Ramsdell, the talented and candid Washington correspondent of the Philadelphia Times thus photographs Senator Mitchell. The faithfulness of the likeness will be recognized by "John's" friends, among whom we have the honor to be classed:

"Pennsylvania has at last found a colleague for Mr. Cameron in the Senate. It is the fashion now to smile at the selection, but the choice of John I. Mitchell is a piece of luck of which the State will one day be proud. Mr. Mitchell is not a showy man, but he is staunch. Twenty years ago, less about two months I met John Mitchell for the first time. He had a musket on his shoulder and stood side by side with me in Camp Curtin, at Harrisburg, as fine a specimen of noble young manhood as I ever saw. He was then a little over twenty years old, large, well built, rosy-checked, light-haired, honest-faced and altogether as manly a fellow as ever touched elbows to the left. He had taught school some, had studied law some and had scribbled for the newspapers some. His handsome manuscript had passed under my eye long before in the Agitator office, at Wellsboro'. His army experience was not brilliant, but he earned the bars of a captain by conscientiously doing his duty. When he left the army he went again to the law and for a time he edited the Agitator. As an editor he was not particularly brilliant. Of his legislative experience at Harrisburg you know more than I do. He has been four years in the lower house of Congress and he has scarcely a colleague who is not better known among his associates and by the country. He has made but one or two speeches, and these have attracted little attention. But this is nothing to his discredit. The biggest blatherskite is always the one who attracts the most attention. Mitchell is not a politician nor a profound statesman, but he has qualities that will place him far ahead of his colleague among substantial thinking people. He is not an orator, but his integrity has never been questioned and no man ever knew him to break his word. He will not undertake to lead public sentiment or control political conventions, but he will do his own thinking and he will never be known as Don Cameron's Mitchell. The papers have been wrong in saying he would be Cameron's man."

Postmaster-General Maynard is reported as saying to Senator Hamlin that he had been a quarter of a century in public life, and that he is now poorer than when he began. The Senator replied: "Well, I am not. I had nothing when I commenced, and I have nothing now." The higher offices of Government, whether state or national, by reason of their honor, conspicuity, and influence, are eagerly sought by those who love to appear before the public. The ambition is by no means ignoble and unworthy. Almost any one would be willing to be President, or be a member of his Cabinet, or have a seat in either house of Congress. And yet experience shows that office-holding, even of the higher grades, is very far from being what most men take it to be. And when we descend to the lower grades where there are but few honors and the services are for the most part merely clerical, the general truth is that no one secures to himself as many benefits as he loses by office-holding. The walks of virtuous business industry will, for a rule, offer more opportunities for what men call success in life than the offices of Government; and they are attended with less wear and tear of human nature. One who can achieve a decided success as an office-holder would, in the simple matter of money-making, do vastly better for himself and his family as a private citizen.

A FEW FACTS in regard to the White Sewing Machine.

It is an acknowledged fact that the White Sewing Machine now stands pre-eminent among first-class machines, for its simplicity and light-running qualities. It is a mechanical fact that the White Sewing Machine is made from the best material and of excellent workmanship, and all its wearing parts are adjustable, so that lost motion can be "taken up" in an instant. It is an undisputed fact that the durability of the White Sewing Machine is sustained by a written warranty for five years. It is a progressive fact that the White embodies the most practical and useful improvements of other sewing machines, together with advantages peculiarly its own. It is a money-making fact that the White is the easiest-selling selling machine in the market, and therefore all wide-awake dealers make it their specialty. It is a gratifying fact that the White gives universal satisfaction, and that it is steadily and rapidly increasing in public favor.

CAUTION. Do not be imposed upon by agents and parties who are interested in the purchase and sale of other machines. It has become a common trick for unscrupulous competitors to get a White machine and put it in bad order so that they might prejudice purchasers against it and in favor of their own machines. To guard against such contemptible trickery, we advise all intending purchasers to correspond with us direct, and we will take pleasure in giving them the address of a regular authorized dealer for the "White" in their county, or we will offer to sell them a machine direct at special prices, and guarantee satisfaction in every respect.
