FRANK SHUMAN, one of the employes in Frost's factory, buried his wife yesterday.

To-morrow is Good Friday, and is a legal holiday.

WEATHER INDICATIONS FOR TO-DAY.—Clear and partly cloudy weather; colder west, veering to warmer south-east winds; rising followed by falling barometer.

There will be a rehearsal of the Sunday School music for Easter at Christ Church this afternoon at 4 o'clock. Teachers and scholars please take notice.

E. D. BRONSON, photographer with A. J. FISHER, like all sensible young men has taken to himself a wife—Miss FLEMING, of Forksville, Sullivan county.

C. N. BEERS is acknowledged to be the champion maple sugar maker. He brought the first he has made this year over yesterday, and FITCH, the confectioner, bought it, paying several cents per pound in advance of the ruling price.

One of our school teachers recently electrified her pupils, who were annoying her with questions, "Children, I am engaged." Noticing the general look of astonishment she added, "but not to any fool of a man," and the excitement died away.

ATHENS, March 24, 1880.

Dispatches received last night announced the death of Mr. AUSTIN KINNER, in Kansas, whither he went a short time since in hopes of recovering his health. Though not unexpected, it is a severe trial to his parents and friends. His remains will be brought home for burial.

LIZZIE, daughter of Mr. J. A. BRISTOL, slipped upon the pavement and fell upon a limb, breaking it near the ankle, this morning.

The cases of diphtheria recently reported are corroborated—they were not severe. No further cases reported.

WILL.

A Lawrenceville, Pa., correspondent of the Elmira Advertiser writes under date of March 23:

"A double and terrible tragedy took place one mile and a half west of this village, at the house of John Nelson, this afternoon at about 5 o'clock. Sidney Green married H. B. Colegrove's daughter Sattie about six years ago. After living together about one week, it is said he began abusing her, after which she left him and went west. After an absence of about six years she returned home, arriving upon the 9th of March.

Upon learning of the arrival of his wife Mr. Green, as shown by a letter found upon his person, bearing date of the 16th inst., began to premeditate the tragedy, and obtained an interview with his wife to-day, at Nelson's house, at five o'clock this afternoon. During the interview he drew a revolver and fired at her twice, in the room, when she ran out of the house followed by Green, who fired at her three times more. Two bullets took effect, one in the breast, and the other in the head, killing her almost instantly.

Green started to run, but he was met by H. B. Colegrove and Wm. Davis, when he shot himself through the head, above the temple, and died in about one hour. The greatest excitement exists in this community over the event.

Congratulations are now in order, and we most heartily tender ours to Mr. and Mrs. JOHN E. FOX, of this place, on the advent of their first born. The new comer is a dear little girl, weighing just 9 pounds and 8 ounces, of course, and put in an appearance yesterday afternoon. Long life to the little one, and many repetitions of the happy event to the proud parents, were the sentiments which took possession of us as we didn't smoke the fragrant Havans which we found on our table last evening.

We copy the following obituary written by Doctor STEWART, on the death of Mrs. W. C. BOGART, from the Reporter of this week:

This unexpected event terminated a life characterized by remarkable human attractions and Christian grace. Of Mrs. BOGART it may be said:

"None knew thee but to love thee,
None name thee but to praise."

In the fall of 1839, a young wife, she accompanied her husband to Towanda, and always after resided in this place. Shortly after coming here she united with the Presbyterian church, then under the care of Rev. JULIUS FOSTER, and in all her works and conversation lived as becometh the gospel of Christ in God. He was to her the chiefest among ten thousand, and the one altogether lovely. This is the concurrent testimony of all who knew her; that she was a humble, devoted, lovely Christian, who strove always to be acceptable to God, and to do good unto men.

What she was in the immediate circle of her family none can ever tell. Her life adorned her home, and was an honor and a blessing to her husband and children. She was remarkably free from those moods and changes to which many good people are unfortunately subject. Her gentleness, patience, kindness and charity were proverbial: She influenced those about her, rather by her goodness and love, than by force or menace. Her power was as soft and persuasive as that of the sunlight or dew: it was a plastic influence that told powerfully upon the formation of the characters intrusted to her. Faithfulness was the law of her life. No known duty was disregarded, whatever its fulfillment cost her of exertion or of suffering. To the last she bore upon her soul the burden of her responsibility before God.

In all the trying circumstances of her sickness and decline, her cheerfulness abounded. It seemed as if her gentle spirit grew more bright and cheerful as the fires of physical suffering waxed fierce. She received every act of love and deed of ministry with thankfulness and endearing love. It is no wonder that her family miss and mourn her. She was the light of the household; a savor of light and joy to those who communed with her thankful spirit.

And as her life, so was her death. She leaned wholly upon the beloved. No doubt of the truth of Christianity, or of her personal interest in the Saviour ever for a moment disturbed her mind. She knew whom she believed, and was persuaded that He would keep that which she had committed to Him against the day of judgment. Her resignation was complete. Dearly as she had loved her family—much as she wished to live for their sakes—she was fully ready when the Master called—and death came as a sleep. The angel's wings stirred not the quiet air of her chamber. Her death was like the strewing of rose's petals upon the grass. "And I heard a voice from heaven saying unto me, 'Write, Blessed are the dead that die in the Lord from henceforth: yea saith the Spirit, that they may rest from their labors: and their works do follow them.'"
