There are magdalens still to acknowledge the saving power. Minnie Brooks, the keeper of a Chicago place of sin, has transformed her establishment into the "Christain mission." Miss Brooks is described as a woman of middle age, with a magnificent form and a sad face. At the opening service she was dressed in black, and about her shoulders was thrown a light white shawl. She wore no head-dress save that which had been given her by nature—a wealth of dark brown hair, which was combed straight back from the forehead and twisted into a tight coil at the back. No ornaments were to be seen about her dress or hair. She is still a woman of striking appearance, and although the most quiet was the most conspicuous person in the room. By her side sat one of the ladies of the Praying Band, and behind her sat others. The Rev. B. F. Jacobs conducted the service. Miss Brooks was requested to say a word. She rose and the room became perfectly quiet. Even the shouting in the street was hushed. She hesitated in her speech and walked nervously up and down the short space of the aisle in front, which was not crowded. She asked the prayers of all good people. She had started on this work of reform of her own free will, influenced by no one save her conscience and her God. But she realized that she needed the prayers of God's people to sustain her. She urged those who had been her companions in the past to be so now in her new endeavor, that when they came to die they might have Jesus with them. She stopped for a few moments, walked up and down the aisle several times, and then said if any one had anything against her she asked forgiveness. She had been fighting for this some time, and hoped they would help her continue to fight it out. Again she asked their prayers. The meetings are to be continued nightly.

Occasionally an old time courtesy crops out among the Saratoga habitues. The other morning a noted poet was conversing with a lady whose tresses were white with age and her face, although a noble one, was seamed with numberless wrinkles. The band had ceased playing and the crowd was dispersing. "Which way are you going?" asked the poet of the aged dame. She indicated the direction, and he took a rose from his button-hole, picked off the leaves and scattered them before her. "Allow me to strew rose leaves in your path my dear madam," said the poet as he bowed his good morning and walked away. Just after, a waiter came with a broom to sweep up the piazza, and the rose leaves were about to form a part of the debris, when the lady interfered, and picking them up, she declared she would keep them as long as she lived. No belle in her teens could have been better pleased than was this old lady at the charming compliment so gracefully paid her by the poet.

Besides legacies to his family Matthew Vassar's will bequeaths to Vassar College $150,000, and Vassar Hospital $85,000. The hospital is also made a residuary legatee. To other benevolent and religious institutions, $35,000. John

Guy Vassar renounces all bequests to him and will erect an institute for the Poughkeepsie Scientific and Literary Association as a monument to the memory of Matthew Vassar.

The French elections will be held on Sunday next, and the impression prevails that the moderate Republicans will win a substantial victory. According to our teachings it seems hardly possible for the Young Republic to prosper while it continues to set apart Sunday for secular affairs which might be attended to on any other day of the week.

A St. John's, N. B. dispatch says: A train on the St. John and Maine railway, with 200 Sunday school children aboard, was run into by another train a few miles from this city this morning. The engines were wrecked and a number of cars thrown from the track. Loss, $15,000. The firemen of both trains were hurt. The accident caused great excitement here.

HOMOEOPATHIC LUNG SYRUP.

This remedy is something new, both as to name and composition. This is one of the wonders of the world. This Syrup, I claim, is better and more effective than any other ever offered to the people of America or any other country, and what I say of this I can prove. This Syrup, like the Pills, is harmless and safe. It contains no opium or other narcotic poison, like the most Syrup, and is not disagreeable to take. Any child will take it. And it will cure any and all inflammations arising from Cold. It is superior to all others in every respect and especially for the following reasons:
1st. It will cure Croup every time.
2d. It will cure Inflammation of the Lungs.
3d. It will cure Quinsy.
4th. It will cure Whooping Cough.
5th. It will cure Bronchitis.
6th. It will cure Hoarseness.
7th. It will cure Sore Throat.
8th. It will cure any Cold.
9th. It will cure Congestion of the Lungs.
10th. It will cure any Cough.
11th. It will cure Scarlet Fever.
12th. It is the best remedy that any one can take for Consumption, and if taken in the first stage I will guarantee a cure.
13th. It is perfectly safe for all ages as there is nothing in its composition that can harm a child.
