Without a dissenting voice the press praise that artistic company headed by Miss HELEN POTTER, and pronounce their entertainment the finest before the public.

S. WOODFORD having bought out the interest of his partner in the boot and shoe business, assures the public that he will continue in the trade, and as heretofore keep the best assortment of men's, women's and children's boots and shoes, and sell at the lowest prices.

We received quite a severe shock the other day which we note as a caution to newspaper men. Rev. J. BARTON FRENCH than whom is no bigger nor better man in town, is the popular Commander of the G. A. R., and after paying our little bill for printing for the Post deliberately turned and thanked us for the notices given. It has been so long since an event of that kind has happened that we were taken quite aback. It is some ten years or more ago since a rather verdant gentleman so far broke over the usual rules that govern the treatment of proprietors of newspapers by the outside public as to thank us for favors given. He has probably learned better now and we cannot remember that the offense has ever been repeated. Politicians, farmers, merchants, business men, teachers and churches, military, civil and religious organizations all come to a newspaper and get free notices of various kinds, but never think of making the slightest acknowledgement. One church in this town has had over five hundred free notices given it by the Gazette, but a few months ago by mistake a notice was erroneously given, when we were soundly berated for carelessness, but no hint given that we had ever deserved better. The idea that a newspaper deserves any consideration from those who have axes to grind is certainly a new one to the public.—Troy Gazette.

MORE WYALUSING BUSINESS HOUSES.—The Elmira Advertiser correspondent continues his reports from our thriving neighboring village Wyalusing. In Saturday's issue we find the following:

WYALUSING HOTEL.
It is scarcely necessary for me to name the proprietor of this excellent and well-kept house, for the happy and jolly "Morg" and his good wife are known far and near. Few men ever opened their doors to the public who were able by nature to make such a landlord as J. M. Brown. Full-souled, open-hearted and generous almost to a fault, he is one of that kind that make a success of anything they undertake. The hotel that bears his name is no exception. Filth and muss are to them unknown. Scrupulous neatness reigns supreme. The house is roomy, well appointed, well furnished and well kept. No one wonders that business men hurry through their work in other towns that they may come and "lodge" at Brown's. And then should a man be weary from hard toil through the day, one of those stories that this jolly landlord is noted for telling would be interspersed, convulsing all with merriment. There is a satisfaction in doing what is undertaken well, and if friend Brown is as well pleased with himself as Wyalusing is with her landlord, he is a happy man.
On the same side of the street, a few rods below, we notice the dry goods firm of

LEWIS & BROWN.
This is one of the oldest and best established houses in the county. For many years a very successful business has been carried on at this stand. Augustus Lewis, Esq., one of the most worthy and respected citizens of this place, and father of the junior member of the present firm, conducted a prosperous business here for many years, but having heavy lumber interests to look after, he gave way to the present firm. The members are Clinton Lewis and J. Miles Brown. Mr. Lewis had a former mercantile experience with his father and is a young man of excellent moral and business standing in the community. Mr. Brown came here from Maryland, and brought with him not only an abundance of funds upon which to do business but also a most savory reputation, being a man of reputation and refinement as well. They make an enterprising, active firm and will not be undersold in any department of their trade. In order to meet the demand upon them by their many customers they are obliged to carry a heavy supply of the best goods in the market. Buyers who visit at Lewis & Brown's expecting to be used genteelly and find the very best goods in their line at the very lowest prices, will not come away disappointed.
