The consumption of cigarettes in the United States in the last decade has increased to a literally prodigious extent, and some of the New York manufactures turn out seemingly enough every month to supply all creation for the balance of time, but the demand increases so rapidly that manufacturers are compelled to keep step to the lively music of Young American progress, and the business of cigarette manufacture is springing up all over the country. Cigarettes are supposed by many persons to be a modern invention. This is an error. They were known and used according to the best authors centuries ago, and their origin is in dispute as between the Turk and the "Heathen Chinese."

The French, the Spanish and the Russians are patrons of the cigarette, the first-named producing, under the management of the "Regie," a prime article known as "Caporal," indicated on the lithograph signs or advertisements by a stirring picture of a corporal of the "Old Guard" of France in full uniform. The French are extremely fastidious about the paper used for "wrapper" purposes—more so, indeed than they are about the quality of the tobacco used as fillers—and the government has a peculiar "rice paper" made in China, which is highly prized.

The tobacco used for the cigarette manufacture varies according to taste, the Turkish tobacco being considered the finest, although some people prefer the Havana long-cut tobacco for fillers. Of late the cigarette has become the rage among the young smokers of America, and manufacturers vie with each other in getting up the daintiest-looking packages possible to attract the eye of the stylish and "nobby" specimen of young America who cares more for style than the quality of the tobacco. To smoke a cigarette gracefully is deemed one of the necessary modern accomplishments, and the young "fella" who can inhale the smoke and retain it the longest—a la Chinese again—is considered the champion.

Saturday while D. B. Eells, president of the Commercial National Bank of Cleveland, O., who had been cutting off coupons from some railroad and bridge bonds, was conversing with a friend in his office, an unknown man, who had been sitting in the President's office for some time, softly approached the table, picked up the pasteboard box in which the bonds had been placed and coolly walked away. The box was not missed for nearly half an hour. The bonds are all negotiable and consist of $5,000 Milwaukee and St. Paul Sinking Fund, second mortgage; $6,000 first mortgage; $20,000 first mortgage sinking fund; $1,000 consolidated; $11,000 Chicago and Milwaukee first mortgage bonds; $19,000 gold bonds, and $23,000 Chicago and Atchinson Bridge Company bonds. The total is $117,000.

Rev. Mr. Smith of the Free Methodist Church of Fulton, N. Y., is blind, but he discharges the duties of the pastorate with his wife's help. She accompanies him to church at every service, occupies the pulpit with him, reads the Scripture and hymns. At class meeting she is by his side and informs him of the names of those who speak and those who fail to do so, that he may call upon them to give their "testimony."

The American delegates to the Ecumenical Methodist Conference have united in a call for a centennial conference to be held in December, 1884, the centenary of the organization of the Methodist Episcopal Church, to be composed of representatives of all the Methodist branches of the United States. It is probable that the conference will meet in Baltimore, where in 1784 the Methodist Episcopal Church was organized.

Congressman Jadwin heard the crack of Senator Cameron's whip and voted for Keifer.
