We have just received a letter from Comrade Thomas G. Sample, who was unable to attend the national encampment of the G. A. R. on account of illness, from which he is now slowly recovering. Our comrades will remember him as one of the most enthusiastic G. A. R. men in the state, and he has attended every national encampment but the last one.

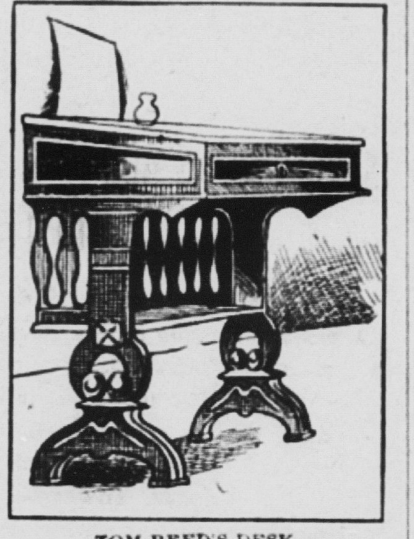

57th Pennsylvania Reunion Athens—Today survivors of the 57th Penn'a regiment held their annual reunion at Wyalusing. Co. H went from Athens and vicinity and was first commanded by Capt. John Griffin, and Horace Williston was quartermaster of the regiment. They went out in the fall of 1861, a time when the disaster to the union army had produced a deep gloom over our land. They served in Kearney's division of the third corps, and the red diamond badge they wear is a trophy of heroic service. The remnant of survivors is small but the boys have reason to be proud of their army record.

Will Try For Gold Medal Athens—Miss Mame Horton was in Athens last night the guest of her friends at the home of Leon Cook. She is teaching at Wellsburg, and this morning started on the early train for Smithfield where she is to compete in the gold medal prize contest for the best recitation. She has often charmed her hearers with her fine oratorical powers and we venture the prediction that she will again carry off the prize.

ONCE USED BY REED. Desk from House of Representatives Now the Property of Attorney General Moody.

Washington—United States Attorney General Moody loved Tom Reed. As a member of the house of representatives he sat in the seat once occupied by the man from Maine.

When the old fittings were removed from the house to be replaced by new ones, Mr. Moody was enabled to purchase chase the desk to which he had become so deeply attached, and at the same time he bought the chair. The desk and chair were sent to his Haverhill home for preservation and they stand in the hallway near the entrance to the dining room. A stranger naturally wonders how the shabby articles of furniture came to occupy such a conspicuous position until the story is told.

Five Killed at Mount Holly Springs. HARRISBURG, Pa., Sept. 22—Five men were killed and eight others seriously injured in a collision between a pay train and a combination passenger and milk train on the Philadelphia, Harrisburg and Pittsburg branch of the Philadelphia and Reading railroad at Roubens Curve at Mount Holly Springs. None of the passengers was injured. The dead are Ephraim McCreary, C. J. Shearer, John Hill, Edward Lauchs and Thomas Marion. Hill died on the way to the Harrisburg hospital. The other four were killed outright. Eight were injured. All were railway employees.

Want Entertainment. Canon Anger, biographer and editor of Charles Lamb, once uttered this pithy saying: "You may preach like an angel, but if you can whistle on a stick people ignore your preaching, and speak of you as 'the man who can whistle on a stick.'" O'HARA'S BODY FOUND.

After Police Had Followed a Hunter Stubbed on Remains.

NEW YORK, Sept. 22—Two weeks ago the town authorities of Port Washington, N. Y., received an anonymous letter telling them that if a search were instituted they would probably find in a stump of woods the dead body of James O'Hara, a laborer who had been missing from his home since Aug. 13. The writer of the letter said he had overheard a conversation between Cleveland Poole, who boarded with O'Hara and his wife, and another person unnamed. What he heard during the conversation induced him to write to the police.

A quiet search of the country was begun, but it was fruitless, and the authorities paid no further heed to the anonymous note. Yesterday a hunter stumbled across the badly decomposed body of a man near the O'Hara house. The clothing was quickly identified as that worn by O'Hara when last seen. The police claim the body was in a position which indicated it had been thrown into the bushes. They immediately arrested Poole, who when questioned admitted he had been drinking with O'Hara the last night the latter was seen alive. He said O'Hara had wanted to fight him on the way home, but he refused to fight.

THE PALERMO SUICIDE.

American Who Jumped From Prins Oskar Was Charles Westhafer.

PALERMO, Sicily, Sept. 22—Cards and documents belonging to the American supposed to be William Rens, who jumped from the Hamburg-American line steamer Prinz Oskar, from Genoa for Naples and New York, as she was entering the harbor here Monday last and was drowned, indicate that he was Charles Westhafer of Cleveland, O.

The documents also seem to indicate that he was president of the Monongahela and Lake Erie Coal company. The man jumped overboard during the dinner hour. His body has not yet been recovered, although every effort has been made.

Shortly before jumping overboard the man gave to the steward a letter addressed to W. S. Westhafer. The evidence so far at hand shows undoubtedly that the man was deranged.

Miss E. Bevens, who was a guest of the same hotel in Florence at which the suicide stopped, testified that he suffered from the delusion that he was being persecuted and fancied that his life was endangered. Healthy Work. Workmen attending the pans in salt works are never known to have cholera, smallpox, scarlet fever or influenza. Successful. 'Has that artist made a reputation?
