The editors of the REVIEW return thanks to a good friend in Troy for a twelve pound turkey, so neatly and scientifically dressed that it looks good enough to eat without roasting. We hope every "poor printer" has as thoughtful and generous a friend as WILLIAM SIMMS, Esq. and that to-day they are provided with as plump a turkey as we expect to sit down to.

The musical entertainment given by Mrs. PERRIGO'S pupils at the residence of Mr. JESSE MYER last evening was enjoyed by a goodly number of ladies and gentlemen. The young ladies acquitted themselves most creditably to their teacher as well as themselves. We regret that we are unable to give a more extended notice of the exceedingly enjoyable affair. At the conclusion of the musical treat—the closing performance of which was a vocal duet by Miss LAURA SMITH and Mr. W. S. MACE, listened to with great pleasure—refreshments were served.

THANKSGIVING—To day has been set apart by the President and the Governor of the commonwealth as a day of thanksgiving and prayer for the mercies and blessings vouchsafed to the people by a kind Providence during the past year. We trust the day may be universally and conscientiously observed by all our people. A union service will be held in the Presbyterian church at 10:30 a. m. and exercises appropriate to the occasion will be observed in the Universalist church in the evening. At both places a collection will be taken for the Ladies Benevolent Association —a very proper and practical method of giving expression to thankfulness for blessings in "basket and store." Thanksgiving day was instituted by the pilgrim fathers as a day of prayer and praise in memory of the bountiful crops of the first harvest in their new home. It has grown with the nation's growth, and become a national holiday. It was originally a farmer's festival but now its observance has become so general that the home not on the farm is none the less the scene of thanksgiving joys and praise. One of the most attractive features of this memorial day is the gathering of the scattered members of the family at the old home, there under the paternal roof, to give thanks to the Giver of all good for the great blessings of national growth and prosperity. To many Thanksgiving means a feast of the fat things of the land—the best pumpkins made into the best pie, and the finest turkey of the flock served up with cranberry sauce and all the good things that go to make the feast complete. Thanksgiving day and turkey have been associated together so long and for excellent reasons, that it seems the noble bird would almost know the day the President appoints for its dissolution. Thanksgiving is pre-eminently a home festival, and though as yet a distinctively American institution it deserves not only to be preserved to us with all its sacred recollections and influences, but it or some other similar custom prevail in every land where family ties are recognized.

The members of Company A are requested to report at the Armory in full uniform at 10 o'clock a. m., Thanksgiving day, for the purpose of engaging in a shooting match for a turkey. The match will be shot on the Company's range just across the river and promises to be well contested and interesting.
