The Nissley bill providing for an additional law judge for Dauphin county, died in the closing hours of the Legislature.

The bill went through the House swimmingly and got into the Senate where it was hung up for some time in committee. It was finally brought out to the light of day and got a place on the calendar, but there it remained after it reached the third reading stage, being marked "postponed for the present."

It might just as well have been labeled "a dead one," for it was never called up, and finally on to-day's calendar it occupied an inconspicuous position at the bottom of all the bills.

The Senate last night passed every bill, but when it reached the "third judge" measure, it halted about 2 o'clock this morning and adjourned, and with the adjournment the Nissley bill died.

It is understood that the contention that it was looked upon with disfavor by the judges of Dauphin is what contributed to the downfall of the measure.

MINE STRIKE SETTLED. Men at Another Colliery in Wilkes-Barre District Quit Work.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., May 20.—About 2,000 mine men and boys employed by the Lehigh and Wilkes-Barre Coal Company at the Maxwell and the No. 4 collieries of that company returned to their work yesterday after strikes had been in progress for several days.

At the same time 1,000 men and boys employed at the Lance colliery of the same company, located at Plymouth, went out on a button strike and are idle to-day. Trouble is also threatened at the Empire colliery.

The strike at No. 4 mine was called last week as a result of the company inaugurating a new checking system, and the same cause is threatening trouble at the Empire, where about 700 men and boys are employed. The strike at the Lance colliery started when a few men refused to join the union.

HOUSE IS JOLLY IN CLOSING HOURS

Members Bombarded With File Paper in Fun-making Session Lasting Till Morning

ANTI-FUSION BILL IS PASSED

Lower Branch, However, Fails to Concur in Senate Amendments Adding $2,500,000 to the Appropriations and Measure Is Sent to Conference

The House of Representatives did not have a "calendar" last night, but from 9 o'clock in the evening until 1.45 o'clock this morning there was a "session" of jollity, fun and not a little horseplay. Sandwiched between the hurrying of bits of file paper about was the transaction of a little business, but roll calls were a tiresome procedure.

After a session of song, in which the Rev. Thomas W. Davis, chaplain of the Senate, occupied the Speaker's chair and sang the solo parts, the McNichol anti-fusion bill was called up and passed by a vote of 144 to 50. This bill prevents a candidate from withdrawing from the ticket after he is nominated at the primaries.

There was a parade, in which Mr. Shaaber, of Berks, a Grand Army man of the House, bore the United States flag. He was escorted to the Speaker's rostrum and gave Lincoln's Gettysburg address. The House settled down to business and passed the salary-raiser of the House clerks by a vote of 115 to 75.

The "Peerless Quartet," four young colored boys of Harrisburg, was given a place of honor on the newspaper desks at the front of the hall and rendered several late selections feelingly. Representative A. C. Stein, of Allegheny, took up a collection for the quartet. During the evening paper hats made their appearance and members wore them until knocked off by other boisterous members with paper from the files.

There were several interesting "fights" during the evening, when various members were sought out as targets for the paper missiles. Mr. Cromer, of Allegheny, put up the strongest defense, but he was forced finally to capitulate when the general appropriation bill, which had just been filed, was thrown at him. This bill is one of the largest of the session and makes splendid ammunition.

$2,500,000 Added to Bill. Many of the members disposed of the appropriation bill without examining it, but the watchful ones discovered that the Senate had added $2,500,000 to it and in the final business of the evening the House failed to concur in the Senate amendments, making the appointment of a conference committee necessary.

At midnight the House recessed to allow the members to partake of a buffet luncheon arranged by Thomas H. Garvin, chief clerk. It was served in the basement of the south wing. It was 1 o'clock when the House reconvened and a forty-five-minute session of fun ended the jollification.

The galleries were filled with Harrisburg people who witnessed the closing jollity. Many of the members had brought on their wives and families, who had places along the sides and at the front of the hall.

Senate Starts Work Early. The Senate early this morning began its Thursday session, after adjourning at 11.55 p. m. yesterday for Wednesday. Immediately Mr. Vane offered a resolution creating an Economy and Efficiency Commission, to be composed of Governor Brumbaugh, Attorney General Brown and Auditor General Powell, which is empowered to complete the number, character and compensation of all persons in the employ of the State and to recommend whatever changes are necessary and report to the next Legislature.

Report to Succeed Judge Umbel. Governor Brumbaugh last night appointed Edmund H. Reppert, of Uniontown, to be Judge of the courts of Fayette county to succeed Judge Robert E. Umbel, who resigned.

BIG ANNIVERSARY SALE

Ladies' Bazaar Will Celebrate Five Years of Continuous Success With Big Bargain Event

Five years ago Mr. Morris Schondorf started the Ladies' Bazaar at the present location on South Fourth street. The beginning was very modest and the premises occupied were small compared with those occupied by the store to-day. Mr. Schondorf started with the fixed policy of giving extra values for the money. His long experience in manufacturing and his knowledge of the markets put him in a position of securing special lots, and in many instances extraordinary price concessions. These advantages he has generously shared with the public, and the result has been so much appreciated that the store has been enlarged on several occasions to meet the rapid growth of the business. To-day it occupies commodious quarters and carries a stock that is so large and so complete that it affords the widest range for making satisfactory selections.

The business some time ago reached such proportions that Mr. Irving E. Robinson, formerly connected with large cloak and suit houses in Boston and later with the Kaufman stores in this city, was made manager. With characteristic energy, Mr. Robinson is rendering valuable service and the volume of trade continues to grow at a most satisfactory rate.

To commemorate the fifth anniversary, a big sale will be held, beginning to-morrow. To show the appreciation of the liberal patronage extended to the store during the past, there will be eight days of extraordinary value-giving.
