GEORGE S. ESTELLE is acting prothonotary at Troy court this week. Mrs. E. and little MAMIE are visiting in Canton.

PATTINATO, the decamping Italian barber, was not so fortunate in eluding his family this time as heretofore. In a letter to a friend here written from Philadelphia on Friday, he says his wife and daughter had already joined him.

GEORGE GORDON, one of the oldest and best citizens of Asylum township, died Sunday night.

Mrs. JAMES BALDWIN, of LeRaysville, who had been alarmingly ill since the birth of a child a month since, died about 1 o'clock yesterday morning and will be buried to-morrow.

If you want some of the nicest looking honey, such as fairly "makes the mouth water" to look at and does not disappoint you when tasted, go to LONG & STEVENS.—They have some pure "clover honey," clear as crystal.

Photographer A. J. FISHER has been making some marked improvements in his gallery. Mr. F. keeps fully up with the advancement in the photographic art, and gives his customers the advantage of every new discovery in that direction. No gallery in the country is better equipped and certainly none turns out work which excels Mr. FISHER'S.

COMMENDABLE.—There is no danger of Mr. F. GRADY'S workmen engaging in a "strike." Unsolicited he yesterday announced to the employees in his shop that their wages had been increased ten per cent. We understand he is the only merchant tailor in the place who has taken such liberal action, and he is to be commended for it. It is an evidence of his liberality as well as prosperous business.

The ten cent subscription list, circulated in our village this week, now amounts to $11.50. All who wish to add their names will find the list hanging in the post-office, where it will remain open till next Wednesday night. The money and the list will then be sent to their destination. These lists, gathered from over the whole United States, will probably be deposited within the corner-stone of the hospital.—Troy Gazette.

THE GERMANIA PARK CONCERT.—Happily our Germania Band was in full force and brought out a programme of the choicest selections from their musical repertoire, and performed them with a unity of movement, delicacy of expression, finish in style and roundness and balance of harmony which fairly excelled any of their previous efforts this season. To Mr. FRED E. SMITH was given a number of solo passages which he performed with his usual velvety smoothness of tone and chasteness of style. Mr. FRANK KINGSBURY, in two of the best numbers, had solos which exhibited his flexible mellow toning admirably. In the fifth number—perhaps the richest gem in this cluster of musical brilliants—Mr. SMITH'S cornet and Mr. KINGSBURY'S baritone had several beautiful passages in unison. In this number, also, band master WALKER, who is undoubtedly one of the best band leaders, one of the best musical readers and one of the most brilliant cornet players in Northern Pennsylvania, showed his clear comprehension of the kaleidoscopic ideas and his perfect readiness to take the changeable movements of this beautiful pot-pourri. The Germania Band embraces among its gentlemanly members a fine array of musical talent; most of them handle instruments which are comparatively subordinate to the perfect make up of the grand harmony, but they are skillful musicians in their specialties and are fully appreciated by the public. The basso profundo tubas of Prof. STULEN and Mr. KLINE were smoothly blown last evening and wonderfully effective.

Ex-Governor Morgan was yesterday confirmed Secretary of the Treasury.
