NEWS OF STEELTON

THE GIANT OF STEELTON IS OUTLINED BY HILLIS

A Lucid Sermon, Punctuated With Pertinent Sentences, Was an Interesting Feature of the Services Held in the Tabernacle Last Evening

According to a statement made by the Rev. C. E. Hillis at the opening of the tabernacle meeting last evening, the cottage prayer meetings are taking on life and invitations are coming from the homes of the unsaved for these meetings.

Mrs. Hillis spoke to a large number of women and girls in the tabernacle this afternoon on the subject, "The Model Woman." The large booster chorus will be present at the meeting this evening at 7:45 to sing.

Evangelist Hillis took for his text last night "Behold the Lamb of God, which taketh away the sin of the world." He said: "The greatest giant in Steelton is sin. I believe in a personal devil, because there are so many little devils everywhere. The devil is at work in Steelton, and he is working through some church members here who are trying to block the progress of this campaign. I would rather be right than to be popular. John the Baptist got his head cut off for preaching the gospel, but he did not lose his soul. What we need to-day is to get back to the old-time preaching on sin."

"There were men here last night who bit their lips until the blood almost oozed out. Why? Because they were struggling with the devil. It is sin, man, who holds you in your seat and will not allow you to go up these aisles and confess Jesus Christ. I see a man lying in the gutter drunk. Did God make him thus? No, the devil did that. If I had my way with some of the men who are publishing some of the cheap literature, I would shut them off forever. We call ourselves a Christian nation. That is a blank lie. Eighty-five per cent. of the people of this land are not Christians."

"Before the sun rises to-morrow 170 girls will be sacrificed on the altar of the white slave curse. The devil even comes to ministers and tries to get them not to do what God tells them to do. The great enemy in our homes is sin. The time to begin to fight sin is at the cradle. From the moment of your child's birth the devil goes to work to get it. You can't begin too early to tell him about Jesus. A boy or girl is old enough to be a Christian when they are old enough to sin. Don't stand in the way of your child's conversion. There are some men and women in Steelton to-day with characters black enough to make a black mark on a piece of tar paper.

"Sin robs a man of peace. Sin shuts you out of heaven. Sin is the cause of all crime, misery and disease. All the disease that this old world knows can be traced to sin. Take sin out of America and we will be on the way to everlasting prosperity. Sin is in the world, but there is a cure for sin. 'Behold the Lamb of God which taketh away the sin of the world.' The only hope for you and me is in the atonement blood of Jesus Christ. It may be the sin of morality that is damning your soul. Whatever your sin is, you can be saved by surrendering your will to Jesus Christ."

To-morrow afternoon at 2:30, the Rev. Mr. Hillis will address a meeting for men only in the tabernacle on the subject, "Facts for Men to Face." At 2:30 Sunday afternoon Mrs. Hillis will speak to women in the Centenary U. B. church on "Faith's Persistence." The Rev. Mr. Hillis will speak in the tabernacle Sunday evening at 7:30 o'clock on "Hell, What Sort of a Place It Is, and How to Get There."

JOHN BIRKINBINE, NOTED ENGINEER, IS DEAD AT 71

and it was through his influence, and largely on account of the high ideals set by him, that the Water Supply Commission has been able to develop as it has. Mr. Birkinbine was a friend of long standing of the present Governor. Three of his sons have been in their father's office in Philadelphia for several years.

Among the water works systems which Mr. Birkinbine and his father, the late H. P. M. Birkinbine, designed and constructed, were those of Harrisburg, York, Chambersburg, Oil City, and many other Pennsylvania cities.

Mr. Birkinbine had been ill for about two months having first been taken ill while in Harrisburg attending a meeting of the Water Supply Commission. He had been confined to his home practically ever since.

Mr. Birkinbine was born in Philadelphia in 1844 and was the eldest son of the late H. P. M. Birkinbine, widely recognized as an authority on hydraulic engineering. He was educated in public and private schools of Philadelphia and the Polytechnic College of Pennsylvania. He served with the Union army in 1863-4, and at the close of the war became assistant to his father, who was then engineer of the Philadelphia water supply.

Early in his career he was associated with the firm of Weimer & Birkinbine, which operated the Weimer machine works at Lebanon. Later, as manager of the South Mountain Mining and Iron Company, he experimented with excellent results, in various fields for iron smelting. Much of his work as an engineer has been in mining, metallurgy and blast furnace construction.

He had been sent for expert examination in this field to every State in the Union and in Canada and Mexico. He was intimately concerned with the engineering problems and the mining industry in Mexico.

For some years Mr. Birkinbine was consulting engineer for the Philadelphia and Reading Iron Company and held a similar position with the Colorado Fuel and Iron Company and with Withaber, Sherman & Co. Thomas A. Edison engaged him in the same capacity in his early experiments on magnetic concentration of iron ore.

Mr. Birkinbine took a leading part in the formation of the Pennsylvania Forestry Association, and had been its president for twenty-three years.

He was a member of the Engineers' Clubs of Philadelphia and New York, the American Society for Testing Materials, the Manufacturers' Club, and an honorary member of the Canadian Mining Institute. He was president of the Engineers' Club, of Philadelphia, in 1893.

PERRY COUNTY TO BE "WET" AGAIN

cision was to determine all of the ten cases wherein the law judge objected only to the form of the license applications. The Superior Court ruling does not have hearing on the six licenses denied on the grounds of "irregularities" or lack of "necessity" for the liquor establishments.

The ten licenses will be issued as soon as the Superior Court decision is received by the clerk of the Perry county courts. Some persons were of the opinion that the papers would arrive late to-day and that the licenses would be granted forthwith.

The half dozen cases in which the Appellate Court's decision will not apply include that of a bottler who withdrew his application on the day of the annual license court; one in which a hotelman was charged with violations of the law and four cases in which Judge Seibert ruled the bars are not necessary.

A case similar to that of Perry county which was appealed from the Tioga county courts, where 24 licenses were not granted, was decided by the Superior Court in a like manner. These licenses all will be granted also.

In another decision the Superior Court issued a mandamus directing the Commissioners of Somerset county to maintain an abandoned road. The Appellate Court also ordered the release of Henry O. Hess, of Blair county, from the Western Penitentiary. In that case the court sustained the contention of Hess' lawyers that the defendant should have been imprisoned in the Blair county jail instead of the Penitentiary.

CAMERA SHOWS UMPIRES MAY ERR

When "Bill" Byron arbitrarily called out Fred Mollwitz at third in the seventh inning of a game between the Giants and the Cincinnati at the Polo Ground, New York, he aroused the ire of the Cincinnati club, who, to a man, assert Byron guessed wrong. The above snapshot of the play that sent two Reds to the club house and caused anger to the visitors seems to prove Mollwitz as safe. In the photograph Mollwitz's hand is seen just about to touch the bag. Lobert apparently has just received the ball and has not started to swing around to touch the runner. "Tuba" Benton already is calling the man safe, as his outspread hands would indicate. Byron is seen directly behind Lobert, whose back hides the full play from the umpire, which condition might have made it impossible for Byron to judge correctly of the play.

Calling on Wilson
The average person who calls on the President is in no hurry to leave, and the less important his errand the longer he takes to explain it. President Wilson listens patiently, although perhaps with little enjoyment; then he gets up and moves toward the door, and it must be a very obtuse person who cannot take the hint, and if something more than a hint is needed then the President shake hands with him, but it is done graciously and in a way that is flattering to the person who without knowing it is being dismissed.—New York Telegram.
