President Garfield displays excellent sense in his reply to an address by the colored Republicans of Baltimore asking for a fair share of public patronage. The President answers, that in applications for public office the fitness and qualifications of the candidates would be considered, and that color, in and of itself, would be neither a recommendation nor a bar. That is exactly the right kind of talk, and it is for all the world precisely like President Garfield. He recognizes the absurdity of appointing a man to office, whether white or black, for the mere purpose of recognizing a race or class, and we are glad to know that he has the independence and frankness to say so. The colored people of Maryland are more zealous than discreet in urging their claims to recognition, and the pains they have taken to gain the attention of the President, savors more of a fondness for the loaves and fishes than it does of a patriotic devotion to principle. The colored Republicans of the South, as well as those of the North, are entitled to fair and liberal treatment in bestowment of official patronage, if they select the right sort of men from among themselves; but it is right and proper that they and others should understand that the mere color of a man's skin is not to be taken into account. "Is he honest? Is he capable?" These are the true tests, and they should be applied in all cases.

The Concord School of Philosophy are making plans for the coming season. This is the school that began under an apple tree in Rev. Alcott's yard. Those interested in Concord School of Philosophy will be glad to learn of the plans for the coming season. The names of William Henry Channing, Dr. Peabody, the late Prof. Pierce, and Mr. Emerson will be sadly missed from the accustomed announcement by their admirers. It is possible, however, that Mr. Emerson may read his short paper on Carlyle. Among the new lecturers are President Porter and possibly Drs. McCosh and Hopkins. Announcement is also made that lectures may be expected from Dr. Bartol, Dr. Kedney, of Minnesota; Dr. Mulford, of Cambridge; Mr. Wasson, Miss Peabody, and others. Mr. Alcott promises "Five Conversations on the Philosophy of Life." Dr. Jones has not specified his exact topics in discussing Platonism, but Dr. Harris announces in detail five lectures on philosophy and metaphysics, and five more on Hegel and his philosophy. Mr. Emery will give two lectures on "System in Philosophy," with special reference to the system of Hegel. German Philosophy on literature and society during this century will be expounded by Mrs. Howe, and Dr. G. S. Hall, a lecturer at Harvard, will probably be heard on the later aspect of German scientific thought. German literature will be treated by Mr. Sanborn, who will also devote an hour each to American and Roman literature. Mrs. Cheney will speak of what is sometimes called "The Poetry of the Future," her exact topic being "The Relation Between Poetry and Science." Mr. Snider will speak of the Greek poets, especially Horace. Mr. Albee will give two lectures on general topics. Mr. Blake will give some fresh readings from Thoreau's manuscripts, and Mr. Steadman will be looked to for a poem.

The Lovett malpractice case, on trial for twelve days, at Erie, ended Saturday afternoon. Dr. Lovett has to pay $2,500 for alleged improper treatment of Wendell Farland's broken arm. Ten thousand dollars was claimed.

Samoan advices indicate the triumph of the government party under King Malieto and the collapse of all organized resistance.
