Our old friend GEORGE FARRAR, who is a survivor of the gallant 50th, is in town to attend the reunion. Since the war he has been engaged in the more agreeable pursuit of "teaching the young idea to shoot." That he has been successful is manifest from the fact that he has taught one school for the past ten years.

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. HILDRETH celebrated the close of the fifth year of their happy wedded life last evening in a brilliant reception which was attended by a large number of their friends. The occasion was a merry one for both host and hostess and guests. The appropriate presents evidenced the high esteem in which Mr. H. and his excellent wife are held by their acquaintances. The refreshments served were elegant.

The last Elmira Telegram gives a picture of Chief of Police BURNS, of this place with the following biographical sketch:

In a pleasant valley at the foot of Elk mountain, in Susquehanna county, Pennsylvania, the subject of this sketch first saw the light, September 16, 1839. His mother came of good old Puritan stock, and was a woman of strong and noble character. His father was of Scotch-Irish descent. With the muscles of an athlete he had the courage of the pioneer. Until twenty-one years of age, Burns lived and worked on a farm. To his active out-door life he owes in a measure, the splendid physique and iron constitution that have so well fitted him to perform the trying duties of his after years. In December, 1872, Mr. Burns, who was living on a farm in Smithfield, was solicited by the Burgess to come to Towanda and perform police duties for four months. At the expiration of that time he was offered the position of Chief of Police, which he accepted. For nearly nine years he has proved himself a faithful and efficient officer. There were difficulties attending a discharge of the duties of the office, at that time, that have wholly disappeared. Fires and robberies have greatly diminished in frequency. It is a significant fact that three times as many arrests were made in 1872 as in 1880. Towanda is now as orderly a town as any of its size in the State. Officer Burns' courage, perseverance and success in following and bringing criminals to justice, have become almost proverbial. He has been instrumental in hunting up and returning about fifty stolen horses, and nearly always succeeded in bringing the thieves to trial. In 1872, Officer Burns arrested the notorious "butter thief," named Rogers, alias Caswell, who had committed a series of daring depredations in Southern New York and Northern Pennsylvania. Rogers went literally "armed to the teeth" and grew so bold as to defy arrest. One horse and buggy stolen by Rogers, was traced to Bradford county, Pa., and found in possession of "Josh," the Gipsy King. The latter who passed through Towanda occasionally, has since cherished a wholesome respect for Officer Burns' ability to detect the receiver of stolen property. The "butter thief" was confined to the Auburn penitentiary for twelve years. On the 4th of July, 1877, while quelling a riot in the streets of Towanda, Chief Burns was assaulted by a drunken and infuriated mob. In self-defence, and in protecting the lives and property of law-abiding citizens, he fatally shot one of his assailants and slightly wounded another. The rogues who had heretofore "run the town" on circus days, were taught a valuable lesson. No such disgraceful riot has been attempted since that time. In April, 1876, Officer Burns was commissioned by Governor Hartranft, as Railroad Police, on the Northern division of the Lehigh Valley railway. He has been very successful in guarding the interests of the company and is deserving the confidence of railway officials. In November, 1878, Chief Burns was appointed Deputy United States Marshal for the Northern District of Pennsylvania. His skill in detecting counterfeiters and "pulling" illicit distilleries has demonstrated his superior sagacity as a detective and his fearless daring as an officer.
