The New Law.

The act passed by the Legislature regulating the manner of conducting primary elections seems to have created some confusion. We learn from Chairman Angle, of the Republican Standing Committee that he has submitted the question to several legal gentlemen of the Committee and others, including Senator Davies and Representative Hillis, all of whom are clearly of opinion that the law does not apply to this county from the fact that none of the parties here except, perhaps, the Greenbackers, have such "rules" as are referred to in the statute. A compliance with the law, as nearly as may be however, can do no harm, and we advise that the officers of caucuses take the prescribed oath, and in other respects conform to the new law although we do not believe a failure to do so would invalidate the elections, nor subject the officers to the penalties affixed.

The object of the law was to secure fair and honest delegate elections. Let us have these regardless of the law. Even the Republican party cannot hope to succeed in electing a ticket in this county nominated through fraud and trickery. As a matter of policy, honesty will prove the best in politics.

Pyæmia is derived from two words, which mean pus in the blood. It is produced by the taking up of ichorous pus into the circulation and carrying it until it is lodged in some of the smaller capillaries, when it results in abscesses. The principal symptoms are high fever, with remissions well marked. This is accompanied by great weakness, the patient exhibiting drowsiness and sleeping the greater portion of the time. The skin has a peculiar yellow tint, and sometimes there is a profuse diarrhoea with abscesses in different parts of the body, particularly about the joints. The breath has a characteristic sweetish odor; the face is pale, and usually wears a drawn, anxious look; the pulse is variable and often thread-like, with great waste and rapid prostration of the body. These symptoms are generally preceded by a rigor or chill. There are cases, however, that have been unaccompanied by a rigor. These are marked with great prostration and a low fever of an intermittent character. Generally after a time the skin assumes the yellow tint and the peculiar odor of the breath may be noticed, but is sometimes absent in this form. The patient continues quiet and his wound appears to be clean and suppurating healthily. In each instance, however, the secondary stage of the disease is marked by abscesses on various parts of the body, particularly at the joints. Septicæmia is first developed by fever—sometimes a low fever, but mostly a high one, with irregular remissions. It usually begins with a rigor or chill, and is accompanied by a weakened condition of the patient, who is often delirious and sometimes suffers from profuse diarrhoea.

English Parliament was prorogued Saturday. The speech from the throne on the occasion of the prorogation of Parliament, declares that the relations with foreign powers are amicable and cordial. Satisfactory assurances have been received from France regarding Tunis. Self-government has been secured to the Transvaal which it is hoped will tranquilize South Africa. The withdrawal of British troops from Afghanistan is not expected to lead to any trouble on the northwestern frontier of India. Although negotiations have been temporarily suspended, the best efforts will be made to conclude a commercial treaty with France.

In reference to Irish affairs the Queen says it is her earnest hope that the new land act may be productive of benefits commensurate with the care given to the measure. It has been the study of her Majesty to use the exceptional powers confided to her in Ireland with vigilance and firmness, but with discrimination. The desire is expressed that the condition of the country will so improve that the use of extraordinary powers may be dispensed with or abated.
