Mr. Wolfe Opens.

The Independent party, in the person of Hon. Charles S. Wolfe, opened the State campaign last evening in a speech delivered in the Assembly Building, which we publish in full this morning. This speech is of special interest, not only because the first in order and in a measure establishing the pitch for Mr. Wolfe's successors, but ss being the first delivered by the Independent candidate showing his resources and methods of attack. He assumes the offensive at once, and his arraignment of the selfconstituted and self-perpetuating managers of the Republican party has all the force which courage and sincerity can give to conviction. The speech is a strong and able one in itself, and its power is doubled by the evident honesty and earnestness of the speaker. If Mr. Wolfe follows up his campaign with the vigor and directness of attack with which he has begun, it is manifest that the expectations entertained of a quiet campaign will be very far from realized.

We do not feel called upon to answer Mr. Wolfe's definite charges against certain individuals prominent in the Republican party of the State. We recognize that there is much of truth in these charges. Many of them have appeared in the Press, and we condemn the acts complained of with no less emphasis than Mr. Wolfe. We differ with him, not in the estimate of the wrong, but in the remedy and in the time and method of its application. Why must Gen. Baily be made the scape-goat for offenses committed by Messrs. Cameron, Quay and others on occasions entirely disconnected with the present campaign? There is no allegation that Gen. Baily is not an unexceptional candidate and every way a fit man for the place. Whatever Mr. Quay & Co. have done at other times, they gave the Independent Republicans no substantial grievances to complain of in the late State Convention. It would doubtless have been a stroke of policy on the part of these managers to have manifested a spirit of conciliation. Their method of procedure was certainly not conducive to the re-establishment of harmony and unity in the party. They, however, had the majority and any concessions would have been of favor, not of right. They chose to withhold that and exercise to its full extent the power which they held. It taught Independent Republicans exactly what they had a right to expect as long as they failed to secure the majority in the Convention to which their majority of the State entitled them. They did not, however feel justified in deserting the party, and Mr. Wolfe conducts his movement as he originated it-"independent of the Independents."

For the Independent Anti-machine Republicans of the State to follow Mr. Wolfe outside of the party organization would be to abandon it hopelessly to the machine and leave the latter with all the advantages of position, the prestige of regularity, and the best right to the party name. If there was no hope of doing better such a course might be justified. There is, however, abundant reason for believing that with the greater public interest which the more important stake of next year will develop the Anti-machine Repablicans will secure a representation in the State Convention propor tionate to their real strength. This we can afford to wait for. If the machine gave us General Baily it at least gave us a candidate against whom no objection could be raised and did it without any violation of the rights of those who preferred Mr. Davies. To vote for Mr. Wolfe under the circumstance is but to increase the relative strength of Mr. Noble and to contribute to the defeat of the Republican party. This the Independent Republicans are not willing to do, especially as such a course would gain for them so little and lose for them so much.-Press.

President Arthur has insisted that the whole of the salary for the first year of Garfield's term shall be paid intact to Mrs. Garfield, thus giving her a clear $50,000 in addition to the fund raised by private subscriptions. Instead of doing publicly, with an ostentation of good eeling, the President has signified his wish quitetly to one of Mrs. Garfield's most intimate friends and advisers, and nothing more will be said about the matter from the President's side, at least.
