The sharp frosts of late remind us that the woods should now begin to blaze with the most glowing colors, but it is probable that our autumn scenery will this year fall short of its usual attractiveness in this particular, and give renewed occasion to lament the ravages of the drouth. Many trees, especially those growing on the thin soil of rocky hills, are already stripped of their leaves, which died and dropped before they had matured; and it is to be feared that the more persistent foliage for lack of needed vitality, will burn out with dull flame as compared with the brilliancy of more prosperous years. But matter for more serious apprehension is suggested by a consideration of the possible effect of the unusual dryness of the earth upon the trees. All trees and especially evergreens, through their foliage give out a certain amount of moisture during the winter. This is the season when they should be storing up a supply of juices to meet this evaporation. Unfortunately, the deepest roots can find no water, and the fall rains if we are to have any, will come too late to be of the greatest service. No doubt, too, the cell structure of the trees is in bad condition to carry on this storing process. Every growing thing has been enfeebled by long struggle with the drouth. There is a lack of recuperative power and lusty life in every tree and shrub and they will meet the trying draft which the winter makes upon their vitality with imperfectly developed resources. Perhaps it would be safer to wait until next spring before making a prediction, but there seems to be good ground to fear that the winter will be a fatal one for many trees which under ordinary conditions have nothing to fear from the cold.

One of the Chicago grain eaters has come to grief. Everybody will hope that he may taste his winter's bread of poverty, as he has made so many taste. The man, Lyon, had no occupation for years except to trade upon the necessities of the people. He has controlled the grain market—not only dictated the price of wheat, corn and oats, but the amount of shipments and the rates. Lake and canal shipments were put so low that the freighters were bankrupted, at the close of the season. There is no grief over such failures and all like Lyon, who conspire to increase the costs of life's necessities, should tread the same road and feel the pinch of poverty they have imposed upon others.

Soldier's Encampment.

At East Towanda, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, October 11, 12 and 13, 1881.

The time is drawing near for the annual encampment of the Grand Army and the soldiers and sailors of this and adjoining counties, it being October 11th, 12th and 13th. The commander wishes to inform the comrades that every effort on his part is being put forth to make it a success and he wishes the co-operation of every soldier in the county.

Unlooked for delays in making announcements have occurred and could not be avoided. But at last we have almost completed arrangements for one of the best speakers in the country, and many of the prominent generals of the late war have been invited, and it is believed from the favorable replies that a large number of them will be present.

Capt. O'Connell's Battery, 10th division, N. G. of N. Y., of Binghamton, with fifty men two pieces and a band of music, are desirous of attending the encampment, and the arrangements are so far advanced that there is hardly a doubt that they will be fully completed, and the battery join us during the encampment.

The Owego Zouaves have been invited and will no doubt be on hand.

The Franklin Guards, of Athens, are also expected to attend.

Each Post in the county is making strenuous efforts to turn out in large numbers and under good discipline.

It is now believed that this encampment will be the largest gathering of the kind ever held in Towanda.

Full announcements will be given next week. Let everybody prepare for a good time.
