The Germania Orchestra hops will only occur fortnightly now.

March certainly came in like a lion, but if it goes out like a lamb, the weather will have to moderate considerable.

Do not forget the entertainment to-night, at the Methodist Church parlors. Rev. GEO. C. JONES, former pastor, is expected to be present. Ice cream and cake will be served.

The demand for those improved Patent Eye Shades, has called for a new invoice of them, F. J. Calkins has them. They are good.

Loyal Sock Coal has become so popular in the market that foreign demand curtails the supply at home. There was none in this place yesterday—"not a pound," as CHARLEY urbanely informed half a dozen customers who called simultaneously for this quality of "black diamond," at Mr. MALLORY'S yard yesterday morning.

A MUSICAL BOX.

She's perfect to whirl with in a waltz;
And her shoulders show well on a soft divan,
As she lounges at night and spreads her silks,
And plays with her bracelets and flirts her fan.
Her duty this christian never omits!
She makes her calls and she leaves her cards,
And enchants a circle of half-fledged wits
And slim attaches and six-foot guards.
Is this the thing for a mother or wife?
Could love ever grow on such barren rocks!
Is this a companion to take for a wife!
One might as well marry a musical box.
You exhaust in a day her full extent;
'Tis the same little tinkle of tunes always;
You must wind her up with a compliment,
To be bored with the only airs she plays.
W. W. Story.

The April St. Nicholas, which has just come to hand, will be received with pleasure by its many juvenile readers. In illustrations and reading matter it is an excellent number, and the little folks will find something on every page to interest, amuse and entertain them. The several departments are each carefully edited and none but the choicest contributions are admitted. The puzzle department is an interesting feature, and the magazine is in every respect commendable. Published by Scribner & Co., 743 Broadway, New York. Three dollars per year; single number 25 cents.

TOILET—Neck dressing is a very important feature of the toilet, and helps greatly to give it character. No matter how elegant or how perfect the rest of the costume, if the neck is not properly and tastefully dressed the general effect is spoiled, and often in such a manner as to make the wearer look even dowdy. The large collars are the most simple means of effecting this object for those who are so fortunate as to be slender enough to wear them—for stout people cannot, or should not. The most artistic of these collars are embroidered upon German linen and edged with linen lace three inches in depth. These are for morning wear at home or when staying at a country house. The form is simple, round and deep, with straight sides, and a narrow upright band at the throat, which is embroidered also and edged with narrow lace. The handkerchiefs with deep double lace ruffles and jabot finish in front are used as much as ever. Ladies find them a great convenience in dressing up plain silk and satin dresses. The fashionable lace used in trimming them is the fine imitation Machin, the best imitation of real lace that has ever been made, except the new invention, which is said to perfectly reproduce the bobbin hand-made lace, the product of which has not yet appeared in the market. Linen cuffs (inside) have disappeared, and there are outside cuffs, but there is little demand for them. The narrow standing collars still used for walking dresses are straight or slightly rounded bands attached to a yoke, the upright corners held together with a gold stud or button. High dresses are cut a trifle lower now than formerly and the band at the throat is often omitted. This is particularly the case with indoor dresses, which are then finished with a fall of white lace put on full and turned over, one end forming a jabot in front.
