The Philadelphia Press was one of the warmest supporters of Senator Davies in his canvass for the nomination for State Treasurer and did all in its power to defeat the "machine politicians," but it takes no stock in the movement of Wolfe. It thus logically closes a long article in favor of standing by the flag:

Mr Wolfe's appeal is to the Independent Republicans. The Press will not be surpassed in true independence. Its record and its attitude speak for themselves. Without arrogating more than its service warrants, it feels that it has some claim to the attention of those who fought under the banner of independence at Harrisburg, and by that right it invokes the Republicans of the State to stand by the Republican flag. It knows the wrongs of the Convention, and has not hesitated to reprobate them. But it knows, too, the greater wrong and danger of striking down the cause of Republicanism in this hour of trial and clouding the future with a Democratic triumph. Upon what valid ground can such a result be sought or justified? Not because it is necessary in order to continue the fight for popular rule within the Republican party for that will go right on. Not because there is no hope of success without it, for the onward march of the past two years will soon bring victory. Not because it is required to save a public trust from unworthy hands, for General Bailly's honor is stainless. This is not one of those great emergencies which justify and demand revolutionary action—least of all revolutionary action which can have no other result but Democratic success. The protest has been made. The lines have been strengthened for the next contest. The candidate is personally unexceptionable. Republican defeat would carry deep regret through the Republican ranks of the whole Union and Democratic success would be a sad refrain to greet a President saved from the jaws of death and to sustain the great work of which he is the leader. And so for the sake of Republican principles, for the sake of the President himself, let the Republicans of Pennsylvania, now that their ticket is in the field postpone their differences to the appropriate time and stand together in following the Republican flag.

The keenest interest is felt among sporting men both in England and America over the chances of Iroquois for the St. Ledger at the Doncaster races next Wednesday. The famous horse has been afflicted by a severe cough which imperils his fair prospects of success and dampens the glowing anticipations of another American success. Nevertheless Iroquois will be driven to his utmost speed and may possibly yet win the prize.

The Republican county ticket nominated on the 6th inst. has been accepted by the people of the county with exceptional unanimity. The competitors for the nominations, as well as others, uniting in giving the several candidates a hearty support. This is as it should be. They are all good men and entitled to the support of their fellow partizans.

Mr. Sankey, the evangelist, left New York Saturday, for a tour of the world. He and Mr. Moody will begin their labors in England the middle of October. From there they will proceed to Ireland and the continent. Four hundred clergymen of the Irish Episcopal church have invited them to preach in Ireland.

Senator Cameron is reported as declaring himself in favor of removing the tax from tobacco, because so many men and boys use the weed. The same argument would hold good in regard to beer and whiskey.

If Wolfe succeeds in drawing enough votes away from Bailly to elect the Democratic candidate, what good will he have accomplished to the cause of Independent Republicanism?

Did Wolfe raise the black flag against the Cameron clan in his last convention? That faction does not seem to have been represented.

The convention which nominated Wolfe for Treasurer was entirely harmonious. It was composed of his self.

The Fair begins in two weeks. What are you doing to make it a success?

Gov. Hoyt says Bailly was not Don Cameron's man.
