The Real Issue.

Viewed in the light simply of a scramble for the possession of the offices, the republican majority in the United States Senate could hardly justify their course in permitting the obstruction of business for so long a time, but the contest involves much more. The real issue is plainly stated by Senator Mitchell, in a recent interview with a reporter of the Press: "There seems to be a misapprehension on the part of many Republicans in Pennsylvania as well as some of our State newspapers regarding the meaning of the contest in the Senate. If the only advantage to be derived from the struggle was the possession of the offices of the Senate I would not engage in it for one moment. Those who regard it from that standpoint have indeed a poor notion of the importance of the issue. The Democrats in the House of Representatives for two years refused to make any appropriation for the payment of Deputy Marshals, whose presence at the polls in many of the States North as well as South was absolutely indispensable to honest elections. We know that the denial of free suffrage to the negroes in the Southern States is the cause of a sold Democratic representation from those States in the National Legislature. We also know that the votes of the colored men in Virginia freely cast and honestly counted, together with the votes of Mahone's 30,000 white followers, will redeem the Old Dominion from Bourbon rule. The Republican party is giving its aid and encouragement to Mahone because he is the only agent through whom the colored voters of at least one Southern State can secure their rights, and by whose means the wedge to split the solid South will be inserted. I know very little about Riddleberger, the candidate for Sargeant-at-arms. He is, I believe, an anti-Bourbon Democrat. Whether his views on the question of the suffrage in the South meet the approval of the Northern Republicans can be inferred when it is known that on the eve of a recent election in Virginia, addressing an audience of Bourbons, he informed them that if they attempted to prevent the negroes from voting they would be met at the ballot-box by men prepared to use armed force if necessary to secure the negro his rights. The independent Republicans of Pennsylvania should understand this great subject in its true light, and not be deceived or prejudiced by the statements of those who think to be independent is to oppose every thing that the party organization approves."

Hon. Hiram Price, who has just been appointed Commissioner of Indian Affairs, is a Pennsylvanian by birth, having been born in Washington County, January 10, 1814. His public life began in 1859, when he was elected President of the State Bank of Iowa. During the Rebellion he was appointed Paymaster General by the Governor of that State. In 1862 he was elected to the Thirty-eighth Congress, re-elected to the Thirty-ninth and Fortieth, and declined to be a candidate for the Forty-first. He was elected to the Forty-fifth Congress and re-elected to the Forty-sixth. He was an active member of the House and held an influential place on the Committee on Banking and Currency. He has been identified with the Republican party in his State ever since its inception. He has been a leading banker, merchant and railroad man, and is peculiarly fitted for the position to which he is to be called. He is a man of large wealth, and his money, influence and personal labors have been freely given to the needs of the Methodist Church, of which he has been a strict member.
