A Lodge of K. of H., has been organized at Monroeton.

An Owego barber was fined $3.10 for shaving a man last Sunday.

The Fountain House, at Slaterville, has been sold to Prof. VENOY, of Canada.

ROSENFELD finds his store too circumscribed, and will make a large addition.

The "Wednesday Club" is a new organization in Towanda, and has for its object literary and dramatic culture. It is composed of some of our best citizens, and will doubtless result in benefit, not only to its members, but literary people generally. The officers are:

President—Doctor D. L. PRATT.
Vice President—Mrs. HENRY MERCUR.
Cor. Sec'y—Mrs. ANGIE POPE.
Sec'y and Treas.—E. L. HILLIS.
Meetings are held semi-monthly, at the homes of members.

AN OLD STORY.—Mr. W. DITTRICH, a prosperous grocer of Towanda, was in the city yesterday. His first appearance here was thirty years ago, when as a musician he came with the Powell Theatre Company in a stage across the mountain. Wilkes-Barre was too small a place in those days to support a public hall, and the troop went to South Wilkes-Barre, erected a frame building and began a two week's engagement. It is not surprising to know that the company came to grief financially. Mr. DITTRICH and the two other musicians who composed the orchestra, were penniless, but not disheartened. They started out to serenade different ladies in this town and Kingston. In two nights they realized $189, which sum was sufficient to pay their bills and take them away. The party boarded at the Phoenix Hotel, which stood where the Wyoming Hotel is now. Wilkes-Barre appreciated good music thirty-two years ago, and did not value cheap theatrical performances.—Wilkes-Barre Record.

Owego Blade.—In looking over Towanda papers we now and then see the honorable mention of LAWRENCE HOLLERAN. Now, there is nothing strange in this; but as that is the home of our younger days, it brings a retrospective thought to our mind, some fifteen or sixteen years ago, and we wonder if this is not the one and same LARRA, the genial, social Knight of St. Crispin, the man who never forgets to be a gentleman, with whom in our erst-while days used to take—and here we confess it—a social glass of "Murry's auld potthene," and pass a pleasant hour. When the war for the Union called for troops, he went to the front. We have not seen him [since, but we know he made a good soldier, as he was a good citizen. It is some years since we saw in a paper that he had gone back to the "Green Isle," where he was to make his future home. So we take it for granted that Towanda had attractions for him, as he returned to that place. But here we must stop, for the years that have come and gone have been fraught with many pleasant scenes and sad incidents of which we have neither time nor space to mention. Suffice it to say, should a future occasion permit us to cross palms with LAWRENCE, it would be our greatest pleasure.

The Committee of arrangements of Watkins Post, received a telegram last night changing the time of General KILPATRICK'S lecture from March 18th, as previously announced, to Friday, March 19th. Remember the change.

At the meeting of the "Wednesday Club," held at Col. MASON'S on Wednesday evening, one of the lady members who had been appointed writer of "local news" favored the Club with a poetical effusion which was so well received by the members that it was solicited for publication in the REVIEW. It is a clever effort, and we hope it may be followed by many others.

Beyond this world there is a sphere,
As some believe, or hope, or fear,
According as their fancies lean
To things material or unscen,
Where mortals from this world departed,
Upon a new and strange life started,
Enjoy those scenes of heavenly rest,
Among the mansions of the blest—
Prepared for those who here below,
Through narrow paths, and straight do go;
Or, having in their earthly state
Preferred the wide and easy gate
In purgatory meditate,
Upon the stolen waters sweet,
And secret bread which here they eat,
Lamenting that the after taste
Of food they chose in thoughtless haste,
Should be so bitter. And no device
Could save them from the consequences,
In wretched thoughts, and tortured senses,
Of actions "naughty, yet so nice."
It happens there as here,
Friendships are formed both sweet and dear,
That birds and fowls of kindred feather
As here below, flock together.
The spheres divide in little coteries—
Art and science have their rotaries—
The gossips still their trade pursue,
And grind forever slander's mill,
For 'tis a truth that is not new,
The filthy will be filthy still.
One difference great, in realms of space,
That each soul fits in its own place.
A set of selves are kept on hand,
In places high, and each new band
Of comers miscellaneous,
Are in them instantaneously shaken.
They fit the shape of all poor souls,
Which, after passing through the holes,
Are sorted out according to their size—
A company both good and wise.
But evil hearts in form are changed;
The wondrous selves are so arranged
These wicked souls catch fast and stick,
Because with sin they have grown thick.
It happened once upon a time,
A fresh arrival in this clime,
Became the cause of some commotion
Among those spirits whose devotion,
To mundane matters was conspicuous,
And in a spirit quite ridiculous,
From regions near the Susquehanna—
A river finer than Abana—
That Naaman loved in days of old.
This Spirit came and thus was told
That it was bound to freely speak to those around
Its knowledge and own private views
Upon the subject of local news,
The new arrival begged to state
In life and thoughts 'twas most sedate;
Of rumors flying, it had heard,
And treasured an occasional word,
It thought, but still would not insist
That some in town were fond of Whist.
The schools had ceased the use of hickory;
The dancing club was called Tepsichore;
While others had become fanatic
Over the art they called Dramatic.
In politics we've had Conventions,
Discussing much their good intention
To make some wise and fit selection,
To vote for at the next election.
Among the classes and conditions
Are found, of course, the town's musicians,
To give their lives variety,
They've formed a Musical Society.
But nothing's had the great attraction,
And given the happy satisfaction,
Afforded by the class in reading,
Which some how failed to keep proceeding.
To give this subject of local news,
Its full, complete, and proper dues,
"I feel incompetent," the Spirit said,
"This topic grave—I've scarce the head
To comprehend. The Reporter's part—
Is far too great—I've not the art.
Let Argus, with his hundred eyes,
Who sees all thoughts, all smiles, all sighs,
A Journal be of weekly information,
To tell what's passing in the nation.
It may not be Republican,
But politics are under ban;
Then, if you wish something new,
I refer you to the Daily Review."

Our former townsman, Prof. FRANK SMALLEY, of Syracuse University, has just published a work entitled "Smalley's Latin Analysis," which has received the approval and commendation of some of the foremost scholars of the country. We congratulate the Professor on his success as an author. The work is designed especially for a text book, and we have no doubt will come into general use in high schools and colleges.
