A FRUIT LADDER. Split an ash or spruce pole to within a few feet of the end; then put on a ring or insert a wrought nail and clinch it, so as to prevent the pole from splitting. spread it the right width for a ladder; until near the crotch, where it must gradually curve; confine it in this shape: bore and insert rounds the proper distance, and it is ready to poke up through any little opening, and will rest firmly against a small branch where a common ladder would often cant or twist about.

'We have a fruit ladder different from the above, and more complicated and unwieldy, but much better adapted to trees that bear the weight of a ladder and a man. We took a common ladder, some twelve feet in length, bored a fiveeighths hole between the first and second rounds at the top; a pair of legs on supfeet at the bettom, is prepared, and ar iron bolt passed through both, and keyed. The legs are strengthened with fies and afford a perfectly safe ladder to get at the outer branches of large as well as small trees, being self sup- of porting. The ladder, separated from these legs; can of course be used for any ordinary purpose - Maine farmer.

CUTTING AND MAKING HAY. In making hay, the main object to be attended is, to preserve it in a state as nearly resembling the grass in its perfect condition as possible. To accomplish this it is necessary to know in what state it is best to cut. Of the various ingredients of grass, those portions soluble in water immediately are best fitted for nu trition : it should, therefore, be cut when ed in it; that period has been determined by chemists to be, when the grass is in full flower, before the seed is formed. hay, before the sap is sufficiently dissistion of pated to fit it to be put in the mow, and, the consequence is, if thus stored, it is mow-burned. As time advances, old driven by horses, is coming into use wherever it can be used to advantage, thus lightening the labor of the field .-The new mown grass, if allowed to lie would then bear to in the scoreling sun, is apt to brown, or wither; it should be turned to prevent this; and here the tedding machines retains the chief part of its natural juic-RECEIPTS.

When you have exhausted your patience, and think it must be clean, rinse thoroughly with alcohol, fold between clothes, and iron with a hot iron. Don't wring the ribbon; if you don you will get creases in it that you cannot smooth out.

FRESH YEAST ROLLS -In the evening take one quart of new milk, stir in flour sufficient to make a thick batter, and two truth. tablespoonfuls hop yeast. Let it stand till morning, then add one pint of new milk, one tablespoonful melted butter, lated to us from the East: one pint of flour. Let it stand one hour in a warm place; then add flour knows, he will lead a hapy life. and mix stiff enough to knead. Make If a man does not know, and till light and bake in a quick oven.

CURE FOR A FELON.-Apply a salve of marrow taken from the back bone of a bullock, so that the part affected shall be completely covered. Repeat, if necessary; but usually the effect is so speedy as to remove the pain and restore the parts to a healthy condition in less than an hour.
