VOLUME XI.

More than one year ago we made our bow to the readers of the REPUBLICAN. just one year ago we gave a passing notice to the entering upon a new volume. The times have wrought changes with all, and we have almost grown intimate in acquaintance. You weekly anticipate the coming of your paper, and it has grown to be our weekly pleasure, as well as toil, to cull, chip and write, that its pages may be freighted with good cheer and welcome intelligence. Our hopes and anticipations, cherished from the outset, have been realized to an extent that makes the retrospect a happy one. We look back with pleasure upon the battle fought and won-the campaign of '66. It gives us joy to think we held the helm during so nota ble a struggle, and nerves us for the sterner duties that are before. We have all confidence in the fidelity and sterling worth of Little Greene's MINORITY. We offer no valicinations as to the future, but would point to the past as a guide. Be what you have been and all will be well.

THE SURRATT TRIAL

The counsel for the Government the Surratt case are on hand and ready for the commencement of the trial on Monday last. Ex-Congressman Riddle, of Uhio, has completed, in connection with the Assistant District Attorney, the preliminaries of the evidence. The detense are also ready, and the only delay will be in obtaining a jury, which it is are confident of conviction, and will present evidence for the prosecution far more important than that produced on the military trial of the conspirators, and which will, it is believed, clear up the hidden details of the assassination plot.

disqualification from voting Mr. Stansbery elaborately examines the meaning of the act which excludes officers who have taken part in the rebellion, and decides that officers of the militia are not included ; that the act does not apply to municipal officers, and that with all those who are not strictly State, Judicial or Executive officers, the uncertain definition, which he contends exists in the law must be construed in favor of the voter A vast body of officers, he asserts, are not positively excluded by the law. The disqualification based on the breaking of the oath of office is the next subject of the opinion which is given to this effect -that the disqualification is intended to comprehend military as well as civil officers, and to be more general in application to United States officers than to those of a State. Of more practical importance is the next question-what acts constitute the guilt of engaging in rebellion, or of giving comfort or aid to the enemies of the United States ! A4 these acts are defined the number of voters is to be restricted or enlarged -Mr. Stansbery advances the extraordinary opinion, that the phrase 'enemies of the United States' should be confined to what he asserts to be its legal meaning, viz , foreign nations, and that only such of those who gave aid and comfort to Great Britain in 1812, and to Mexico in 1847, should be distranchised under the clause. Yet he is 'not quite prepared to say that Congress may not have used it as applicable to the rebellion ' It is well that he was not quite prepared to make such a decision, for if there is anyat Gettysburg and Atlanta, and not by any means those who were defeated forty the old slogan of the Democratic party -"rule or ruin !" Without direct reference to the montrous proposition of re pudiation it is bad enough. It is evident the man means "fight," just as Democracy did in 1860, but this time he wants war in the North and against those who won the late struggle-the men who handled the greenbacks and those who handled the musket. It is not probable that his desires will be gratified, but did he succeed in kicking up a muss, ten to one he would want to be a quartermaster.

EXHILARATING -A short jaunt into the country last week refreshed our energies somewhat and gave us the opportunity of observing the general appearance and condition of affairs among the farmers A universal hop-fulness is diffused into the spirit of the people concorning the crops. Never did Nature a new building on North Seventh St .promise a more bountiful yield The It is a lively sheet devoting most of its grass has seemingly leaped from the earth, the foliage burst from the buds, and cereals of all kinds present that rauk appearance betokening lusty growth .--The only thing we can complain ot is day in the borough of Washington, rethe non-working of the roads. In but very few instances have they been touched. Where they are it is but rudely and imperfectly done. Not sufficient drainage, no provision for comfort in the leveling and breaking. The people look at this matter too much in the light of the man who wouldn't root his house when it rained because he couldn't, and when it didu't rain because it didn't need it. Now is the time the roads should be worked. We hope the present Court may give us relief in the way of a proclamation to county supervisors. It can't be too severe.

SHOOTING AFFAIR -- An accidental shooting affair occurred on last Thurssulting in the death of a colored man named James Bryan. It appears that Bryan and another colored man named Samuel Adams, both residents of Washington, went out on a gunning expedition, and when near the Cemetery, outside the borough, Adams discharged the gun, accidentally shooting Bryan. The ball took effect in Bryan's body, near the heart. He was taken to his home, and physicians summoned, but no hopes of his recovery were entertained. After the shooting, Adams delivered himself up, and is now in custody. The shooting occurred between one and two o'clock in the afternoon. The injured man has

those who were compelled to aid in Rebellion, conscripts, salves, and officers who, in obedience to defacto government, were concerned with the administration of law. Purely civil and necessary officers he cannot bring himself to believe were meant by Congress, and upon this point the argument is very full. We cannot say that the Attorney-General has stated his opinion very emphatically, or tersely, though for this he may plead the alleged uncertainty and vagueness of the acts themselves. But the drift of his argument may be summed up to be in his own words

The intent (of the acts) as expressed, is to enable the people of each of these States to frame a Constitution for the State by the exercise of the right of suffrage. There are clauses of the act giving the right by general terms of description to the people generally, and especially to those who have never enjoyed the right before. There are other clauses of the act which, by general terms, take away this right of suffrage from those who always enjoyed it. The rule of construction ato the clauses which give the right must be liberal, and to them the general terms are not to be restricted, but to those clauses which derogate from the existing right the rule of construction must be strict, that none should be excluded who are not clearly within the letter and intent' With this general construction we are satisfied, but not with the special opinion based upon it. THE Republicans of Lawrence county
