ED. MASON writes us from Kansas City, that our young friend SAM GUYER, who is now a prosperous citizen of that thriving city, has just taken to himself a wife in the person of Miss FANNY LYON, one of the most charming young ladies of Jacksonville, Ill. The happy event took place on the 11th inst.

From the same source we learn that our former citizens, J. E. FLEMING and family, J. L. MCMAHON and family, and HENRY HARRIS and family are getting on finely.

The marriage of Miss BECKY MCCORD and Mr. DUDLEY HINMAN on Wednesday evening was witnessed by quite a company of invited guests. Hon. JOS. POWELL and wife, S. H. SACKETT, wife and daughter, A. D. COOLBAUGH, Misses LOTTIE and LILLIE MOORE, C. M. HALL, Dr. FRED NEWTON and mother, and Miss JULIA POWELL of this place were present. The presents were costly, handsome and appropriate. The newly wedded pair came to this place and took train 15 for Philadelphia, after the ceremony. We return thanks for generous samples of the bountiful feast prepared.

The Managers of the Agricultural Society are busy putting things in order for the fair next week.

Entries for the Fair should be made as early as possible with J. A. WILT the Secretary of the Society at Towanda.

We are informed that all the clergymen of this place are to preach on the subject of the great national affliction, on Sunday.

Excursion tickets for the County Fair will be sold at the stations between Sayre and Laceyville by Lehigh Lalley Railroad, Sept. 28th, 29th and 30th.

What is Towanda doing for the fair? while the farmers of the county have the largest share in the exhibition there is much that our citizens can do to make it a success. We hope to see the art department well supplied.

This community was greatly shocked at the announcement yesterday morning of the sudden death of Mr. JOHN B. SMITH, an old and much respected citizen of North Towanda. Had he lived until December he would have completed his 69th year. Mr. SMITH was one of the most intelligent and prosperous citizens of the county. By industry and prudent economy, he had acquired a competency and was apparently enjoying the declining years of life surrounded by a happy family who loved and honored him and to whom he was devotedly attached. But the summons came without a note of warning, and he was "gathered to his fathers." Having lived an upright christian life, by faith in a merciful Saviour, he was ready and joyfully obeyed the call to "come up higher."

The funeral will be held at the family residence at 1 o'clock this afternoon, and the burial will take place at Hornbrook cemetery.

At the opening of Court Monday morning, Col. E. OVERTON, Jr., announced the death of President GARFIELD, whereupon his Hon. Judge MORROW made the following order: In the matter of the death of President Garfield:

And now, September 20, 1881, the death of James A. Garfield, President of the United States, having been announced in open court, Hon. Edward Overton, Jr., Col. E. Smith, and L. M. Hall, are hereby appointed a committee to prepare resolutions expressive of the grief of the Court and Bar, at this great public calamity; and it is further ordered that as a mark of respect and love for the memory of our deceased President the Court do now adjourn. It is further ordered that this minute be placed upon the records of the Court.

Appropriate remarks were made by Col. OVERTON and Col. SMITH.

Yesterday morning the committee reported the following, which were ordered filed:

Resolved, That the sorrow we feel for him who is now dead, who was stricken down in the full tide of a vigorous manhood, in what for him was but the beginning of greatness, is equalled by the keen sympathy we feel for those who, being connected with him in the more intimate relations of life, will more than others be bowed down by his loss, but that the loss to our country, which he had both the will and the power to serve better than other men; when we remember that it was to serve our country, and because he believed he could aid her welfare, that the most of all wished and struggled to live; that this view of our loss exceeds and rises above all others following this sad calamity.

Resolved, That we mourn his death the more at a time when with all his generous heart he was striving with such great success to harmonize all factions in our country, to allay all sectional strife, to make each man feel that our laws protected him and that to be so protected was a precious privilege; and that to be so protected was a precious privilege; and that he did not die till by his brave and earnest acts in office, by his more than heroic struggle against pain and death he had won to him all those who once might have been against him, and, until, "at the time of his death mankind lost a friend and no man got rid of an enemy."

Resolved, That the sorrow we feel at the death of a man so great, is deepened by the thought that he has left work unfinished that he, of all men, was best fitted to do; and we hope and believe that the example of his short and so cruelly ended official life, his well known plans and wishes may still aid others to carry on the good work that he would have done had he lived.

Resolved, That a career that never faltered in its onward course even from the humblest beginnings, marked by a complete consonance with the eventful history of the age in which he lived, crowned at length with the highest tribute of the intelligence and confidence of his countrymen, that career now closed in death, will be memorable in coming times as a type of our highest, noblest manhood; an illustrious example of individual worth.

Next Sunday morning, Rev. WM. TAYLOR pastor of the church of the Messiah, will take for his theme: "Some lessons from the life and death of President GARFIELD." No evening service until October. Prayer and conference Thursday evening, at 7 1-2 o'clock.

There is nothing heard in Virginia now of the Bourbons' devotion to the full payment of the State debt. They are ignoring the question entirely. This might have been expected. Hitherto they have maintained their devotion during the campaign, and have forgotten the question entirely after election. This year their zeal ended with their platform declaration, and they are expending all their strength on a scheme to defeat the opposition ticket by means of forged letters. What they want is to get the offices. If they get them, the "public debt," says the leading organ, the Richmond Dispatch, "may go to the dogs." There is nothing new in this position; it is only avowed openly, that is all.
