NIMRODS STUDY HUNTING LAWS

Many Changes Made by Last Legislature Put Hunters All at Sea—Some Points Covered by the New Laws

Local sportsmen are looking forward to the opening of the hunting season with the usual keen anticipation that precedes this, the most joyous time of year to disciples of old Nimrod. Guns are being pulled forth from their cases; the canvas shell vest, the old corduroy coat and trousers—still redolent of woods and field—come down from the attic and are handed over to the good wife for repairs; ammunition and other necessary accompaniments are being purchased, and many a trip is being planned.

The changes in the game laws effected by the last legislature have been so numerous, so radical, that it stands one in hand to get thoroughly acquainted with them before venturing out in quest of anything that wears fur or feathers. One of the stunts of that legislature was in extending the protection of the game laws to bear, blackbirds and bullfrogs—bullheaded business! Other changes were in the opening, closing and length of open season on various kinds of game, and as usual there are divergent opinions as to their applicability to this section of the state. One important departure is in making the open season on most game end December 1st.

One departure from the law as it has been the last few years is in placing the opening of the squirrel season at October 1. This pleases squirrel hunters, but we fear it is going to be death on quail and grouse, for every man knows the terrible temptation that besets the squirrel hunter when a flock of nearly-grown grouse walk past his place of ambush! Though the grouse season is not open, yet the great majority of men will take a shot and run their chances of smuggling the grouse home. The indications for a good squirrel season roundabout are not very promising; farmer boys may have been at them way back in August; at any rate, they are scarce. Do not kill more than six of combined kinds in one day unless you want the game warden to visit you.

But, let the squirrels take care of themselves—the bird season is most important to the great majority of hunters. The past spring and summer were favorable to birds, and there will be good shooting in nearly every part of this region. The opening day for grouse is October 16 this fall, as the 15th comes on Sunday. This king of Pennsylvania game birds is said to have prospered since last season. Don't forget that you cannot legally kill him after Dec. 1st, and that you must not take more than five in one day, twenty in one week, or fifty in one season. There very few of us who will even reach the limit.

The quail, that little animated whirlwind that furnishes no end of sport, has almost become extinct in some parts of the state, and unless hunters refrain from killing off the few scattered flocks this season, this little favorite will soon be a thing of the past, going the way of the pigeon that not many years ago abounded in the eastern states. There are very few quail left in this vicinity.

Hare and rabbits can be killed in unlimited number, but only during the month of November.

Woodcock can now be legally killed from October 1 to December 1. Don't kill more than ten in one day, twenty in one week, or fifty in one season.

The kinds of other game, the number the law permits to be killed by one person, and the open season on each, is as follows:

Boar, unlimited, October 1 to March 1.

Deer and Fawn, one each season, November 15 to December 1.

Web-footed wild fowl, ducks of all kinds, ten in one day, one hundred in one season, September 1 to January 1, and the first fifteen days of April.

Web-footed wild fowl, Swan, Geese or Brant, two in one day, ten in one season, September 1 to January 1, and the first fifteen days of April.

Wild Turkey, one in a day, four in one season, October 15 to Dec. 1.

Remember that game killed in this Commonwealth may be had in possession only during the open season for such game and for fifteen days thereafter. This is the law. If hunters are not disposed to abide by this provision they need not take the game.

No deer, fawn, ruffed grouse, commonly called pheasant, or quail, commonly called Virginia partridge, killed within the Commonwealth can be bought or sold at any time. No ruffed grouse, commonly called pheasant, killed outside the Commonwealth, can be sold within the state excepting during the open season for like birds in the Commonwealth and for thirty days thereafter.

No wild turkey or woodcock killed either within or without the Commonwealth can be bought or sold at any time.

All other game can be bought and sold in season.

No game of any kind can be legally carried or in any manner removed out of the State.

LOST HIS MONEY AND A CHECK

Laquin Lumberman Lost His Coin at the Towanda Fair—Guilty Man Is Thought to Be long in Sayre.

Alexander Thompson, a lumberman at Laquin, came to the fair on Thursday. He had with him $17 in cash and a check for $24. Thursday night he succumbed to the arguments of old John Barleycorn and laid down to sleep at East Towanda. Friday morning when he awoke his money and they were gone.

Soon after the Citizens bank opened Friday morning the check was presented but payment refused because of some apparent irregularity in the endorsement. Thompson made complaint to the police and Chief Miller and Constable Hollon made a search of the fair grounds, finally locating the man wanted at East Towanda about dark. The young fellow, who is a resident of Sayre, got away on a freight train, however—Towanda Review.

PAUL GILMORE MADE BIG HIT

The presentation of "Captain Debonnaire" at the Loomis opera house Saturday night was all that could be desired. No better show could be put on the boards. The stage settings and scenery were the finest ever seen in the valley. The costumes were fresh and in keeping with the time represented: 1665. Paul Gilmore in the title role was superb, and he was supported by a good company. The drinking songs were natural and free. The love scenes were exceptionally good, being free from the silly sickish element usually in evidence. The sword play was good and there was enough slaughter in one act, when the hero mowed down the villain and seven or eight followers to satisfy the pre-Shakespearean standard of Greene or Marlowe. After this act Mr. Gilmore was called back three times. He made a short and graceful speech, thanking the audience for their appreciative reception, which had called forth the best efforts of the whole company. The house was not very large and a good share of the people present were from Sayre and Athens. We predict that if the management continues to bring plays of this high class to the opera house it will not be long before the whole house is regularly sold in advance. The people appreciate good plays.
