General Beaver,

The fact that Gen. Beaver is now a prominent candidate for Governor will give the appended sketch of his military career new interest. We copy it from an article in the Philadelphia Times of Saturday last, written from Bellefonte:

GENERAL BEAVER'S HISTORY.

James Addams Beaver was born at Millerstown, Perry county, on the 21st of October, 1837. His mother was Miss Addams, of the same section. He had only the usual rude common schools of that day to lay the foundation for his education, but he finally reached Jefferson College, where he graduated creditably in 1856. Three years later he was admitted to the bar in this town, where he had studied his profession, and his lot was thus cast for life with the intelligent and solidly progressive people of this region. He exhibited an early taste for the military, and made his first appearance as a lieutenant of the Bellefonte Fencibles before the war, where he commanded the embryo War Governor of the State. In 1865, after he had returned from the field, full of scars and honors and with one leg left on the field of Ream's Station, he married Miss Mary McAllister, daughter of the late H. N. McAllister, then one of the ablest lawyers of Central Pennsylvania. His accomplished wife, his several bright children, his pretty, home-like residence on one of the hills surrounding the town, and his ever genial greeting for his friends attract many to his family circle and leave pleasant memories with all his visitors. In person he is nearly six feet in height, although his indispensable use of the crutch to perform the duties of his missing leg makes him appear less in stature. Before he entered the military service he was delicate almost to effeminacy, but his form and face have rounded out handsomely, and his slightly silvered hair, keen gray eye and military hat give him all the air of the veteran soldier he is. At the bar he is singularly tenacious in battling for his cause, but one of the most manly of foes in legal conflicts. In his private life and character he is most exemplary, being a consistent and active member of the Presbyterian Church, and energetic in all the offices of morality and humanity. Indeed he is regarded by many as religious even to bigotry and intolerant in his efforts for Temperance and social order.

GENERAL BEAVER AS A SOLDIER.

When the rebel guns first sounded against Fort Sumpter the Bellefonte Fencibles were among the first to respond to Governor Curtin's call for troops, and Lieutenant Beaver was among the most zealous in the cause. The company was the third to report at Harrisburg, and it was mustered into the service with Beaver as First Lieutenant, in which position he served during the three months' term. As soon as he was mustered out he re-enlisted and was promoted to the Lieutenant Colonelcy of the Forty-fifth Regiment, which was ordered to South Carolina. Colonel Beaver was there stationed at Fort Walker with five companies, commanding the entrance to Port Royal Bay. In July, 1862, the Regiment was ordered north and Beaver was made Colonel of the One Hundred and Forty-eighth Regiment, one of the new three years regiment then recruited. His command was present at Fredericksburg, but was in the reserve, and did not become engaged in that unfortunate conflict, but at Chancellorsville Colonel Beaver gallantly led his command into a hand-to-hand conflict with the enemy, where he fell, as was then believed, mortally wounded. The ball passed clear through his body, but skillful surgical treatment brought him through, and he rejoined his command and was actively engaged at Bristow Station and Mine Run. In the spring of 1864, Colonel Beaver was conspicuous for gallantry at Spottsylvania, North Anna, and Tolopotomy. At the first he was struck by a minie ball, but was saved from a dangerous and probably a fatal wound by a memorandum book. At Cold Harbor he was also struck but not seriously disabled and he maintained his position on the field at the head of his command.

In the first assault before Petersburg, Colonel Beaver was struck by a fragment of a shell and suffered severe internal injuries and a terrible flesh wound in the side. He was again compelled to linger fretfully in the hospital while the last battles for the Union were being fought from day to day. He left the hospital before he was able to ride his horse, and proceeded in an ambulance to the field, and reached it just as the army was preparing to go into battle at Ream's Station, and he at once assumed command of his brigade. He was only a short time on the field when he was struck on the right leg, above the knee. He was left on the field, but a faithful surgeon remained with him, amputated his leg, and between the hospitality of an enemy and the ceaseless and skillful care of his surgeon he received. He was brevetted a Brigadier General for gallantry in action, and he returned home to Bellefonte at the close of the war to resume the practice of his profession.

This remedy is something new, both as to name and composition. This is one of the wonders of the world. This Syrup, I claim, is better and more effective than any other ever offered to the people of America or any other country, and what I say of this I can prove. This Syrup, like the Pills, is harmless and safe. It contains no opium or other narcotic poison, like the most Syrup, and is not disagreeable to take. Any child will take it.
