It such a spot were really known, Dame Peace might claim it as her own, And in it she might fix her throne, Forever and forever;

There like a queen might reign and live. Where every one would soon forgive, The little slights they may receive, And be offended never.

The mischief-makers that remove Far from our hearts the warmth of love, And lead us all to disapprove . What gives another pleasure;

They seem to take one's part, but when They've heard our case, unkindly then They soon retail them a'l again, Mixed with poisonous measure.

And they have such a cunning way Of felling tales. They say: "Don't mention what I say, I pray; I would not tell another."

Straight to a neighbor's house they go. Narrating everything they know; And break the peace of high and low— Wife, husband, friend and brother.

Oh! that the mischief-making crew Were all reduced to one or two, And they were painted red and blue,

That everyone might know them: Then would the village soon forget To rage and quartel, fume and fret, And tall into an angry pet With things too much below them.

For it's a sad degrading part, 'To make another's bosom smart, And plant a dagger in the heart We ought to love and cherish; Then let us evermore be found In quietness with all around While friendship, joy and peace abound And angry teelings perish.
