Our New Senator.

A Press correspondent gives this quite faithful pen-picture of Hon. John I. Mitchell, the new U.S. Senator:

"John I. Mitchell is about five feet ten inches high and rather stout. His face is round and full and always wears an expression of good nature. He wears chin whiskers, which are light in color, has a handsome mouth, and he will be known as one of the good-looking Senators. He is a fair speaker, and though he would not be called an orator he always speaks to the point. At times, as on one occasion when he had a wordy encounter with Speaker Patterson when a member of the Legislature, he shows that he has great force of expression. Among his friends Mr. Mitchell is not regarded as a hard worker, indeed, he is said to incline rather to indolence. He has the habit of running his hands through his hair, which gives his head a bushy appearance. He has kept entirely aloof from the present Senatorial contest, and has hardly been Is there. considered a possible dark horse, having been in Harrisburg but twice this winter. He was supposed to be a supporter of General Beaver, and, it is said, endeavored to secure the representatives of his county to that gentleman about ten days ago, but he was not successful."

Hon. H. H. Rockwell, a leading Democrat of Elmira, but an intimate acquaintance of Mr. Mitchell, pays him this high compliment in a recent number of the Elmira Gazette: "Having been associated with him as school boy and school teacher, and been thrown in contact with him in the army, and having known him as editor, lawyer and legislator summer and winter for twenty-five years, we can cheetfully testify that in point of honestyability. mental culture and knowledge of public affairs, Mr. Mitchell will worthily fill the position and rank with the best of his peers in the United States Senate. His many friencs in this city coegratulate him, and none more heartily than those friends of his boyhood who are now his political oponents. The Gazette feels a personal pride in this matter, not only for reasons which are apparent in what has already been written, but from the fact that its business manager and Mr. Mitchell were early friends and sehool teachers together in Tioga county twenty years ago."

The Albany Journal comments thus on the adaptability of Gen. Garfield to the situation. "There is a great difference, in one respect, between a canal driver and a President of the United States. The former must be outspoken with the mules he is driving but the latter is not obliged to be equally communicative with the donkeys who visit him. A silent mule-driver would be as unfitted for his work as a garrulous President. M. Garfield, whether a "Jim" or "General," has always had the faculty of adapting him self to the proprieties of the occasion."

There is great commotion all over the country on account of the passage of the Rsfunding bill by the Senate in substantially the same shape it came from the House. The Democrats have seemed to take delight in disturbing business circles and interests as much as possible ever since they have been in control in Congress, and the last hours of their power are proving no exception to the rule.

The President has signed the Naval Appropriation bill, and also the bill transferring the management of the affairs of the Freedmen's Bank to the Comptroller of the Currency.
