Is the Greenback party disappearing from its stronghold—Elmira? In the Fall of 1878 the Greenback candidate for Assembly received 3,400 votes; last November he received 2,200; Tuesday the local election was held and the telegraph reports that "a few hundred" votes were cast for the Greenback candidate.

About a year and a half ago Eugene O'Keefe opened a clothing store at Millerstown, Butler Co. He made a little money, and invested it in an oil-well, rapidly increased his capital until he was worth, according to the local estimate, $20,000 or $25,000. Last fall he was prostrated with a disease of the lungs, and, being single and having no relatives in the place, suffered for a time for lack of proper care. Miss Mary E. Logan, who kept a restaurant near O'Keefe's office, where he was lying sick, hearing that he had insufficient nursing, offered her services, and under her care he grew better rapidly and was finally able to get about. He concluded to go South for a time hoping to recover his health. Before going away, however, he made a will, which, properly signed and witnessed, he placed in a sealed envelope, with directions to Father Quilter, its custodian, to open it in presence of his lawyer, in case they received word that he was dead. On Thursday last the news was received from Dallas, Texas, that Mr. O'Keefe had died in that Place. The will has been opened. All of the property, real and personal, of the deceased man is unconditionally bequeathed to Miss Logan. The estate consists of 18,000 barrels of oil, the oil-well and other property amounting to about $25,000.

W. H. Cummings, general western freight agent of the New York Central Railway, dropped dead at a hotel in Buffalo last night.
