The Lehigh Valley railroad shows the largest increase in tonnage of any of the coal roads this year, both actual and proportionate.

Harry E. Packer was elected Associate Judge of Carbon county without opposition at the late election. The Republicans elected the balance of the ticket.

Charles T. White & Co., chemists in New York city, suspended Monday. Liabilities, $250,000. It is reported that another large chemical house in that city is also embarrassed.

It is stated that the annual report of the National Board of Health will show that a considerable part of the appropriation of $500,000, made two and a half years ago, is still not used.

Conformably with a suggestion in the Review some months since, the Pennsylvania Railroad Company has given orders that hereafter the designation "station" shall be used instead of "depot," on their lines.

General Grant having occasion to write Judge Rowley, of Galena for some of his presents, including Cloisonne plaques, said it this way: "You will find in the parlor two Cloisonne plaques, if you know what that means—I don't; send them with the balance."

The survey of the proposed railroad from Danby to Whitehall, N. Y., commenced Monday. It is stated that the railroad will be extended to Sackett's Harbor on Lake Ontario and will form another line via the Bennington and Rutland railroad between Chicago and Boston, connecting with the Hoosic Tunnel route by the extension road.

At the last two meetings of the Kansas City Board of Education much time was spent in discussing how to educate the "street boys." The President and the Superintendent were constituted a committee to present the matter to the City Council to see if the City Hall might not be used temporarily for a night school in the heart of the city.

The Princess of Wales while in Singleton Abbey the other day planted a linden as a memorial of her visit. She was requested to place her hand on the tree while the earth was being filled in around it; but instead of being content with so passive a part, she seized a heavy garden spade and shoveled in the earth with skill and vigor, laughing heartily all the while.

Some time since Jesse Baldwin, a wealthy eccentric citizen of Youngstown, O., took $17,000 in bonds to the Treasury at Washington and demanded gold for them. He took the money home, deposited it in a safe under the hallway with other large sums of gold. Tuesday morning, five burglars entered the house, blew open the safe and carried off $30,000 to $40,000. They also stole Baldwin's horses and carriage. Baldwin's son-in-law pursued them and a running fire resulted. Nobody was wounded. The robbers escaped.

The independent and movable vote in Pennsylvania and New York at the last election means something more than a development of independent spirit. The ease with which voters can be reached has increased enormously of late years. Ten, twenty, thirty years ago the voters of our cities, still more the voters of a State, had grown into a great mass too large for an individual canvass, and accessible only by the daily, in many cases the weekly, newspaper. The printed registry list and the postal-carrier system in cities, careful organization in the country, and more money in both, has brought about a system under which argument and appeal is thrust into each man's hand. The touch of the elbow is restored by the use of these methods in a good cause, and independent voters and the organizers of independent movements can get at each other as never before. Bosses had best take notice. The advantage and employment of an organization are no longer on their side.

The cotton exhibition at Atlanta bids fair to have an effect which was never contemplated by its projectors and promoters. It appears to have spurred on the enterprise of a Philadelphia firm, who sent as an exhibit some cotton grown on a half-acre plantation in Delaware county this State as an experiment. So successful has been the venture that it is proposed to plant 300 acres next year, which may initiate a rivalry with the Southern planters such as they had not dreamed of, resting secure as they have hitherto done within the imaginary protection of the fortieth degree as the most northern point at which this staple article could be safely grown between the frosts. Upon this subject indeed all previously formed notions seem to be exploded, as the Messrs. Falton state that the frost of the 5th of October damaged but few plants and benefited all the others. A new industry in Pennsylvania will be eagerly welcomed, and in the near future this State may be justified in looking back with pride and gratitude to the cotton show of Atlanta.—Phila. N. Country Gentleman

THE BEST OF THE AGRICULTURAL WEEKLIES.

ENLARGEMENT FOR 1882. The Country Gentleman is the leading journal of American Agriculture. In amount and practical value of contents, in extent and ability of correspondence, in quality of paper and style of publication, it occupies the first rank. It is believed to have no superior in either of the three chief divisions of while it also includes all minor departments of rural interest, such as the Poultry Yard, Entomology, Bee-keeping, Greenhouse and Grapery, Veterinary Replies, Farm Questions and Answers, Fireside Reading, Domestic Economy, and a summary of the News of the Week. Its Market Reports are unusually complete and much attention is paid to the Prospects of the Crops, as throwing light on one of the most important of all questions—When to Buy and When to Sell. It is liberally illustrated and is intended to supply, in a continually increasing degree, and in the best sense of the term, a LIVE AGRICULTURAL NEWSPAPER.

The Volume of THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN for 1882 will be largely increased in Contents by the addition of a sufficient number of pages to meet the growing demands upon its space, but the terms will continue as follows, when paid strictly in advance: ONE COPY, one year, $2.50; FOUR COPIES, $10, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the Club; TEN COPIES, $23, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the Club.
