GOVERNOR SIGNS CHILD LABOR BILL

Declares the Vocation School Feature is "New to Our American Thought"

HE KEENLY FELT THE OPPOSITION

Dr. Brumbaugh Expresses Regret That All Did Not Agree on Certain Important Provisions, but Asks for "Kindly Reception" for Whole Act

Governor Brumbaugh late yesterday afternoon announced he had approved the Child Labor Bill. It will take effect on January 1, 1916, and in the meantime employers of such labor can adjust their affairs to suit. The pen with which the law was signed was given to Paul Farman, secretary of the Pennsylvania Child Labor Association. In approving the bill Governor Brumbaugh gave out the following statement over his signature:

"In approving the Cox bill to provide for the health, safety and welfare of minors, it is well to keep in mind the fact that the Republican party in its platform, and its candidate for Governor in his campaign, gave positive assurance that an advanced law of this kind should be enacted. The attempts to do this in preceding sessions of the Legislature failed. The reasons are matters of history. When this session was called it was evident that the same contending parties were at issue upon the provisions that should be included in any bill regulating the employment of minors. I personally felt this keenly. It was my desire to bring these contending groups together in favor of a fair and honest bill. I recognized the point of view held by each and, having for many years not only studied this problem but actually had to do with its administration under existing law, set about to frame an act that would be fair to our great industries, and also just to our great asset—the children who toil in Pennsylvania.

Regrets Failure to Agree

"It is to be regretted that all parties in interest did not agree upon the measure. It was widely and frankly discussed, and eventually appealed to a commanding majority of the Assembly as a wise and proper measure.

"It provides many humane and important features upon which all were agreed. Upon the hours per day and per week it was, I am sorry to record, impossible to reach agreement. The hours of this act are fair, 51 per week, 9 per day, and coupled with this provision is a feature, new in the States, providing that eight hours per week shall be devoted to attendance upon a vocational school. This school is new to our American thought. It is the most important feature of the act. Children between fourteen and sixteen years of age ought to be in school—at least part of each week. Unless they are at work they must be in school under present and proper laws. Those that go to work at fourteen ought not to be barred from further education.

Asks for "Hearty Acceptance"

"If we believe in our common democracy we must believe in the enlightenment of its members. This is fundamental in our American civilization. This act is intended to advance the standards of our citizenship and perpetuate in wiser ways our sacred institutions by giving more enlightenment and vision to our people. No true friend of our civilization, no believer in the genius of our institutions can gainsay the wisdom, the necessity for this provision.

"It is, moreover, conceived in the interest of our great industries. These have been, they are, the pride of the Commonwealth. No true Pennsylvanian would in any unfair or unjust manner do them harm. They need not only workers, but they need skilled workers. This vocational training will in a speedy manner guarantee to industry the type of service which it needs and which it does not now secure.

"From every point of view and, having in mind the welfare of the Commonwealth, the prosperity of our industries and the conservation of the young life of the State, this act should receive the kindly consideration and the hearty acceptance its beneficent provisions warrant."

"The Devil" at the Victoria To-day

"The Devil," in five parts, newest in the series of Mutual masterpieces, is a production which accords in every way with the Mutual Film Corporation's recently announced policy of providing the public with "better motion pictures." This remarkable drama, while it is based in part on Franz Molnar's drama, is so greatly elaborated and so handsomely produced by Thomas G. Ince, of the New York Motion Picture Corporation, that it bears only a resemblance to the speaking stage version of the Hungarian playwright's work. From the early drawing room scenes, wherein the Devil dissolves in and out of the picture apparently at will, to the marvelous pictures showing the nether regions at the close of the final part, the hand of real genius is visible. "The Devil" is one of the great Mutual masterpieces we're showing and, if you have seen the play itself, you'll want to see it reacted on the screen by some of the best movie actors of the day.

At the Regent Theatre

Daniel Frohman presents Mary Pickford in "Such a Little Queen" at the Regent Theatre for two days, this afternoon, this evening and to-morrow, the famous comedy-drama by the Chaning Pollock in five reels of motion pictures. Miss Mary Pickford does not need any introductions to the picture lovers of Harrisburg, including other two-reel comedies, which are always clean and wholesome where they are bound to please you. This is the last day for the Lusitania, the fatal ship in moving pictures.

The only authentic motion picture of the Cunard liner Lusitania leaving New York on her fatal voyage, showing all the notables, including Eibert Hubbard, where Mr. Hubbard told the moving picture cameraman that he will see this moving picture in London.—Adv.

Start Repairing Alaskan Railway

By Associated Press.

Seward, Alaska, May 14.—A detachment of government engineers to-day started the work of repairing the line of the Alaska northern railway which was recently purchased by the government. It will form a link in the government railroad for which Congress appropriated $25,000,000. The engineering commission expect to open the line for use by gasoline cars in a few days.

Acheson Heads College of Women

By Associated Press.

Pittsburgh, May 14.—Dr. John C. Acheson was to-day inaugurated as president of the Pennsylvania College of Women. Representatives from fifty universities and educational institutions attended the ceremony. A banquet will be given to-night in honor of the visiting educators. Dr. Acheson was formerly president of the Kentucky College for Women.

CALLS ON THE HOUSE TO SUPPORT THE PRESIDENT

A resolution pledging the State's support to the President in the controversy about the Lusitania was presented in the House of Representatives late yesterday by Mr. Baldwin, of Delaware. Objection was raised to immediate consideration and the resolution was laid over for printing. The resolution follows:

"The General Assembly of the State of Pennsylvania sends you this expression of encouragement and approval of the honorable and statesmanlike manner in which you have administered the affairs of the republic during the months in which Europe has been engulfed in the most terrible war of history.

"Your efforts, during these hours of grave peril, to steer the ship of state with due regard for both safety and honor, command the respect and admiration of the American people.

"For the German peoples of every land we have the greatest regard, re-

George Niper Has Lived Nearly a Century in One Cabin

Stanhope, N. J., May 14.—George Niper celebrated his 107th birthday Wednesday in the little cabin near the old Stanhope reservoir, where he has lived for nearly a century. His youngest son, Thul, 64 years old, lives with him.

Niper was born in Pennsylvania. His father was a charcoal burner. Niper makes ax handles for a living. He has smoked and chewed tobacco since he was 12, and says he thinks he has lived so long because he has been a moderate user of tobacco and alcohol. He has never been seriously ill.

He voted for Andrew Jackson for President and has voted in 94 elections, each time for the Democratic ticket, though all his six sons are Republicans. He was married when he was 21, and his wife died fifteen years ago at the age of 90.

Niper's father died when he was 99 years old, and his mother lived to be 97. Despite his great age, he frequently walks ten miles to visit friends, and says walking is the best exercise, except work.

WIFE'S PLEA AGAINST HUSBAND WHO SHUNNED WATER WINS IN COURT

Muncie, Ind., May 14.—As a reason why a divorce from James Stanley should be given her, Mrs. Emma Stanley says he never would bathe in winter and seldom at other times except, occasionally, his feet. This latter operation was performed about once a month. She averred Stanley, who was in the Superior Court to answer his wife's complaint, admitted his abusions were infrequent and said on cross-examination the reason of his failure to bathe in winter was because of his fear of catching cold.

Judge VanAtta thought the wife had made out a case of cruel and inhuman treatment within the meaning of the statutes and awarded her a decree.

To Make Hairs Vanish From Face, Neck or Arms

Keep a little powdered delatone handy and when hairy growths appear make a paste with some of the powder and a little water, then spread over hairy surface. After 2 or 3 minutes rub off, wash the skin and it will be entirely free from hair or blemish. This simple treatment is unailing, but care should be exercised to be sure and get genuine delatone, otherwise you may be disappointed.—Adv.

BROTHER'S BLOOD FAILS

New York, May 14.—Otto F. Fleischmann, president of the Fleischmann Vehicle Company, and son of the founder of the Fleischmann bakery business and its famous bread line, died late yesterday from the revolver shot he fired into his breast in the Holland House Wednesday. His brother, Raoul, Wednesday night gave up a pint of his blood in a transfusion operation, which it was hoped might save his life, but the sacrifice was in vain.

Fleischmann was 34 years old and had been suffering from a nervous complaint for several years.
