We are under obligations to Col. E. OVERTON for the following information in regard to the disposition of mail routes under the let ing. From the prices at which the contracts were awarded it is evident that there is not much of a bonanza in the business:

Sheshequin, to James T. Gibson, Barboursville, Knox co., Kv.; $281 per annum.

LeRayssville, Seneca L. Arnold, Towanda; $498.

Troy, James T. Gibson, Barboursville, Ky.; $727.

New Era, W. L. Argue, Washington, D. C.; $219.

Mehoopany, B. H. Brown, Skinner's Eddy, Pa.; $355.

Speaking of the arrest of Peter Herdic, of Williamsport, for perjury, the Banner says: "We are no apologists for Peter Herdic nor any of his misdeeds, but his arrest for perjury last week had no significance in this city. It was telegraphed abroad by some of his enemies, who should be his everlasting friends, for the purpose of doing him injury. If the case ever comes to trial, Peter will be found on hand to make answer to the serious charge which we are quite confident is regarded by him as a huge joke. We are also quite positive that he has not lost any sleep in consequence of this charge of perjury."

HOW DID IT GET THERE?—Mrs. DELONG'S house in North Towanda is supplied with water from a spring on A. H. KINGSBURY'S farm. The other day the water ceased to flow all of sudden. A visit to the fountain head disclosed the fact that the reservoir was full, and no reason could be assigned for the trouble. It was finally determined to examine the screen which protects the pipe where it connects with the spring. On pumping the water out, a live frog was found inside the screen and over the mouth of the pipe effectually preventing the entrance of water. As there was no possible chance for his frogship to have entered the pipe from the outlet, and the perforations in the screen are no larger than the openings in an ordinary sprinkler, the question is how did it get there.

In December, 1877, EWARD OVERTON, of Bradford county, was robbed of about $600 by RICHARD CONMEY. RICHARD was arrested, convicted of the crime and sentenced. After the conviction, but before the prisoner was sentenced, his father, JOHN CONMEY, had an interview with OVERTON. He imagined if he bought the prosecutor off his son would be freed. He therefore gave OVERTON $200 in money and his note for $450, on which suit was subsequently brought by OVERTON. The court below charged the jury in substance that if the note was given to repay the money stolen there was a good consideration. On this charge the jury rendered a verdict against CONMEY for $575. The Supreme Court reversed this decision yesterday, holding that under the circumstances there was no consideration for the note given by CONMEY, senior.—Philadelphia Times.
