PROTHONOTARY CANDIDATES

The time for filing intentions to be candidate for prothonotary on the Republican ticket to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Frank Pike, ended Tuesday night. There are but two candidates, W. G. Gordon of Towanda and John W. Storms of South Waverly. J. W. Stone, Esq., of Canton considered the candidacy but on Tuesday he decided not to do so. Primaries are Saturday evening, September 30, and the convention is October 5.

EXCITING RUNAWAY

A runaway at the east end of the Packer avenue bridge caused considerable excitement last evening. The wagon was overturned and the occupants, including two little girls, were thrown out and stunned. At first they seemed to be badly injured but soon recovered without lasting harm.

HOSPITAL NOTES

Mrs. Frances Young of Towanda was admitted today.

Mrs. Ella Bailey of Milan was operated upon today.

Card of Thanks

Waverly—Through the columns of The Record Mrs. G. A. Crispin and family desire to thank all those who so kindly assisted them during the illness and death of their daughter and sister, Leah Winifred Green, also for the beautiful floral pieces at the time of the funeral.

Discovered.

"Confidentially, public office is a private graft, if you know how to work it. Yes, but it's a parlor game, old man, the smoothest are pretty sure to get caught."

"True enough, if they don't possess the peculiar immunity that, fortunately, I enjoy. You don't know me!"

"W-who are you?"

"Hut! S-s-sh! Mum is the word! I'm the mysterious Tertium Quid."

"W-what! Is it possible that you're the man that struck Billy Patterson?"

"Give us something modern; I'm the Man Higher Up!"—Washington Post.

Among the Fouticians.

Judging from a cursory glance at the people we know, it would seem that girth and good clothes were as important factors in personal prosperity as integrity and intellect.—Puck.

Bagpipes from Norway.

It is a curious fact that bagpipes were invented in Norway and thence imported into Scotland in a period when a portion of the country fell into Scandinavian hands.

Hope from Seaweed.

The largest plant in the world is probably a species of seaweed, which often attains a length of 300 feet. The stems are dried and used as ropes by the South Sea Islanders.

Think It No Sin.

Many a lady smuggles who would no more tip her ball into the better position at croquet than she would cut a throat or scuttle a ship.—London Telegraph.

BOARD DENIES THEM FRANCHISE

The Local Trolley Company Were Not Granted Franchises at a Special Meeting of the Board of Trustees Held Last Evening.

Waverly—A special meeting of the Village Board of Trustees was held at the Town Hall last evening for the purpose of acting on the franchises asked for by the Waverly, Sayre and Athens Traction company. The company asked for the right to extend their tracks into Fulton, Elizabeth, Spalding and Eric streets, but on motion of Trustee Brown the franchises were denied. The vote on the question stood two in favor of and five opposed to allowing the company to extend, and President Tucker made the announcement that the franchises were denied. The two who were in favor of allowing the company to extend its lines were Trustees Genung and Lord, and those who voted for the motion were President Tucker, Trustees Brougham, Brown, Osborne and Myers. A secret session of a quarter of an hour duration was held previous to the meeting of the Board.

McEwen—Beekman

Waverly—A pretty home wedding was celebrated in the presence of only a few of the immediate relatives and friends of the contracting parties, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Beekman on Williams street, last evening, when Miss Dorothy Beekman was united in marriage to Raymond McEwen, associate editor of the Waverly Free Press. The contracting parties are both well known and highly respected young people and have a large circle of friends in this city who hope for them the best that life affords. The ceremony was performed by Rev. M. S. Godshall, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church. The gifts from friends show plainly the high esteem in which the young people are held. Mr. and McEwen are on a honeymoon trip to New York and other places, after which they will reside in this city. The Record unites with the large number of friends in extending congratulations.

Sued for Merchandise

Waverly—Charles A. Henkel of Patterson, N. J., brought action against George Paynton, Jr., who conducts a bakery on Broad street, this city, to recover a claim of $19.58 said to be due the plaintiff for merchandise. A commission to take the evidence of the plaintiff who lives outside of the state, by interrogatories and cross-interrogatories was applied for by Judge Bell who appeared for the plaintiff. The commission was granted. Attorney F. E. Hawkes appeared for the defendant. The case was adjourned to October 5, 1905.

Meeting of School Board

Waverly—At a regular meeting of the School Board held at their office in High school building last evening the bond of Tax Collector Gilbert C. Higgins for $40,000 with F. E. Lyford and I. P. Shepard as sureties was accepted and approved and the tax book placed in Mr. Higgins' hands for the collection of taxes. A new janitor was appointed for the West End school house in the person of Geo. Mandeville. The Board consider themselves very fortunate in securing Mr. Mandeville's services.

Corn Roast Last Evening.

Waverly—The corn roast given at the home of Miss Susie Squires in East Waverly last evening by the B. Y. P. U. of the Baptist church was a most enjoyable affair. The evening was fine and a good number were present.

A Nuptial Event

Waverly—At the home of the bride's parents about one mile from this city yesterday occurred the marriage of John Hutchinson and Miss Nina Coleman, both of Waverly. Rev. M. S. Godshall officiated.

TOWN HAUNTED BY HEADLESS GHOST

SPECTER WHICH HAS STARTLED PEOPLE OF FLAHERTY, IND.

APPARITION WALKS TRACK

Appears in Attitude of Switchman Flagg-ing a Train with a Dinner Pail—Attempt Made to Capture It.

Laporte, Ind.—Ranked among the impossible spirit stories of tradition and of poetry is the one that keeps the residents in the vicinity of Flaherty in constant fear and trembling. They are not afraid during the day time, but their voices are lowered in a singular manner when they approach the little railroad station where the history of the ghost of Columbus Cole is being made. Nightly, after the sun sets, Flaherty station is avoided, because there is no question about the possibility of the ghost's appearing. Headless and acting for all the world like an animate thing, the apparition occurs intermittently. Sometimes the elements appear to control its action, but more generally it makes its appearance, dinner pail in hand, on the platform and attempts to swing its arms as if it were flagging a passing train. Then it disappears and its subsequent appearances are a matter of chance.

THE HEADLESS APPARITION.

Hearing so much of the alleged spirit, a company of young men accompanied by a newspaper correspondent, went to the station the other night and the previous night for the purpose of investigating the matter.

On the first night they sat near the depot, and amused themselves as best they could until daylight began to break, when they returned home without having their curiosity satisfied, but the next night they had a different experience.

Reaching the station early in the night, they prepared to take things easy, but had hardly made such a disposal of themselves as was satisfactory, when one of the boys raised his hand and cried: "Hist."

They all looked and saw the ghost—the ghost they had been told about—headless and carrying a dinner pail. It was no delusion of the eyesight. It was the real, clear outline of Columbus Cole as they had known him in life and the same eternal dinner pail. For five minutes or more they watched the apparition as the arms swung as if signaling a train, and then, spurred on by one united impulse, they rushed to the place where they had seen the figure. Nothing but vacancy greeted them when they reached the spot where the figure had been seen. Cole's spirit had entirely disappeared and they stood and looked at each other in silence, marveling at the supernatural incident and no longer skeptics, but believers.

Unstrung from the shock of the manifestation—totally unexpected, by the way—they walked home in silence, firm adherents of the ghost theory.

Some of the good people who live in the neighborhood of Flaherty are anxious to do something to set the spirit at rest. They say that something is troubling it. The generally accepted theory is that Cole wanted to do something before he died—that the something remains undone and that the spirit will continue to wander until it comes in contact with a sympathetic spirit clothed in worldly clay to which it can communicate its desires.

Columbus Cole was a well-known and popular resident of the vicinity of Flaherty, who lost his life years ago in a boiler explosion. The top of his head was completely blown off by the accident. Soon after he died the trouble with the ghost began and the people have come to look at it in a matter-of-fact manner. They do not deny the story. They have got beyond that point and many interesting incidents are related of the ghost's history.

Flaherty people swear by their "ghost." It is an interesting ghost and it is more powerful in keeping the old and young within doors than all the curfews that ever sounded from city hall or church steeple. There is hardly a man living within three miles of Flaherty station who cannot entertain one for hours with stories of the ghost's doings. Meanwhile the people are anxious to locate the kindred spirit graded with a human body to which the shade of Columbus Cole will tell its troubles.

Gape Dislocates Man's Jaw.
Muscatine, Ia.—William Schulpe, of this city, dislocated his jaw while gapping after taking a short nap. It took three doctors an hour to replace the bone. When Schulpe woke up he opened his mouth to its full extent and kept it there way 24 hours.
