Troubles of a Night. Athens—Last night as Constable F. H. Sherman was going to his home on Elm street he was annoyed by something following close to his heels. When he got into the house a friendly little animal slipped in after him and on being driven out left a disagreeable odor behind. He had just settled down in an easy chair when a cry of alarm was heard from the river and a man cried "Help, or I drown."

He went to the scene and found a man whose brain was befuddled with the strange illusion that he was going to be drowned. He rescued the man and once more settled down in his easy chair when, an excited rap on the door again disturbed his attempted rest. He opened the door and Game Protector W. E. Shoemaker, accompanied by two men, appeared. The game protector had arrested Mahlon Johnson and Richard Hansworth of Sayre, who were fishing with a basket device in the Chemung river, and he brought them before Sherman on the charge of illegal fishing. Sherman knew the men and they were allowed to depart under promise that they would appear whenever called upon to answer to the charge of violating the law.

Nice District of Law. Athens—District Game Protector W. E. Shoemaker overhauled Mahlon Johnson and Richard Hansworth of Sayre while they were fishing on the Chemung river last evening. They were using the fish basket belonging to J. E. Allen, which the game protector says is an illegal device. They are to answer before Justice Meredith at Towan'a tomorrow. Mr. Shoemaker had the screen that he took from them at the station this morning, together with the fish captured and shipped them on the early train. The screen has a wire bottom, and Mr. Shoemaker claims that it should be made of wooden slats half an inch apart. There will be a nice question of law for some one to decide in this case.

Japan's War Fund. All told, foreign loans, domestic loans, war taxes, increased customs duties, etc., Japan has raised nearly $50,000,000 for war purposes. As wages in the United States are at least six times higher than in Japan, the amount raised by that country is equal to our raising $5,100,000,000. Further, as the population of Japan is only 48,000,000, while ours is 84,000,000, we should really have to raise about $9,000,000,000 to equal Japan's effort.

One Cargo a Year. It is possibly known to a few people in the Keystone state that Erie is a port of entry each year for a cargo of turtles. This statement is given upon the authority of the Erie Times, which chronicles the fact that the schooner Bertha Wallace, Capt. Winsa had arrived from Port Clinton with a cargo of the reptiles, whose total weight was 1,750 pounds.

Woman Artist's Offer. Mrs. Ellis Rowan, the famous flower artist, has received an offer of $75,000 by the German government for her 500 Australian flower pictures, the condition being that she shall take up her residence in that country and devote her talents exclusively to Germany.

MURDER REVEALS STORY OF LOVE

FOUR SWEETHEARTS CAUSE DEATH OF A HUSBAND. TRAGIC ENDING OF DRAMA

Brother of Italian Countess Tells How Sister's Spouse Was Slain—Case Is the Sensation of Europe. Rome.—The Bonmartini murder trial at Turin, which ended the other day in sentences of from ten to thirty years for the defendants, has for nearly three years been a sensation in Europe. Over 400 witnesses were examined. Count Bonmartini, the murdered man; his widow, an accomplice in his murder; his daughter of Italy's foremost physician; her lover, Dr. Secchi, also was prominent in the actual circles. Her brother, the actual murderer, was a member of parliament.

Countess Bonmartini and Dr. Secchi, then her father's assistant, were lovers before her marriage to the count, but Prof. Murri forced his daughter to marry the count, who, although of high lineage, proved to be a man of revolting character. The countess went to live in Venice with her children. There she was frequently visited by Secchi, who had won fame in his profession and still loved her. There is no doubt that a guilty intrigue subsisted between them. Correspondence between the prisoners, numbering 5,000 letters, suggests relations between the countess and Dr. Secchi, and Tullio Murri, her brother, and Rosa Bonetti, the countess' confidential maid. The countess gave her key to the count's apartments in Bologna to Rosa Bonetti, who on the night of August 27, 1902, admitted Tullio and Dr. Naldi, a clever but disreputable surgeon. The first plan was to overpower Bonmartini and kill him with an injection of curare, a rare African vegetable poison, to be administered by Naldi, but owing to the probable difficulty of holding the victim down this plan was abandoned in favor of the knife.

NALDI PLUNGED THE KNIFE INTO THE COUNT'S THROAT.

When Count Bonmartini entered his apartment at five p. m. on the following day, August 28, Tullio hung himself upon him, Naldi, with surgical skill, giving the fatal thrust in the throat. News of the deed was conveyed to the count's brother-in-law, Tullio Murri, as he was sitting in the provincial council, of which he was the secretary. "It must have been robbery," he said. "Bonmartini must have been killed for his money." So far everything seemed to confirm Tullio's simple theory. Two days after the discovery Tullio set out from Venice with his sister, the countess, intending to go to Switzerland. A doctor and the children went with them. On the way Tullio showed a wound and had it dressed in the village of a man. At any rate Tullio blurted out that he got the wound in an encounter with the count and that it was he who slew him. Then he left the train and set out for the Balkans. The countess proceeded to Switzerland and Germany. Tullio was a gambler and a spendthrift, a writer of some talent, and a socialist. He is a man of great physical strength and violent temper, with low tastes. His most creditable trait is love of his family. After wandering about Switzerland and Germany Tullio gave himself up at Ala eight days after his father told the police. The same day Rosa Bonetti was taken.

Huckleberry Pie Bursts. Paterson, N. J.—Mrs. Robert Jamieson, keeper of a boarding house, was scalded about the hands and face the other day by the explosion of a large huckleberry pie. The pie had been baked without any air holes in the top, and was placed upon the dinner table steaming hot after the boarders had seated themselves. When the boarding mistress sunk a knife into the crust the pie burst with a report that could be heard all over the house. The juice scattered all over the table, staining the clothes of the boarders and burning Mrs. Jamieson's hands and face.

Deep Problem. This was taken from the question box in the juvenile Sunday school class at Erie a few Sundays ago: "Dear God—What made ye put tails on kais fer?"—Kansas City Journal.
