THE VERY LATEST—Styles in men's, children's and boys' suits, overcoats and furnishing goods can be found at Jacob's Clothing House as he has just opened an immense stock of Fall and Winter goods.

Mr. BENJAMIN WATTS residing just across the Chemung river near Waverly was the loser of a horse and buggy on Wednesday evening. He attended the clam bake at Chemung. When he arrived there he hitched the animal, which belonged to his mother, Mrs. M. E. EIDENBERGER, to a post near the clam bake and left. When he came back for his turnout it was gone. The beast was a little brown mare weighing 900 pounds and about thirteen hands high. The wagon was a square box top buggy, painted black with a gilt stripe about one inch from the top of the box. Mrs. EIDENBERGER has been very unfortunate in the loss of horses, harnesses and wagons this summer by theft, and railroad accidents. We understand another horse was stolen from the clam bake in the same manner.—Elmira Advertiser.

Brother VANGELDER of the LeRaysville Advertiser has visited the poor house and has this to say in regard to it:

As we drove up to the front of the large and cheerful looking buildings which had been erected for the home of the poor, a feeling of gratitude came over us as we recalled the great interest taken in humanity here exhibited in money generously spent to provide such an excellent home for those who cannot care for themselves. More than this, it is pleasant to know that our county is composed of a class of people who by their votes have made ample provision to care for their poor, equal, if not quite as well as a majority of the families who pay taxes to support it.

On entering the premises, we met our old friends, Alden Keyes and S. W. Moserip, the master workmen upon the buildings, also Commissioner Daniel Bradford, who has given the construction of the building his personal supervision. After a night's rest and a good breakfast in the morning we were shown through the building by Commissioner Bradford. We found all the apartments well arranged, neat and convenient for the purpose designed. We found every room well ventilated and supplied with water from a reservoir in the building above. The main building is three stories high and is 44x60 feet and is well arranged and occupied by the overseers. The north wing is 44x100, with a wide hall running the whole length and seated, with sleeping rooms on either side. In these rooms are single beds resting on iron bedsteads. Bath rooms are also connected and are frequently used by the inmates—hence the cleanliness of their persons and the rooms they occupy. The east wing is 44x87, and is similarly arranged and occupied by the females. In this department a day school is kept for the instruction of the children. The basement is used in the different departments as follows: kitchen, dining-room, milk, vegetables, coal, storage, &c. There is also a small drug store connected with the institution for the benefit of the occupants. In the rear of the main buildings is the one constructed for the insane. It is neat, substantially built and well arranged, and is being enclosed by a high substantial fence to prevent the escape of the inmates.

The number of persons received up to last Friday was ninety-three. We are told that many of the inmates on entering the institution are compelled to do so on the Baptist plan by being thoroughly immersed, purified and supplied with a clean robe which properly fits them for admission to their new home. Mr. H. M. Ferguson, the Overseer, is evidently the right man in the right place. He is kind to the inmates and prompt in caring for the wants of each. More than this, every room in the building is carefully looked after and kept neat and clean, and the table fare is good and wholesome, and everything bears the appearance of a well regulated home for the county poor.

The building of a large barn for the accommodation of the farm products seems to be quite necessary to complete the property in all its appointments. When built the people in our county can justly feel proud of this "institution," for we venture the assertion that its equal, all things considered, can't be beat in the State. It has all the modern improvements, is substantially built, well lighted, and has a cheerful and pleasant appearance in every department. Much credit is due our Commissioners who have had charge from the beginning and who have exhibited such good taste and judgment in the whole affair.—Mr. Daniel Bradford the Western Commissioner, as a reward of merit, should certainly be re-elected for another term, and we have no fears but that he will be, as his name is prominently mentioned everywhere.
