H. VANSANT McCULLY, Esq., the elocutionist and impersonator, of Philadelphia, is visiting in this place, and will give on Friday evening a Reading at Mercur Hall, under the auspices of the ladies of Christ Church. The following notices will give an idea of Mr. MCC.'s ability and attractiveness as a reader:

H. V. McCully, Esq.,
Dear Sir: I congratulate you on your success in all your Readings in the different departments of Tragedy and Mirth. Let me say that I consider your renderings of the works of Charles Dickens as exceeding any reading from that writer I have ever heard.
T. DEWITT TALMAGE.

He is one of the best readers and declaimers in the nation. In reading the humorous creations of Dickens I think he has no equal.
A. A. WILLITS, D. D.

His range of ability is very great, and his skill in personification remarkable. I regard him as rarely gifted, and having few equals in his line.
T. S. ARTHUR.

Among the various elocutionists who have appeared in Philadelphia, there is none that so fully realize our idea of what a finished reader should be than our talented townsman H. V. McCully, Esq. In voice, gesture, emphasis and the other qualities that constitute an elocutionist par excellence, Mr. McCully stands pre-eminent; and his efforts are in the highest sense enjoyable.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Mr. McCully ranks among our best elocutionists, having a clear rich voice, a very distinct pronunciation, and uncommon power of personation.—Bucks County Intelligencer.

He is just returning from a reading tour in Ohio. The following notices relate to the readings in Urbana:—

Mr. H. Vansant McCully has given two entertainments in this city to large and delighted audiences. Having heard most of the great elocutionists and public readers of this country, I have no hesitation in saying that so far as I am capable of judging, Mr. McCully has no superior and very few equals. He will always give entire satisfaction.
J. F. MARLAY,
Pastor First M. E. Church.

Mr. H. V. McCully has delighted and entertained his audiences in this city with his readings and recitations. He is certainly possessed of a high order of ability and culture as an elocutionist. His renderings of the humorous and pathetic I have never heard equaled.
DUNCAN McDONAMD,
Attorney of Champaign County.

We are also permitted to refer to Mrs. C. H. Darlington, who speaks in high terms of Mr. McCully.

The price of admission has been placed very low—only Twenty-Five Cents including reserved seats. Children under twelve years, Fifteen Cents. Doors open at 7:30. Tickets at KIRBY'S after 1 p. m., to-day.

Monroe.

Lloyd Rockwell's eldest son lies dangerously ill of scarlet fever, and there are grave fears that the little fellow cannot pull through all safe. They lost one son—the second born—a few weeks since. All sympathize with the dear parents, and pray for a safe and early recovery.

The REVIEW is an indispensable fixture; and on time—square.

Lord Beaconsfield died in London on the 19th inst at 4 1-2 a. m. The wires flashed it, the REVIEW caught it; set it up; struck it off; mailed it; and at 10 1-2 the same morning I announced it from the REVIEW to quite a gathering in the post office in Monroe, four miles distant from the press that furnishes us the daily. We cannot dispense with our daily. Let every interested party say "I will do my share toward sustaining it."
