BRYAN IS HONORED

With Him Bon Voyage at Banquet in Chicago.

"DEMOCRACY VS. CENTRALIZATION"

Nebraska Selects It as His Text in Addressing 300 Guests at the Jefferson Club-Dunne on Municipal Ownership.

CHICAGO, Sept. 13.—William Jennings Bryan, soon to leave for a tour of the world, was the recipient of a notable testimonial of esteem last night at a banquet given in his honor by the Jefferson club at their rooms, Randolph and Clark streets. Covers were laid for 300 guests, and among those present were Congressman H. T. Rainey of Illinois, Ollie M. James of Kentucky, Mayor Edward F. Dunne of Chicago, Judge James B. Tavin of Covington, Ky.; Samuel Alschuler of Aurora, Ill.; E. L. Masters, president of the Jefferson club, Clarence S. Darrow and other Chicagoans.

When Mr. Bryan rose to speak he was greeted with an enthusiastic demonstration, and it was some minutes before the applause subsided sufficiently to allow him to proceed. He spoke on "Democracy Versus Centralization," his speech being in part as follows:

The partial adoption by some of the Republican leaders of remedies proposed by the Democratic party make it appear as if a distinction between the fundamental principles of Democracy and the principles of those who view subjects of government from a different standpoint. There are two forces constantly at work in every nation, one force tending to bring the government nearer to the people and the other tending to carry the government away from the people. The latter force is the force of centralization, and it is a force which is constantly at work in every nation. It is a force which is constantly at work in every nation. It is a force which is constantly at work in every nation.

Major Dunne responded to the toast "The Progress of Municipal Ownership." He said in part: "We have met here to do honor and wish bon voyage to our distinguished and admired guest, Colonel Bryan. We admire and respect him because at all times and under all circumstances and in every place in which he found himself he has stood for public utility in politics and placed man before Mammon."

"Whether in victory or in defeat, he has always stood for the right, and the man who so acts must always earn, as he has earned, the respect and confidence of his fellow countrymen. And now that he is leaving us for a trip abroad our good wishes go with him, and we ask him in his travels abroad to note well the advantages and disadvantages of governmental institutions and to bring back to us the benefits of his observation and experience. And particularly we ask him to inquire into and report to us the results which he discovers of the operation of great public utilities in private and in public hands."

Major Dunne then discussed the progress made toward municipal ownership in Chicago since the spring election of 1905, saying that he had no doubt that the plan which he had submitted to the city council would be adopted bring about municipal ownership of the street railways at a very early date.

"No vital feature of the plan," he said, "has been successfully attacked. It has been subjected to abuse, but not analysis; to vilification, but not analysis. It will stand the test of honest inspection and straightforward investigation."

"The fight that the friends of municipal ownership have inaugurated will go on. Every possible obstacle will be thrown in its way by the vested interests behind the present traction companies, but the onward march toward municipal ownership both in this city and throughout the civilized world will be simply retarded, but never defeated."

Injunction Against Lawson Denied. BOSTON, Sept. 13.—In the supreme court here Judge Morton denied an injunction sought by Louis N. Rahn of Uruque, Mexico, against Thomas W. Lawson of this city in a suit involving $8,750,000. The court devoted the entire day to the case. Among the witnesses was Mr. Lawson, and his testimony at one stage was of an unexpected nature. He caused a stir in the courtroom by making the allegation that Mr. Rahn was responsible for the death of Superintendent Gilbert Johnson, who was fatally stabbed at the Lawson company's mines in Mexico last July. Mr. Lawson qualified his statement by saying he did not charge Rahn with the actual murder, but claimed that he stood by and did not lift a hand in Johnson's defense. Lawson claimed that the breach of the agreement was on the side of Rahn because the options transferred.

TOGO'S SHIP LOST.

Famous Japanese Battleship, the Mikasa, Blows Up.

NEARLY SIX HUNDRED LIVES LOST

Magazine Explodes on Vessel Which Led in Fight With Rostevskan. Cause Is Unknown—Many Landsmen Die.

TOKYO, Sept. 13.—The Japanese battleship Mikasa, the flagship of Vice Admiral Togo during the battle of the sea of Japan, caught fire and sank. The loss of life by the sinking of the battleship totals 569 officers and men, including detachments from other warships which went to the rescue of the vessel.

The battleship caught fire from an unknown cause at midnight Sept. 10 and before the fire could be subdued the flames reached the after magazine, which exploded, blowing a hole in the port side of the Mikasa below the water line and causing her to sink.

The cause of the fire is under investigation. At the battle of the sea of Japan Admiral Togo, as the engagement was about to open, few the following signal: "The destiny of our empire depends upon this action. You are all expected to do your utmost."

In that battle the Mikasa was the heaviest loser of all the Japanese ships, having sixty-three killed and wounded. She approached nearer to the Russians than any other battleship. According to one report of the engagement, in a conning turret a lieutenant at Admiral Togo's side was wounded with a splinter from a shell, and Togo went to his knees and cared for the young officer. After the battle when he arrived at Sasebo Togo allowed no one to land and himself did not leave his ship till he visited the captive Russian commander, Admiral Rostevskan.

The Mikasa was also the flagship of Admiral Togo during the great naval battle fought off Port Arthur on Aug. 10, 1904, on which occasion the Mikasa also suffered the most damage, but continued in the fighting line. In that battle the Mikasa and four officers and twenty-nine men killed, six officers and twenty-nine men severely wounded and four officers and twenty-two men slightly wounded.

The Mikasa was a first class battleship of 15,200 tons displacement. She was built in England and was launched in 1902. She was 400 feet long, 70 feet in breadth and drew 27 1/2 feet of water. She had 10,431 indicated horsepower, giving her a speed of more than eight knots. The Mikasa carried a crew of 935 officers and men. Her armor belt was four to nine inches thick, her deck was protected by three inches of armor, she had six inches of steel on her sides above the belt, and her bulkheads were protected by twelve inches of steel. She had fourteen inches of steel armor over her heavy gun positions and six inches of steel over her secondary battery gun positions.

The disaster to the battleship Mikasa cast a gloom everywhere. The Mikasa was Togo's flagship and was one of the best of the fleet. Her armor was at anchor in Sasebo harbor when the fire started at the base of the mainmast at midnight. It spread with great rapidity, exploding the after magazine an hour after the fire had been discovered. The Mikasa sank in shallow water, and it is believed the ship can be repaired. Rescuing parties were sent from the various warships in the harbor, and there was heavy casualties among them.

Various conjectures are current as to the cause of the fire. Some attribute it to an overcharge of electricity. Great relief was felt throughout Japan when it was learned that Admiral Togo was not on board the ship at the time of the fire.

London on Disaster. LONDON, Sept. 13.—Opinion here connects the disaster to the Mikasa with the dissatisfaction in Japan over the peace terms.

Bled Saving a Girl. CHICAGO, Sept. 13.—M. McPherson was killed while dragging Miss Della Lennon of Bay City, Mich., from the front of a freight train. Both were struck, and McPherson was killed almost instantly. Miss Lennon was seriously hurt.

TO FRAME RATE BILL.

Elkins' Committee Will Meet in November. For That Purpose.

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—Senator Stephen B. Elkins of West Virginia, chairman of the senate committee on interstate commerce, has issued a call to the committee to meet in Washington on Nov. 15 to frame a bill providing for railroad rate supervision and regulation by the government to be introduced at the coming session of congress.

To Senator Elkins is given the credit for having blocked legislation on the rate question in the last session of congress. Senator Elkins publicly announced that he was opposed to the president's plan and by pursuing a systematic programme of filibustering in committee he was able to prevent action.

Senator Elkins announced that he was convinced that action at the coming session was inevitable and said that he would cooperate in passing a bill satisfactory to the president. "I think I am justified," said Senator Elkins to a reporter, "in stating that all the Republican, or majority members of the committee, have concluded that there must be railroad legislation this winter. The president, I understand, is as emphatic as ever in his judgment that the railroad rate and private car line problem must be dealt with decisively. I think there is no doubt that some sort of bill will be passed. Just what its provisions will be is of course a matter of conjecture."

The committee will not be long in framing a bill, as I believe the individual members have formed definite opinions on what they desire, and all that will remain to be done is to agree on some one plan. This, I think, will not require more than two weeks, so that when the senate convenes in December a bill will have been framed for presentation to the senate."

WRONG MAN HANGED. Murderer, Pursued by Remorse, Confesses and Disappears. MINOT, N. D., Sept. 13.—When my lifeless body is found justify my death, Mrs. Catherine Herzog of Girard, O. The inclosed letter will reveal my identity and the awful secret of my wretched life. I can endure it no longer. This note was found by Frank Byer, who lives near Hidden Wood, this county. It was written by one of his harvest hands. In it the writer, who signed himself Charles Herzog, says: "Dear Mr. Byer—In the early seventies Charles Sterling, a supposed tramp, was tried for the murder of Lizzie Grombacher, a beautiful young woman, residing near Youngstown, in Mahoning county, O. He was convicted on circumstantial evidence and was hanged for the crime in the county jail at Youngstown. Charles Sterling was an innocent man. I am guilty of the murder of that young girl. Byer and his neighbors have made a search without success for the body of Herzog. The murder of Lizzie Grombacher occurred in 1874, and Charles Sterling, a tramp, was hanged for it in 1877 after two trials. Sterling maintained his innocence to the end. The crime caused intense excitement through Ohio and this part of the country. Miss Grombacher was about seventeen years old. She was beautiful. Her body was found in the bushes between Youngstown and Poland with a veil tied tightly around the throat. Charles Sterling, the tramp who was hanged for the crime was convicted on circumstantial evidence.

BALKS STATE PROBE

New York Life Official Won't Disclose Secrets.

AS TO "SYNDICATE PARTICIPATION"

Witness Refuses to Give Names of Men Whom He Had Dealings With. Chairman Hints That He May Have to Tell.

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—By refusing to name the persons who were expected to join with the New York Life insurance company in a bond purchase and "syndicate participation," a transaction in which the company lost more than $200,000, which persons did not join and share the loss, E. B. Randolph, treasurer of the company, who was on the witness stand during the greater part of yesterday's session of the legislative inquiry, incurred the openly expressed dissatisfaction of the committee that measures might be taken to force him to disclose the desired information.

This refusal followed an admission by the witness in relation to another transaction that J. P. Morgan & Co. had been parties to a sale and repurchase within two business days of $800,000 worth of Mercantile Marine company bonds for the purpose of making it appear in the company's statement to the state insurance department that it carried only $3,200,000 of navigation securities instead of $4,000,000.

Mr. Hughes, counsel for the committee, had been questioning the witness regarding the company's connection with a purchase of New Orleans railway bonds and a syndicate participation in which it was admitted that the net loss amounted to $20,194.42. The witness had repeatedly stated that the company had invested more than had at first been the intention, because certain persons who were expected to join in the transaction had failed to join. Finally Mr. Hughes asked: "What did you expect would join?" "That I decline to say," Mr. Randolph replied, "as the expectation was never realized and I regard it as confidential."

For the time the point was passed, but at the end of the session Assemblyman Rogers, who was presiding, said: "Some of us are not satisfied with your refusal, Mr. Randolph, to reply to Mr. Hughes' question as to the people whom you expected to join you in the New Orleans railway participation." "I must repeat that I regard that as a confidential matter," the witness answered. "I will say nothing further for the committee until we have considered the matter together," continued Mr. Rogers, "but I must say that I personally am not satisfied with your answer, especially in view of the declaration of the New York Life insurance company in various statements it has sent out that it would give full information regarding all its affairs."
