"Stealing a grave!" was echoed in aston ishment from all sides. "Impossible!"
"Absurd!" "Can't be done!"
"But it was done," insisted the officer;
"and I'll tell you how. Xou know that the -st Regulars and the -th Oregon volunteers are brigaded together and camped side by Each regiment had a death yesterday and to-day the regulars made preparations to bury their man. They sent out a party to dig a grave beyond the guard lines, and in the meantime they were making their corpse ready. The volunteers had theirs all ready working party out of sight after the grave was dug, than the volunteers started their escort, marched—quick time, I guess straight to the grave, buried their man and covered him up; and when the regulars came round with their funeral, they found that the volunteers had actually stolen their

A POWERFUL INSECT:-The tendency o oldiers to grotesque exaggeration is well illustrated by the remark of one of them concerning that greatest pest of the camp which the dictionaries denominate a "small insect of the genus pediculus." It presumes every army in history has been annoyed by this atomy, but I think none suffered it and at the section of the genus pediculus. the same time made it the subject of habitual jest before the armies of our war. As in the case of every other source of vexation, the men grumbled over it, and philosophized at it and laughed at it. it, and laughed at it.
"I could bear the little fellows, and say nothing about them," I heard a dry joker in blue say to his comrades at reveille roll-call one morning, "but such monsters as there in this camp! Why, I woke up last night and saw one of these creefers sitting at the foot of my bunk. He had his back to me, and there was a great U.S. A. on it: but when he turned round-great Scott! what d've think he was doing !!! "Eating hard-tack?" suggested one, with a wink.

"Smoking your pipe?" put in another.

"No he wasn't; he was picking his teeth with my bayonet!"—Lippincott's Magazinc.

Broad and Hamilton streets, Philadelphia, Penna, wended call the attention of Railroad
Managers, and those interested in the company of their system of Locomotive Pagines, in which they are adapted to the particular business for which they may be required; by the use of one, two, there ex four pair of driving wheels, and the ase of the whole, or so much of the weight, as may be desirable for adhesion; and in accommodating them to the grades, curvers strength of superstruction, and rail work to be done. By, these means the maximum useful effect of the power is secured with the least expense for attendance, cost of fuel, and repairs to Road and Engine. With these objects in view, and as the result of twenty-three years practical experience in the business by our senior partner, we manufacture five different kinds of Engines, and several classes of sizes of each kind. Particular attention paid to the strength of the machine in the plan and workmansing of all the details. Our long experience and opportunities of obtaining information, enables us to offer these engines with the assurance that in efficiency, economy and durability they will compare favorably with those of any other-kind in use. We also furnish to order, wheels, axies, bowling or low moor tire (to fit centres without boring,) composition castings for bearings of every description of Copper, Sheet Iron and Boller Works; and every article apportaining to the popair or renewal of Locomotive Engines.

The Farmer.

AN ENGLISH PRIZE FARM. A liberal gentleman offered this year a prize cup of the value of £100, to be awarded by the Royal Agricultural Speicty of England upon the test managed farm held by a tenant in a district around Oxford, the exact tenant in a district around extend, the exact limitations of which we do not recollect, but it included an area of some hundreds of square miles. A committee was appointed to examine the candidate farms, with Mr. Torr, the great Lincolnshire farmer and breeder acting as chairmin. Their actions are chairmin. breeder, acting as chairman. Their award has now been rendered, and the five-hundred

Ashgrove Farm, which wins the prize he longs to the Duke of Marlborough, and is held by a Mrs. Millington, whose husband rented it in 1851 for a term of 21 years, and died a year or more ago, feaving it under hey management. It is about 880 acres in extent, 70 of which are in pasture of poor quality, and the soil is spoken of as thin and poor throughout—a fact the judges must have borne in mind, from the published accounts, in considering the obstacles with which the in considering the obstacles with which the occupant had to contend in the production of good crops. Undeed the evident fact of of good crops, inneed the evident met of good crops, appears to have won the day for Mrs. Millington, as the reporters find her buildings incomplete and rude, the accommodations for stock and the stock itself being modations for stock and the stock itself being both inferior, the implements many of the intiquated and clumby, the fields and fences liberal to criticism in various ways. But the impression left after all says the Agricultural Gazette, is "that the scene of a paying business has been inspected." The use of the temant's capital to the best advantage was to oc considered, and not the investment of the landlord's, in expensive structures. The

PRESERVING FRUIT. - The fruit season man be prolonged by having early and late ripling varieties of each kind of fruit, and a supply may be obtained sufficient to last throughout the year by preserving a sufficient quantity of the various fruits, according as they come to maturity. There are numerous kinds of glass jars for holding preserves, all of which are superior to tin caus; for glass cannot be cogroded by the acid of the fruit. There have been many cases of fatal poisoning from enting fruit put up in cans. In pre-serving fruit, it is necessary that it should be perfectly sound and recently gathered. Dan-aged berries, etc., should be rejected. The fixed air should be expelled by sufficient cooking, but much boiling softens the fruit too much, and unfits it for making choice preserves. Some kinds of fruit require-more boiling them others. In filling ies, an more boiling than others. In filling jars in bottles, air should be excluded by corking tight and covering every bit of the cork with cement. Corks are porous, and if not scaled, air will enter and destroy the fruit. In far-where an India rubber ring and metallic is are used, the pressure on the rubber should be strong enought to effectually exclude an A wrapper, if oiled, thed over the lift, will be
