Planting Small Fruits.

Fall planting of small fruits is becoming more popular every year, and justly so. Those who practice it find it advantageous, and now nearly all our planting of raspberries, currants, gooseberries and grapevines is done in the Fall. October and November are decidedly the best months, and October is preferable to any other month for the following reason: 1. There is leisure to do the work well. 2. The ground is in a condition to be well and thoroughly prepared. 3. The roots get a good hold of the soil by Winter and are therefore ready to start early and vigorously in the Spring. Fall set plants make a growth nearly double that of those planted in the Spring.

Raspberries, currants, grapevines, etc., should not be taken up for transplanting until the wood has fully ripened and the leaves fallen. After planting, raspberries and blackberries should be cut back within six inches of the ground and grapevines to three buds. A shovel-ful of well-rotted compost should be placed around the stem and the earth mounded up over the whole. Currants and gooseberries after being manured should also be banked with earth around their stems. This secures them and prevents heaving by freezing and thawing weather.

We have set layer strawberry plants as late as the latter part of November, covering them just before freezing weather with earth drawn over them with the hoe to the depth of about two inches. The earth is raked off the plants very early in Spring, as soon as severe freezing weather is over for if kept on until late the plants will rot. Currants and gooseberries start to grow early in the spring and some seasons are so backward that the ground cannot be worked until they are almost in leaf. When planted in Fall they make a much larger growth the first year than when set under such conditions though if kept moist there is little danger of the plants dying at any time.

It is well to get land on which it is designed to plant this Fall thoroughly prepared in advance and this season generally brings the leisure to perform it properly. A cool half shady exposure in moist land is best adapted for the currant; such a soil as can be made to resist drought by deep plowing and cultivation. Though moist it should be well drained, and bountifully enriched with such manures as muck, cow manure, etc., rather than with stable litter and other light manures.

The soil for raspberries should also be deeply plowed and well drained; the best selection is, perhaps, a deep sandy loam, moist but not wet. The raspberry does well in partial shade, and cool manures are preferable to rank unrotted material. The blackcaps succeed on much lighter soil than is necessary for the red variety, but also require moisture. The moist heavy land in which the raspberry grows at its best is quite unsuited to the blackberry, which in such a soil would make a rank succulent growth of canes that fail to ripen and mature sufficiently before Winter. It does best on light soils and warm exposures, but the ground should be deeply worked and not permitted to become hard and dry. Neither does it require the richness of soil necessary to the raspberry and the currant.

CALKINS' EMBROCATING EMULSION.—J. F. Calkins has been traveling in the interest of Dr. G. L. Stevens, of the city of Cleveland, Ohio, and in the past three years has visited all the cities and principle towns of our State. His business has brought him in acquaintance with many of the most eminent and talented Physicians in the State, and in his intercourse with them has gathered a number of valuable prescriptions from which he has compounded an article he calls Calkins' Embrocating Emulsion, used as a lotion.

Many of the citizens of Towanda and surrounding towns by its use are recommending it as a valuable treatment for Rheumatism, Neuralgia, local and chronic pains, back, head or tooth ache, crick in neck or back, sprains, bruises, sore throat, quinsy, burns; &c. Price 25 cents per bottle. Druggists supplied on liberal terms.

A gentleman in town says, it is the best thing for burns I ever had in my house.

A lady in Wilkesbarre was cured of quinsy in its first stages by it when her physician said it could not be stopped.

A young man in Monroe had a severe attack of Pleurisy the Embrocating Emulsion stopped it at once. A lady in East Troy says it cured her of Inflammatory Rheumatism with which she was afflicted for more than a year, having kept her bed for weeks at a time.

A lady in Monroe Township sprained her ankle so severely that she was obliged to keep her foot on a pillow, by the use of the Embrocating Emulsion in three days she was doing her house work, and was at once cured. An old citizen of Ithaca was afflicted with a pain in his side. He could find nothing to relieve him. He was induced to use the Embrocating Emulsion and writes: F. J. Calkins, dear sir: Two applications of the Embrocating Emulsion stopped the pain. I was afflicted with Itching piles. It also stopped them. It is very valuable. Signed, P. Case.

One gentleman who was suffering with a severe back ache caused by lying in bed for a long time with sickness was effectually relieved by three applications of the Embrocating Emulsion.

A lady in our Town who had used the article said Mr. Calkins ought to make a fortune out of the Embrocating Emulsion.

A number of Physicians are using it. The names of all the above cases can be given and many more cases added. Try it.
