FEEDING STOCK.

A Connesponent says, with regard to feeding stock in winter: With good clergyman supposing that two couple care and attention, stock coming into were to be made one, asked the gentlewinter quarters in fair condition may be brought through the winter on the coars ladies, which was done, and in a few BOOTS AND SHOES, se and less valuable portions of fodder, an I come out thriving in spring. Generally there is a large growth of corn the parties concluded to accept it and COLLARS, NECK TIES, GLOVES, HOSI fod lar, and if this has been sayed proparly, it will furnish a large amount of valuable feed. Cut fine and mixed with the different qualities of meadow hay, straw of the different varieties of grain, a'l cut, moistened, and a little salt added and allowed to be in bulk a few hours or days, according as the weather may be, to soften before feeding, it will be eaten nearly or quite clean, and do as much good as the better quality of hay ted whole. Especially if a small sprinkling of meal or any kind of grain, or a few pulped roots are added, we have a feed which stock will thrive upon in a remarkable degree.

If the farmer has both hay and grain, it is better to feed a portion of the grain in this way, ground into meal, than to sell it-selling a portion of his hay instead, if either must be disposed of. The more concentrated the food the more fattening material is furnished, and the Democratic party by the Southern richer and better the manure. Corn fodder, course hay and straw cut and mixed as above, with a little meal to give a flavor to the taste and smell, will is historical; 'Will they fight? HOW TO MAKE BOTH ENDS MEET Mr. Johnson says that he has noticed that those farmers who have the most difficulty to make both ends meet, always plaw the most and keep the most stock.
