General William T. Sherman writes in a recent letter to the Soldiers' Bazaar of Boston: "You ask me for the loan of 'the sword or sabre I wore during the famous March to the Sea.' The truth is I did not wear a sword or sabre during that march. The only honest relic I possess of that memorable time is my saddle which I value for its real goodness. I use it now when I have occasion to mount a horse. Still, for the purpose you have—to please 'several thousand old soldiers'—I have sent it to you, and hereby certify that I actually used that saddle, from Corinth, Miss., to Chattanooga—to Atlanta and to Washington." Gen. Sherman's note will recall to some readers a letter of the Duke of Wellington's, published a few years ago, in which he says, to the dismay of some historians: "I probably did not draw my sword once during the battle of Waterloo."

The New York World claims that the Refunding bill which Mr. Randall will introduce in the House is one of a series of Democratic steps to be taken towards the reduction of public expenditures. Why didn't the Democrats institute their "series of Democratic steps toward the reduction of public expenditures" when they were in the majority, instead of waiting until they are in the minority?

It is reported from Washington that Gibson's report concerning the Star Service frauds, was formally transmitted on Thursday by the acting Attorney-General, to the Postmaster-General. Now that the red tape of the Attorney General's office has been officially wound around the report it is possible the facts it contains will have more force with the Department of Justice.

The Scranton Republican joins Senator Cooper in defending Mr. Grow against the charge that he sold out the Independents in the last Senatorial contest, and says: "It is gratifying to have Senator Cooper make this candid contradiction of a common calumny at a time when his own name is mentioned prominently in connection with the gubernatorial nomination."

Governor Hoyt said in recent public address that there are 3,000 children between 12 and 16 years of age in the almshouses in this state. They are in constant contact with pauperism, have no opportunity to raise or develop self-respect, and readily become criminals. The law should stop this.

The Altoona Tribune: "It would be a good idea for every voter to examine the record and note the associations of the men who are aspiring for high places. Then when primary election time comes round let the voters go to the primaries and act according to the light they have received."

The director of the Atlanta Cotton Exposition has published an address in which he ascribes the great success of the affair to the generous support of the American press—another illustration of the benefits of newspaper advertising. The Exposition will close on the 31st instant.

The war at Harrisburg on the Grave Yard Insurance Companies has commenced to bear fruit. The Directors of one of the largest of these disgraceful swindles are to be tried in January for conspiracy. Justice should take sure aim in their cases.

Chicago has a Margaret Fuller society composed of ladies who meet for the discussion of social questions.
