Washington Letter.

WASHINGTON, D. C., AUG. 7, 1881.

Public anxiety now that the President has rallied so completely from the severe relapse of ten days ago, has given way to a strong feeling of hope, even confidence that he will certainly recover now within a reasonable time, unless local inflammation be set up in the region where the ball is located, which would appear now to be the principal danger to the distinguished patient. Conservatism in surgery, as in other matters is often commendable, but there are sometimes conditions in which heroic measures alone, will be found equal to the emergency. The question as to which would have been the proper treatment in the President's case remains yet to be positively decided by subsequent results. An important crisis in the case has now been safely passed but how soon another may come no one can tell, or that it will not come any day, cannot, I think, be asserted with any degree of certainty, by even the most distinguished of the six attending surgeons. The crisis that has been safely passed was met by treatment heroic in its character, and who shall say that another might not be avoided by a like measure? The bulletin of this morning is not quite as satisfactory as for several days past, but no alarming symptoms are reported, and hope still prevails as the high temperature and the excessive humidity of the atmosphere for the past few days might account for any slight change for the worse in his case.

Politically everything appears to be very quiet here, now that the New York embroglio has been settled by the election of two Senators who can and will act in sympathy and harmony with the administration. Just what the effect of Conkling's terrible defeat will be remains to be seen hereafter. If he and his friends seek to retaliate by maintaining a "masterly inactivity," or in other ways at their command, it may result in the defeat of the Republican party in New York this fall, but there are those who do not think such will be the case, or that the fate of the party in any State, or in the country at large depends upon any one man at any time, much less so after that man has abandoned—not to say betrayed—a high trust committed to him by the people of his State, and I am one of that kind. I predicted his defeat from the day he resigned and I think he deserved it. I think also that the Republican party will still live and move and have a being, for great and glorious as has been the work accomplished by it in the past, its mission is not yet ended and a future lies before, pregnant with great events and noble deeds—a future in which it can and will, I firmly believe, make a record such as shall not suffer in the least, when compared with its record for the past twenty years.

Coalition appears to be the prevailing sentiment in regard to the situation in Virginia, and as it seems to be that or Bourbon rule for an indefinite period, it would seem to be advisable to accept the former as the least of two evils.

The mention of W. T. Davies' name in connection with the nomination for State Treasurer of Pennsylvania, meets with very general and hearty approval from the voters of the State here. His record in the State Senate has shown him to be a man of superior abilities and strict integrity, and his nomination for Treasurer would be understood to mean an honest, thorough, and efficient administration of the duties of that important office and his election by a heavy majority would be insured beyond a reasonable doubt. It is by the nomination of the best men within the party for office that the party lines will be strengthened and and its power perpetuated.

KNOX.

The Pennsylvania railroad is beginning to make use of a station indicator, an arrangement for notifying passengers as to what station they are approaching. At either end of the car is a neat case containing a piece of muslin or canvass on rollers, upon which is printed or painted in legible letters all the stations of the road. By a lever on the locomotive the engineer on leaving a station changes the indicator so as to show the next stopping place. It is a complete and convenient affair.

DR. A. E. BURR'S

HOMOEOPATHIC

LUNG SYRUP.

This remedy is something new, both as to name and composition. This is one of the wonders of the world. This Syrup, I claim, is better and more effective than any other ever offered to the people of America or any other country, and what I say of this I can prove. This Syrup, like the Pills, is harmless and safe. It contains no opium or other narcotic poison, like the most Syrup, and is not disagreeable to take. Any child will take it. And it will cure any and all inflammations arising from Cold. It is superior to all others in every respect and especially for the following reasons:

- 1st. It will cure Croup every time.
- 2d. It will cure Inflammation of the Lungs.
- 3d. It will cure Quinsy.
- 4th. It will cure Whooping Cough.
- 5th. It will cure Bronchitis.
- 6th. It will cure Hoarseness.
- 7th. It will cure Sore Throat.
- 8th. It will cure any Cold.
- 9th. It will cure Congestion of the Lungs.
- 10th. It will cure any Cough.
- 11th. It will cure Scarlet Fever.
- 12th. It is the best remedy that any one can take for Consumption, and if taken in the first stage I will guarantee a cure.
- 13th. It is perfectly safe for all ages as there is nothing in its composition that can harm a child.
