty organizations affiliated with the Pennsylvania Federation in that time.

C. F. Quinn, secretary-treasurer, reported a balance of $498.36.

Contest Over Seating Delegate

A contest arose over the seating of Patrick Hanaway, of Pittsburgh, as a delegate when the credentials committee reported. James Charlton, of Pittsburgh, in open convention, charged Hanaway with tampering with a bollot box used in a referendum vote and changing the result of the vote. Hanaway, however, was seated as delegate by a vote of 127 to 38 when the report anging the result of the vote.

The committee held that it had no jurisdiction in the case and that it was a matter for the local union to settle. President Maurer reported that the executive committee, together with the railroad committee, together with railroad committee, together wa fairoad committee, would appear before the Governor at 4 o'clock this afternoon to ask for a veto of the full brief report of the hearing before the Senate committee on the workmen's compensation bill, saying that Attorney General Francis Shunk Brown, who appeared in behalf of the bill, is the best labor champion to appear since the work for compensation was started.

Elmer E. Greenawalt, former president of the State Federation, now Immigration Commissioner in Philadelphia, spoke of his work in connection with the interests of labor, saying that the number of aliens coming to this country through Philadelphia is now reduced to almost nothing. The convention adjourned at noon to meet again at 2 o'clock.

WALKING FOR HEALTH.

The Pedometer Habit Is a Splendid One

to Cultivate. A famous New York doctor was call-their discoveries. A splendid substi-tute is the "pedometer habit." Instead of continually fussing to keep his temperature below 100, for instance, the trivances can try how long it takes to send the pedometer above that figure. Lots of fun is to be obtained from ascertaining distances between various points by walking them. Incidentally points by walking them. the liver gets a good shaking up, the lungs receive the fresh air for the lack of which they have been starving, and the enthusiastic pedestrian feels a new all to play that most excellent of pas times-golf. But the pedometer game is available to most, and it renders in teresting what is, after all, a rather monotonous form of exercise.—Pitts burgh Gazette-Times.

It Sanford Quest and Anna Little as Lenora enact the leading roles, is showing to-day at the Palace theatre. It relates the further thrilling adventures of Quest, who is about to learn Lenora's hiding place from Craig when a rope ladder. Lenora finally escapes from her attic prison and Laura is released from jail. The two Gallaghers are caught and sentenced to prison and Quest is freed by Inspector French from the charge of murder made against him. This wonderful detective story, written by E. Phillips Oppenheim, is creating much comment among movie fans. Full of mystery, it keeps the spectator on edge wondering what will happen next and how the detective will happen next and how the detective will handle each puzzling situation. The mysterious workings of "The Unseen Terror" are well night uncanny. The Palace is the only theatre where this picture can be seen in or near Harrisburg.
