A Noble Sentiment.

In his speech at the birthday dinner given to General CAMERON, in Cuba the other day that "noblest Roman of them all" said: "A man who makes no enemies is never a positive force. I began life with the determination to succeed, with what result others must judge. I have made it a rule of life to be kind to every one and considerate of all. Yet I have made enemies, because I have had opinions and asserted them. But this has brought me friends also, and wherever I go, at home or abroad, the grateful evidences of their regard greet me. I have lived long and seen much of life, and when I am gone all I ask is that people can say that I did the best I could and was ever true to my obligations and my friends."

All who know General CAMERON well will corroborate his statement. Strict fidelity to his friends has been the secret of his great success through a long and exceptionally useful and busy life.

The Chinamen from Peru in San Francisco, give a sickening account of the suffering of their countrymen during the war and since the cessation of hostilities. At the Chinese quarters in Lima over eighty Chinese merchants were killed and upward of $1,000,000 worth of property destroyed. Since the close of the war large numbers of coolies have been murdered. Leading men have appealed to the foreign representatives for protection. It is expected the English Minister will take the matter in hand, should the Chinese government not send a representative to look after the interests of its subjects.

The islands of the Grecian archipelago seem the favorites of earthquakes. Scio, which sustained the last, is separated by a narrow strait from the mainland, about four miles across at the narrowest. It contains fifty thousand people and a principal city or capital of fourteen thousand inhabitants. Its chief productions are the olive, the grape and wool. Chian wine was an ancient article of commerce. The people are thrifty and industrious. It is conjectured that these outbreaks at Ischia and Scio, which was more destructive, herald an approaching eruption of Vesuvius.

It is by no means certain that President Garfield would care to "make or break" with the Senate upon Judge Robertson's nomination. One of his friends doubtless put it about right the other day when he said: "Mr. Garfield made this appointment with a view of representing an important element in the Republican party in New York, but he would not break his heart if it were rejected. He has made the nomination and leaves the responsibility of the rest to the Senate. There Robertson will have to stand or fall upon his own merits"

Occasional shocks of an earthquake are still felt at Scio, Asiatic Turkey. All open spaces in the town are filled with the wounded, many of whom are in a hopeless condition. Numerous dead and wounded are still under the ruins. The survivors are emigrating in all directions. There are far more victims of damages in the villages than in the larger towns. Supplies arrive daily, but are insufficient to cope with the destitute. The crew of the French man-of-war rendered valuable assistance.

Two hundred more Sioux are coming to Buford, Dakota, to surrender. Sitting Bull sends word that he will go there to surrender as soon as the ground is sufficiently dry to make traveling good.
