Four Reasons.

The Philadelphia Press is entitled to the credit of being one of the most fearless of the independent journals of the State, and has given the "bosses" severe rebukes, but it furnishes these four cogent reasons why every Republican should vote for Gen. Baily:

I. The Republican candidate is a man of high personal character. His record is without a blemish. In war he bore himself gallantly. In peace he has discharged the duties of citizenship in a way to win the respect of his neighbors without regard to party. A quiet, modest gentleman, he does not lack capacity to administer intelligently and well the office of State Treasurer.

II. The Independent battle should be fought out within the Republican party; a like onset was made in New York against more brilliant leadership, and the popular will has achieved a victory which goes to the root of the evil and embraces the whole organization. The same force can and will prevail in Pennsylvania, if only the struggle be maintained without flagging or flinching, adopting for the purpose the most effective weapons and no others, keeping in view that the fight is for reformation, not for destruction, re-acting to be switched off into side issues by the bad advice of well-meaning friends or the connivance of crafty enemies. The situation, notwithstanding all that is truthfully to be said of it, does not justify revolution.

III. The issue in this contest is not between the Republican party and the mis-managers of the party, but clearly and unmistakably between the candidate of the Republican State Convention and the candidate of the Democratic State Convention. There is no shadow of a chance for Mr. Wolfe; every vote for him is that much taken from Gen. Baily, and Mr. Noble has just that much less to overcome. This fact the Democrats appreciate, and they will help Mr. Wolfe with their organization. On election day the Democratic ticket-holders at every poll in the State will be provided with Wolfe tickets and where they cannot get in a Noble ticket they will press a Wolfe ticket. On this point then, the question is reduced to this: Do Republicans prefer Mr. Noble the Democrat, to General Baily, the Republican?

IV. It is the duty of Republicans to stand by a good ticket. That duty is the more obvious and urgent now when impatient Republicans, desirous of reform, hope to realize it in the election of a Democrat, and a Democrat surrounded by influences which have disgusted and alienated members of his own party. The cause of pure Republicanism developed in the late Convention a strength which, though overborne, encourages its friends and will inspire them with the fire of a new courage for the greater contest which is to be waged next year. When the popular will shall again prevail within the Republican party, as we do not for a moment doubt it will, the defeated element will be expected to stand by the organization, respect the voice of the party as it shall have spoken in Convention, and give a local support to the ticket. It devolves upon Independent Republicans at this time to set the example of fealty to the party. And then when the people's victory comes they can of right order out the whole Republican force, and they will speak with the voice of an unimpaired authority.

While Guiteau was being arraigned a large sized man approached the officers in Court and asked for the loan of a pistol. He was taken to police headquarters where he gave his name as George H. Bernhard and showed a diploma as a lawyer issued June 23d at Columbus, Ohio. He said he fought in Garfield's regiment and showed two gunshot wounds in his legs and a bayonet wound in the head received at the battle of Shiloh. He has been doing clerical work for a lawyer here. He heard that Guiteau would be arraigned that day and intended to get a "bull-dog" pistol and shoot him at the City Hall. He took his diploma with him to insure his getting into the court-room as a member of the bar. He had evidently been drinking.

President Arthur is pursuing the judicious policy of sending to the Senate for confirmation the appointments made by President Garfield during the recess. It is, of course, his privilege to set these appointments aside and reopen the question of filling the vacant places, but he wisely prefers to give effect to the official acts of his lamented predecessor.

The grand victory in Ohio should stir up the Republicans of this State to renewed exertions. If they will put their shoulders to the wheel, working with a will and heart, they can elect Gen. Baily triumphantly and teach "kickers" that they will not be permitted to disorganize and imperil the integrity of the Republican party in Pennsylvania.

Operation in the Bradford field are becoming more and more circumscribed, and the clang of the tool dresser's hammer is infrequent where once it resounded from a hundred derricks. To the men who put down wells the Richburg field is a veritable oasis in the desert of enforced idleness.

In spite of Gen. Butler's letter, Mr. Scoville hopes to secure him as Guiteau's counsel. Many regard Butler's letter as really a bid for the opportunity to take part in the case.

The contest over the Speakership of the next House is to be begun immediately. There are several candidates in the field.
